Colorado Agriculture

Agriculture is one of the most important, vibrant industries in our state. It contributes more than $40 billion to our state's economy, and it supports over 170,000 jobs. Over 75 percent of Colorado's beautiful landscape produces some type of food product. In fact, with approximately 3,000 counties in the U.S. having agriculture sales, Colorado has two in the top 25: Weld is #9, Yuma is #24.

Colorado agricultural producers help provide spending choices for our family dollar that is unseen anywhere else in the world. While U.S. consumers pay 6.8 percent of their income for food, Canada comes in at 9.1 percent, South Korea at 15.3 percent, the Philippines at 37 percent, and Pakistan sits at 45.5 percent! Did you know that farmers and ranchers receive only 17.4* cents of every food dollar that consumers spend? According to the USDA, off farm costs including marketing, processing, wholesaling, distribution and retailing account for more than 80 cents of every food dollar spent in the United States. (*Farmer's share derived from USDA, NASS "Agricultural Prices," 2016.)

Over 40 food commodities are grown on Colorado farms and ranches. From top quality beef, pork, and lamb to lettuce, potatoes, broccoli, onions and peaches, Colorado consumers increasingly treasure our agricultural bounty. Of those, 25 rank in the top 10 across the country.

Colorado is also a leading exporter of agricultural and food products. Customers in more than 110 countries purchased about $1.8 billion of food and agricultural products from Colorado in 2015. Overall, our exports have nearly tripled in the past decade, creating new and profitable market opportunities for Colorado's farmers, ranchers, and food processors.

Agriculture has been, and will continue to be, a critical part of Colorado's economic well-being. As more and more of our agricultural products find consumers across the globe, Colorado agriculture will boost our state's economic growth and help create jobs. And that is not only good for agriculture – it is good for all Coloradans.
