Hearings

The Parole Board is responsible for conducting three types of hearings with inmates and parolees who are housed and supervised by the Colorado Department of Corrections (CDOC):

- Application Hearings – when an inmate would like to be considered for the opportunity of release onto discretionary parole.
- Rescission Hearings – when an inmate has been given a parole release date but an issue has arisen that requires the Parole Board to revise the original decision.
- Revocation Hearings – when a parolee has violated the conditions of their parole and is at risk of re-incarceration.

In addition to conducting hearings daily, Parole Board members engage in Full Board Reviews, conduct reviews of other Parole Board member decisions (“second signs”), review and sign warrants, review individuals for early discharge from parole supervision, and review Special Needs Parole applications.

Parole Board Review and Hearing Numbers

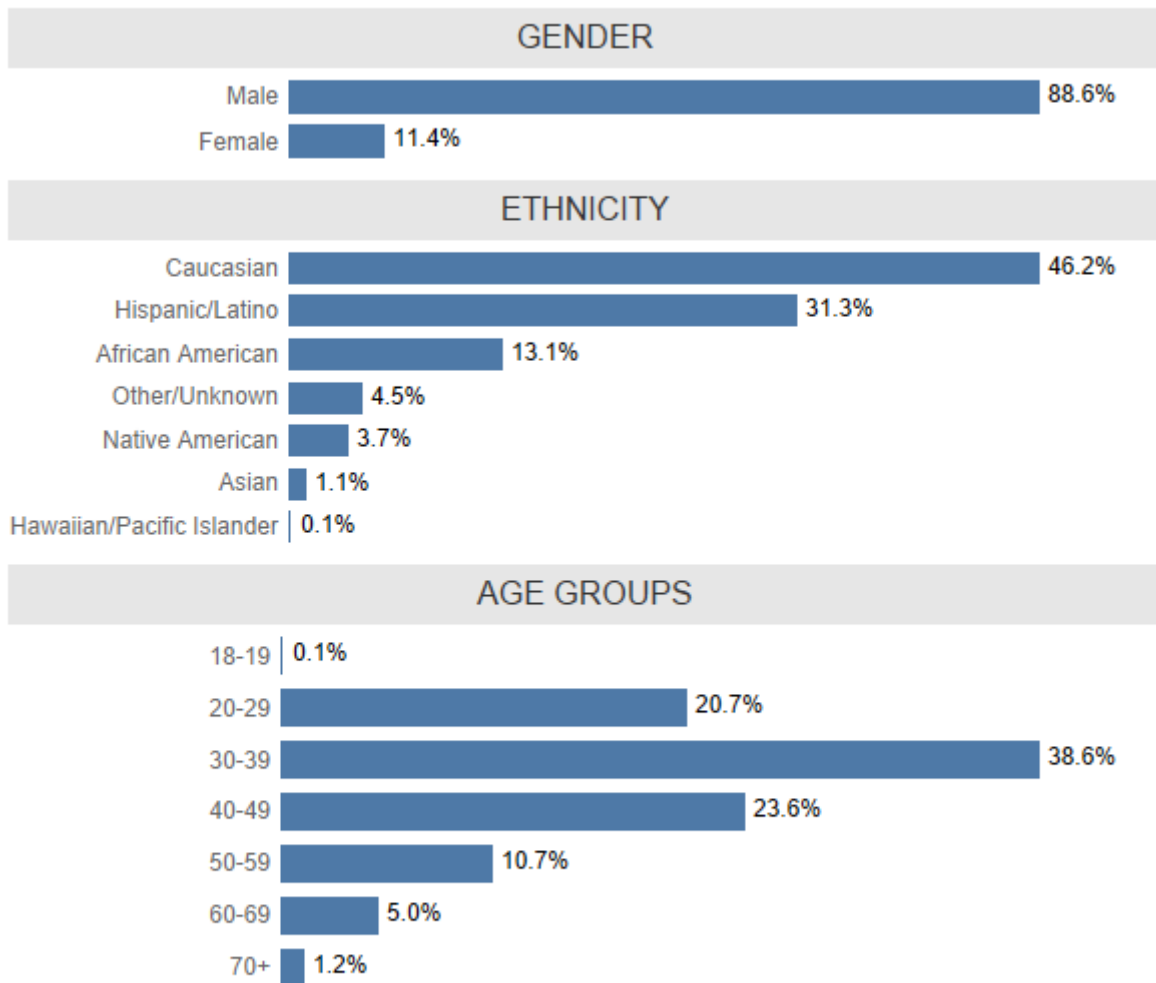

The Parole Board conducts a wide variety of hearings and reviews. During FY2023, the Parole Board conducted the following:

- 10,597 application hearings for parole, which included:
 - 6,898 Video/Phone application hearings
 - 1,720 File Reviews
 - 1,423 hearings were conducted for inmates who either refused to attend or were unable to attend the hearings (moved prior to the hearings to another facility or medical facility, were in court or jail, were on fugitive inmate status, etc.)
 - 556 administrative hearings were conducted by our office for individuals who submitted hearing waivers or needed to have their hearing date changed.
- 2,085 Full Board reviews
- 149 Rescission hearings
- 3,328 Revocation hearings
- 917 Early parole release reviews

The Parole Eligible Population

The demographic breakdown of individuals considered for discretionary release to parole in FY2023 is as follows:

FY23 Hearing Demographics

Data includes demographic information reported to the Colorado Department of Corrections by those individuals who had a completed parole application hearing by the Colorado State Board of Parole during FY 2023.

Risk and Readiness Assessments

The Parole Board considers all available risk and readiness assessments in the review of inmates for discretionary release: The Colorado Actuarial Risk Assessment Scale (CARAS) and the Colorado Transitional Accountability Plan (CTAP) suite of assessments are typically available for review by the Parole Board. The CARAS is a static risk assessment, meaning the score is unlikely to change but can get higher throughout someone's lifetime. Due to its static nature, the CTAP assessments are also considered, as they are dynamic risk assessments that can change over time through intervention, treatment, etc. The CTAP assessments are completed throughout an individual's stay in prison.

The CARAS is currently the main component of the Parole Board Release Guideline Instrument (PBRGI), a structured decision-making tool that provides recommendations to Parole Board members regarding a deny or release from prison. The Parole Board is currently undergoing a revision of this tool to include more dynamic risk and readiness considerations. The CARAS has five risk domains: very low, low, medium, high, and very high. The breakdown of risk by CARAS scores for the inmates seen by the Parole Board in FY2023 for application hearings is provided below:

There are three CTAP assessments that can be completed for individuals while in CDOC. The Prison Intake Tool (PIT) is completed upon entry into prison. The Supplemental Tool (SRT) is completed every year for the first four years of incarceration and the Reentry Tool (RT) is completed every year from the fourth year of incarceration and beyond. CTAP assessments categorize individuals into low, medium, high, or very high-risk categories, the breakdown for the inmates seen by the Parole Board in FY2023 for application hearings is below:

There are a number of specialized populations within the CDOC that require special training and attention by Parole Board members. The following is a discussion of individuals who were seen for an application hearing in FY2023 who are considered to fall within a specialized population.

Inmates Convicted of Sex Offenses

Regarding those convicted of a sex offense, the STATIC-99 assessment provides overall risk scores of the inmate, on what their likelihood is to commit another sex offense.

Inmates with Mental Illness

The Parole Board recognizes the challenges of those living with mental health issues. The CDOC provides a psychological code (P code) to identify level of need regarding the mental health population which then allows the Parole Board to appropriately condition inmates to increase resource availability once on parole. Parole Board members work collaboratively with the Division of Adult Parole’s Mental Health and Reentry Unit to help support release.

Inmates with Substance Abuse Disorders

All individuals are assessed using the Standardized Offender Assessment – Revised (SOA-R) in CDOC. Individuals who score at a level 4a or higher are considered as needing a more intensive level of substance abuse treatment. The CDOC provides substance abuse treatment at different levels of intensity and Parole Board members encourage participation. If necessary, additional treatment in the community may be ordered as a condition of parole.

Conditional Discretionary Release Status

Individuals can be placed on conditional discretionary release (CDR), or “tabled”, status to ensure that their release occurs once they have met certain criteria. The most common reasons for being placed on CDR status, as opposed to being provided with a release date, are:

- The individual is in a program and still needs time to finish the program.
- The individual does not have a place to parole to and needs time to connect with reentry services.
- The individual has been accepted to a program and is waiting on bed availability.
- The individual is already in community corrections and will be paroled upon completion of the program.
- The individual is in need of assisted living or hospice care and more time is needed to find an available bed.

Special Needs Parole

§C.R.S. 17-22.5-403.5 defines the procedures involved in a special needs parole application and Parole Board hearing review process for eligible individuals. When an inmate has a mental health or medical diagnosis that warrants consideration for early release on parole, the CDOC will submit an application to the Parole Board for review. This review request can be initiated by the individual inmate themselves, their case manager, or the CDOC medical team. All applications are vetted by the CDOC medical team and a recommendation is provided. In FY2023, the Parole Board conducted 57 special needs reviews for individuals that were recommended for release by the CDOC team. A total of 11 individuals were granted special needs parole and a total of 20 individuals were placed on CDR (“tabled”) pending an approved parole plan in FY2023. Of the 20 individuals placed on CDR status, 16 have been released to parole, two (2) remain on CDR status pending an approved parole plan, and one (1) individual deceased while awaiting an approved parole plan.

The Opportunity to Complete Parole Early

When a parolee completes a set portion of their parole sentence and are at a certain risk and supervision level, they are eligible to be submitted for early release review by the Parole Board. The Department of Corrections’ Division of Adult Parole Administrative Regulation (AR) 250-29 defines when a parolee is eligible for review. In these reviews, Parole Board members are looking to see that individuals have completed the conditions of their parole and have been successful on supervision. The following table displays the number of individuals who were approved and denied early parole release from FY2018 through FY2023:

Early Parole Discharge Applications by FY and Parole Board Decision

	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023
Approved #	1,105	1,085	1,537	931	655
Denied #	220	386	319	322	262
Approved %	83%	73%	82%	74%	71%
Denied %	16%	26%	17%	26%	29%

*Includes all early discharge applications that were presented to the Parole Board.

The Revocation Process

When individuals violate the conditions of their parole the Division of Adult Parole can bring them before the Parole Board for a revocation hearing. Below is a breakdown of the outcomes of revocation hearing conducted in FY2023:

FY2023 Revocation Hearing Outcomes

Continued of parole (not revoked)	28%
Parole revoked	72%

Reason for revocation

Revocation for new felony charge(s)	13.0%
Revocation for felony and misdemeanor charge(s)	3.1%
Revocation for new misdemeanor charge(s)	41.1%
Revocation for traffic/Petty offense(s)	2.1%
Technical Violation Revocation for Absconding	19.5%
Other Technical Violations only	20.8%
Other revocation type	0.4%

*Does not include continuance hearings or self-revocation request decisions.

Other Technical Violations Only category includes inmates returned for termination from sex offender treatment, weapons violation(s), and/or contacting a victim under a protection order.

Return to Prison

Return rates differ depending on an inmate's type of release. Those released discretionarily historically have lower return to prison rates than those who are released on mandatory parole. For those released in calendar year 2020 the 1-year return rate is 7% lower for discretionary releases than mandatory releases.

Conclusion

The Parole Board is dedicated to increasing public safety by leveraging relevant research, actuarial assessments, and structured decision making. Utilizing these tools in concert, the Parole Board is able to maximize the potential of releasing the right people, at the right time, and ensuring they have the right supports.
