Introduction

The Resource Book is intended to serve as a reference guide for information on some of Colorado's major health care issues and programs. The book is divided into three sections to make it easier for the reader to access information. The first section provides an overview of the health care system in Colorado, including private health insurance and public health programs. The second section reviews the budgets and health care responsibilities of key executive branch departments. The third section provides more detailed program information on public health programs in Colorado, and is generally organized by population group. Program summaries in Section III include information on eligibility, costs, services, and provide contact information for the programs. Departmental and program budget figures were drawn primarily from the FY 2012-13 appropriations bill (Long Bill) and the Joint Budget Committee Staff's Appropriations Report. Please note that budget figures have been rounded. At times, figures do not sum due to rounding.

The Health Care System in Colorado

Health care in Colorado is in a period of transition, with federal health care reform and other state-based health initiatives currently being implemented. Federal health care reform, in particular, will result in changes in the way many citizens access and pay for health insurance and health care services. This section is intended to provide an overview of the health care system in Colorado and illustrate the different health coverage options that are available to citizens. Key topics that are discussed include the costs of health care, private health insurance, implementation of federal health care reform, and public health care programs.

Health Care Spending

Nationally, health expenditures are projected to grow to $2.9 trillion dollars in 2013, or about $9,214 for each person in the country, representing 17.8 percent of the Gross Domestic Product (GDP).<sup>1</sup> Over the last several years, health care spending has grown at a rate of about 4 percent per year. Chart I.1 illustrates the sources of payment for the country's health care costs. Revenues from federal, state, and local governments are estimated to be the source of 46 percent of national health spending in 2013; revenue from households, businesses, and other private sources will make up 54 percent of total spending.<sup>2</sup> The proportion of health care spending paid for by government has increased in recent years and is projected to account for 50 percent of all health care spending in 2021.<sup>3</sup>

Private Health Insurance

Nationwide, as well as in Colorado, most individuals access private health insurance through their employer.<sup>4</sup> The private health insurance market is broken down into the following categories of health plans: the self-funded, large employer group, small employer group, and individual markets.

Types of health insurance. Self-funded plans, often used by larger employers, are subject to federal laws and regulation, and are not regulated by Colorado law. Under self-funded plans, employers assume the risk and pay for all covered services claimed through the health plan by members of the group. On the other hand, fully insured plans are regulated by the state and include individuals in Colorado's small employer group market, persons who seek individual coverage outside of their employer, and large employer groups that do not self-fund their health insurance plans. Under fully insured plans, health insurers assume the risk and pay the health care claims submitted by the covered group. Health insurers set the premiums and cost-sharing amounts paid by employers and covered individuals so as to cover the estimated cost of care and administrative costs. According to an annual survey of Colorado employers, approximately 58 percent of employers offer fully insured plans that are regulated by state law.<sup>5</sup>

Health insurance regulations. Federal and state law require health plans to cover certain benefits. For example, there are state mandates to cover pregnancy and childbirth, newborn children, mental illness, diabetes, and prostate cancer screening. Health insurers are required to comply with other state laws, including a requirement that carriers file proposed premium changes with the Division of Insurance in the Department of Regulatory Agencies to ensure that they are not excessive, inadequate, or unfairly discriminatory. Beginning in 2012, federal law requires fully insured health plans in the individual and small employer group markets to refund a portion of the premiums paid by employers and covered individuals if more than 20 percent of the premiums collected are used for non-medical purposes such as administration and advertising. For large employer groups with more than 50 persons, refunds are required if more than 15 percent of revenue goes to non-medical expenses.<sup>6</sup>

Persons without health insurance. The 2011-12 Colorado Health Access Survey estimates that approximately 829,000 persons in Colorado, or approximately 16 percent of the state's population, did not have health insurance.<sup>7</sup> The significant number of persons without insurance is thought to increase the cost of health care in the state, both for public and private health care payers. The state may cover a portion of the health care costs of uninsured persons, but not the entire burden. As a result, the costs of treating the uninsured may be shifted to other private payers.

In Colorado, there are several consistent characteristics of the uninsured population. About 71 percent of uninsured individuals are in a family with one or more workers.<sup>8</sup> However, many uninsured individuals either do not earn high enough incomes to afford their portion of health insurance premiums, work in jobs that do not provide health insurance, or do not qualify for health insurance because they are part-time or contract workers. Over half of the individuals who were working and unable to obtain health insurance worked for small businesses.<sup>9</sup>

In Colorado, uninsured individuals may be found in all income levels; however, persons with the lowest incomes make up the largest share of the persons without health insurance, with nearly 88 percent of uninsured Coloradans having incomes below 300 percent of the Federal Poverty Level (FPL).<sup>10</sup> Young adults between 18 and 34 years of age are the most likely not to carry health insurance, comprising 41 percent of uninsured individuals in Colorado.<sup>11</sup> In contrast, the elderly, because of the availability of Medicare, are less likely to be uninsured than any other age group.

Federal Health Care Reform

In March 2010, federal health care reform, also known as the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (PPACA), was adopted by the U.S. Congress and signed by the President.<sup>12</sup> PPACA expands health care coverage by increasing access to private health insurance and expanding eligibility for Medicaid.

Effect on health insurance. The health reform law increases regulations on health insurance providers and makes changes to how the health insurance market operates. PPACA also requires individuals to have health care coverage and certain employers to offer health insurance to employees. Changes that have already taken effect under PPACA include:

- prohibiting lifetime and annual caps on health insurance benefits;
- allowing children to stay on their parents' health insurance through age 26;
- prohibiting health insurance providers from rescinding coverage, except in cases of fraud; and
- prohibiting health insurance providers from denying coverage to children because of pre-existing conditions.

Beginning in 2014, health insurance providers cannot deny coverage to adults with pre-existing conditions and cannot set rates based on a person's health status or medical condition. Factors such as age, family size, geographic area, and tobacco use may still be considered when determining rates. In 2014, providers must offer health insurance coverage to all persons who apply or wish to renew their coverage. Subsidies to purchase health insurance will be available to individuals who have incomes between 100 and 400 percent of the FPL who are not offered affordable health coverage through their employer.

Health Benefit Exchange. An important step associated with federal health reform in Colorado is the creation of the Colorado Health Benefit Exchange. The exchange is a state-chartered nonprofit organization that is responsible for creating a health insurance marketplace that allows consumers to get information, compare health plans, and purchase coverage. The exchange will screen clients for eligibility for other public health care programs and determine federal subsidy amounts for eligible persons who wish to purchase insurance through the exchange. The exchange will begin selling health plans in October 2013, with these plans first taking effect in January 2014. All health insurance sold both inside and outside the exchange must provide a minimum level of benefits, known as essential health benefits, and meet standards of cost-effectiveness and value in terms of premiums paid versus medical claims paid.

Public Health Care Programs

State health care programs in Colorado take a variety of forms, including public health insurance programs, direct services, contracted provider services, managed care programs, and public health initiatives. Eligibility for public health care programs is typically based on income level, as well as population category (e.g., elderly, children, disabled, etc.) or service need (e.g., mental health, substance abuse). The main groups that are eligible for health care programs in Colorado are highlighted below. Chart I.2 on page 9 shows eligibility by income level for the major public health insurance programs in Colorado — Medicaid and the Child Health Plan Plus (CHP+ as well for the Colorado Indigent Care Program (CICP).

Low-income populations. Medicaid is the largest health care program in the state with a projected caseload of more than 687,000 enrollees in FY 2012-13. Medicaid serves multiple low-income populations, including the elderly, children, parents, persons with disabilities, and to a limited extent, adults without dependent children. For more information on Medicaid, see page 15.

Children and pregnant women. In addition to Medicaid, children and pregnant women may be eligible for health coverage under CHP+. Generally, CHP+ serves persons with higher incomes relative to the Medicaid population and has higher premiums and cost sharing than Medicaid. For more information on CHP+, see page 20.

Elderly. The most common source of health coverage for elderly adults is the federal Medicare program. The state of Colorado has no role in Medicare, which is solely operated by the federal government. Persons who have worked in Medicare-covered employment for ten years and their spouses who are 65 years old or older qualify for Medicare. However, non medical long-term care, such as assisted living and nursing home care, is generally not covered by the federal Medicare program. Elderly adults requiring long-term care who have low incomes and limited assets can receive services under Colorado Medicaid (page 15).

Elderly persons with low incomes who are disabled and are not eligible for Medicaid may be able to receive health coverage through the Old Age Pension Health and Medical Care Program (page 24). Also, elderly persons requiring assistance living independently may be eligible for adult assistance programs through the Department of Human Services, which partners with 16 Area Agencies on Aging in Colorado (page 23).

Persons with disabilities. Medicaid offers health coverage to persons deemed permanently and totally disabled according to federal law (i.e., eligible for federal Social Security Income benefits). Persons with developmental disabilities can receive residential and family support services through the Department of Human Services. For more information on Medicaid and services for persons with developmental disabilities, see pages 15 and 26, respectively.

Mental health services. Persons who are eligible for Medicaid can receive mental health services through several regional care providers throughout the state (page 27 ). Persons who are not Medicaid-eligible and do not have private insurance that covers mental health services may be able to receive assistance through the Department of Human Services at community mental health providers (page 28) or at one of the state mental health institutes (page 30), depending on the level of services required.

Substance abuse treatment. Persons requiring treatment for alcohol or drug use who do not have health insurance or who have health insurance that does not cover substance abuse treatment may be eligible for treatment through several regional treatment providers that contract with the Department of Human Services to offer prevention, intervention, and treatment services for persons with substance abuse issues. More information on this program is on page 32.

Public health programs. The Department of Public Health and Environment (DPHE) operates programs in areas such as suicide prevention, tobacco prevention and cessation, dental hygiene, vaccinations, and children's and maternal health. The DPHE does not offer services directly and instead works to improve health care access and availability. Often these public health programs provide funds to organizations that offer services to certain populations or in areas where there are unmet public health needs. Several public health programs that support health-related services for individuals are discussed in this book, including suicide prevention (page 31), nurse home visitation for first-time mothers (page 22), and tobacco prevention and cessation (page 33).

Eligibility for Public Health Care Programs by Income Level and Population, 2012

* Parents of children enrolled in Medicaid or CHP+.

** Eligibility for Medicaid long-term care is based on multiples of the Supplemental Security Income limit (SSI) of $698, which corresponds to about 75% of the FPL. Three times the SSI is equal to about 225% of the FPL.

*** House Bill 09-1293 authorizes Medicaid to serve childless adults with incomes up to 100% of FPL. However, current funding limits eligibility to persons with incomes up to 10% of FPL with an enrollment cap of 10,000 individuals. Hospitals may be reimbursed for care provided to adults without dependent children who have incomes between 11% and 100% of the FPL through the Colorado Indigent Care Program.

Section II State Department Functions

The state departments that focus much of their work on health-related issues are the Departments of Health Care Policy and Financing, Public Health and Environment, Human Services, and Regulatory Agencies. Each department administers several programs to address Coloradans' various health care needs. In FY 2012-13, General Fund appropriations for the three primary health and human services departments totaled $2.5 billion, or 33 percent of the state General Fund budget. Chart II.1 illustrates the size of the General Fund appropriations for all state departments.

Department of Health Care Policy and Financing

The Department of Health Care Policy and Financing (DHCPF) is the federally recognized single state agency for administering the Colorado Medicaid program. The department also develops and provides policy, program, and financial oversight for the Child Health Plan Plus (CHP+), the Colorado Indigent Care Program (CICP), and other health programs. Approximately 33 percent of its funding comes from the state's General Fund. Another 17 percent comes from cash funds and from the Hospital Provider Fee. These General Fund and cash fund dollars are used to match and access federal moneys to fund health programs such as Medicaid and to reimburse hospitals for uncompensated care they provide to persons without health insurance. Federal funds comprise about half of the department's budget.

The entire DHCPF budget is used for health-related programs. The budget's cash funds are primarily: (1) provider fees on public hospitals and nursing homes that are used to increase the federal funding to the state; (2) money from the additional tax on tobacco products as a result of Amendment 35, which was passed in 2004; and (3) money transferred from the Tobacco Litigation Settlement Cash Fund and the Children's Basic Health Plan Trust. The trust receives the majority of its funding from the Tobacco Settlement. The DHCPF also receives reappropriated funds. These funds consist primarily of General Fund dollars credited to various cash funds for health services, transfers from other state departments, and transfers of Amendment 35 moneys.

Department of Public Health and Environment

The Department of Public Health and Environment (DPHE) administers public health and environmental protection services. Health program areas include tobacco education and cessation, disease control, local health services, inspection of hospitals and nursing homes, emergency medical services, preventative medical services for children, and suicide prevention. Approximately 72 percent of the department's budget goes toward health-related programs. About 53 percent of the budget is made up of federal funds. Cash funds used for health-related programs are primarily funding from the Tobacco Master Settlement and money from the additional tax on tobacco products as a result of Amendment 35. Reappropriated funds for health-related programs are primarily transfers from other programs within the department and other state departments.

Department of Human Services

The Department of Human Services (DHS) administers health and non-health services provided by county departments of social services, state mental health institutes, youth corrections facilities, nursing homes, vocational rehabilitation offices, regional centers for persons with developmental disabilities, and numerous community-based public and private providers. Health-related services include those administered by the Division of Behavioral Health Developmental Disability Services, and the Division of Aging and Adult Services.

Because some DHS programs incorporate both health and non-health aspects, it is difficult to specify exactly how much of the department's budget goes toward health-related services. A large portion of the budget is funded through reappropriated funds due to transfers of various Medicaid dollars from the Department of Health Care Policy and Financing. Cash funds are primarily from the Old Age Pension Fund for non-health related cash assistance, local funds, and various other sources.

Department of Regulatory Agencies

The Department of Regulatory Agencies (DORA) addresses the state's health care needs through the Division of Insurance and the Division of Professions and Occupations. About 30 percent of the department's $78 million budget is allocated to these two divisions.

The Division of Insurance (DOI) works to promote a competitive insurance marketplace that allows for affordable insurance and adequate consumer choice. The division regulates insurance companies, health maintenance organizations, and workers' compensation self-insurance pools through financial examinations, inspections, and enforcement of regulations. The division also acts as a consumer advocate, responding to and investigating complaints from consumers. The Division of Insurance is funded almost entirely through tax assessments on insurers and various fees paid by regulated entities (e.g., licensing fees for insurers).

Section III

Major Health Care Programs and Services in Colorado

Colorado provides health care programs and services for low-income citizens of all ages or who have various medical or service needs. Clients include the elderly, women, children, persons with mental illness, substance abusers, persons with disabilities, and persons without health insurance. This section provides program-specific information and is generally organized by recipient group. Eligibility for services is determined primarily by county departments of social services and depends largely upon family income. Chart I.2 on page 9 illustrates the income eligibility requirements for the state's primary medical coverage programs. Appendix A lists the annual incomes associated with different percentages of the federal poverty level (FPL). For easy reference, Appendix B provides the contact information of programs discussed in this section, sorted by population served.

Low-Income Populations

Medicaid

Overview. Medicaid is a joint federal and state public health insurance program administered in Colorado by the Department of Health Care Policy and Financing. Medicaid in Colorado provides health care coverage to the elderly, children, parents, persons with disabilities, and a limited number of adults without dependent children. All persons seeking Medicaid coverage must meet income and other eligibility requirements to receive services through the program. Medicaid also provides mental health services (page 27) and funding for human services programs for persons with developmental disabilities (page 26).

Budget. For every dollar Colorado spends on Medicaid, the federal government contributes one dollar. Colorado pays Medicaid costs using General Fund, fees on hospitals, and tobacco tax revenue.

Medicaid
Fiscal Year 2012-13 Budget

Total Appropriation	General Fund/Cash Funds	Federal Funds
$3,994.7	$2,021.7	$1,972.9
100%	51%	49%

Eligibility. The 14 specific eligibility categories for Medicaid generally include elderly persons, persons with disabilities, children and parents, and adults without dependent children. Eligibility criteria for each of these populations are described below.

Elderly persons typically qualify for Medicaid by first qualifying for the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) or Old Age Pension (OAP) programs. There are a number of categories of eligibility for elderly persons in Medicaid that vary based upon criteria, such as level of disability. Depending upon a client's category, the maximum allowable income for elderly persons may be as low as $698 per month or as high as $2,094 per month.

Persons with disabilities who have been deemed permanently and totally disabled by the federal Disability Determination Service and are eligible for federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits qualify for Medicaid disabled assistance if they meet the income and financial resources limits. The income limit for enrollees is $698 per month, or approximately 75 percent of the FPL in 2012.

Persons with disabilities and families with children with disabilities who have incomes above the regular Medicaid limit may be eligible to participate in the Medicaid Buy-in Program and to pay a portion of the Medicaid medical service premium in order to receive services. Families with children with disabilities may have incomes up to 300 percent of the FPL and must not otherwise be eligible for Medicaid. Working adults with disabilities may participate in the buy-in program if they have incomes up to 450 percent of the FPL. Premiums for the buy-in programs are set on a sliding scale, with higher premiums required as income increases.

Children and parents typically qualify for Medicaid through enrollment in Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF), the cash assistance welfare program, or by meeting specific income and resource criteria. Parents of children who are enrolled in Medicaid or the CHP+ are eligible for Medicaid if they have incomes up to 100 percent of the FPL. Pregnant women with incomes up to 185 percent of the FPL are eligible for Medicaid services. Children in families with incomes up to 133 percent of the FPL and children in foster care qualify for Medicaid coverage.

Adults without dependent children may qualify for Medicaid if they have incomes below 100 percent of the FPL. However, Medicaid for adults without children is currently limited to persons with incomes below 10 percent of the FPL up to a cap of 10,000 adults. In addition, adults requiring certain types of medical care may qualify for Medicaid. For example, the Breast and Cervical Cancer Program serves women age 40 to 64 with incomes up to 250 percent of the FPL. Non-citizen adults may also receive emergency services through Medicaid.

Population served. The total Medicaid population is projected to be 687,473 in FY 2012-13. The projected caseload and costs for each eligibility category are shown in Table III.1.

Table III.1

A listing of Colorado's long-term care single-entry-point agencies can be found at www.colorado.gov/hcpf by clicking on the "Programs and Benefits" link, followed by the "Long-term Care" link.

Children and Pregnant Women

Child Health Plan Plus (CHP+)

Overview. The Child Health Plan Plus (CHP+), also known administratively as the Children's Basic Health Plan, provides health insurance to low-income children and pregnant and post-partum women who are not eligible for Medicaid. The Department of Health Care Policy and Financing administers the plan. Services provided through CHP+ include regular checkups, immunizations, prescriptions, hospital services, eye glasses, hearing aids, prenatal services, and mental health services. Coverage for dental care is available to children.

Budget. A 65 percent match is available from the federal government for CHP+. Therefore, for every dollar Colorado spends on CHP+, the federal government contributes about $1.85. Transfers to the CHP+ program are received from the Children's Basic Health Plan Trust, the Hospital Provider Fee Cash Fund, and other sources. The Children's Basic Health Plan Trust consists of tobacco Master Settlement funds, General Fund moneys, and fees paid by families enrolled in CHP+.

The annual enrollment fees are $25 for one child ($35 for two or more children) for families with incomes up to 205 percent of the FPL, and $75 for one child ($105 for two or more children) for families with incomes above this level. Co-payments for services are also assessed on a sliding scale.

Population served. In FY 2012-13, CHP+ is projected to provide coverage to 67,542 children and 1,360 pregnant women. The average estimated per capita costs are $2,210 per year for children and $15,818 per year for pregnant women.

Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services

Medicaid Mental Health Program

Overview. The Department of Health Care Policy and Financing administers mental health services for Medicaid enrollees. These services are primarily delivered through contracts with five Behavioral Health Organizations (BHOs) that serve a set geographic area through a managed care model. Budget. For every dollar Colorado spends on Medicaid, the federal government contributes about one dollar. The cash funds are transfers of Amendment 35 and Hospital Provider Fee moneys. Each BHO is paid a contracted rate to serve persons in its service area who are eligible for Medicaid mental health services. For mental health services outside the scope of the BHOs, Medicaid also pays for mental health services on a fee-for-service basis.
