Boards and Commissions

To my fellow Coloradans:

In order to create a Colorado for all, we want to ensure people have the opportunity to make their voices heard - no matter where they live. Boards and commissions are a critically important way for Coloradans to engage in their state government and help improve their communities. We rely on the expertise of people across our state to serve on our more than 300 boards and commissions, and want them to reflect Colorado's rich, diverse population. Our office is always looking to find people who are interested in helping us create a Colorado where everyone can thrive.

The Governor's Office of Boards and Commissions brings people together from all corners of the state to make government work better for all of us. From the snow-capped peaks of the Western Slope to the rich fields of the Eastern Plains and everywhere in between, more than 2,200 Coloradans, are working tirelessly behind the scenes to tackle the important issues we face, and we'd love for you to join them.

To join the team, and serve on one of our boards or commissions, please fill out an application online at www.colorado.gov/governor/boards-commissions. Although each board or commission may have specific requirements for serving, we will make every effort to ensure that all voices are heard.

For those who have served or are serving, we sincerely thank you. For those who are willing and interested, please apply. With your help, we know we can make Colorado an even better place to work and live.

Kind Regards,

Governor Jared Polis

Number of members: 10 Members on each of the 23 commissions (3 Appointed by Governor on each commission)

Length of Terms: 4 years

Pay/Compensation: Necessary Expenses

Frequency of meetings: As needed

Contact: Office of Judicial Performance Evaluation

Commissions on Judicial Performance were created in 1988 by the Colorado General Assembly to provide fair, responsible and constructive evaluations of trial and appellate judges and justices. The evaluations enable voters to make informed decisions in judicial retention elections, and also provide judges with information that can be used to improve their professional skills.

The State Commission on Judicial Performance developed evaluation techniques for district and county judges, justices of the Supreme Court, and judges of the court of appeals. According to statute, those criteria include the following: integrity, legal knowledge, communication skills, judicial temperament, administrative performance, and service to the legal profession and the public.

Local district commissions review the district and county judges in their respective districts. The trial judges' evaluations are developed through survey questionnaires completed by a random sample of persons who have appeared in court before the judge: attorneys (including prosecutors, public defenders, and private attorneys), jurors, litigants, law enforcement personnel, employees of the court, court interpreters, employees of probation offices, employees of local departments of social services, victims of crime, and appellate judges. In addition, commissions consider a self-evaluation completed by the judge, courtroom observations, review of decisions, review of judge statistics such as relevant docket and sentencing statistics, and a personal interview with the judge. The State Commission reviews the Supreme Court justices and court of appeals judges. The evaluation of the justices of the Colorado Supreme Court and the judges of the Colorado Court of Appeals is the product of survey results from attorneys (including prosecutors, public defenders, and private attorneys), employees of the court (including law clerks and staff attorneys), other appellate judges, and district judges; a self-evaluation completed by the justice or judge; courtroom observations; review of opinions; review of judge statistics; and a personal interview with the justice or judge. Each evaluation includes a narrative with the recommendation stated as "retain," "do not retain," or "no opinion."

There is one commission in each of the 22 judicial districts and one state commission. The Chief Justice, the Governor, the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House appoint state and local commission members to four-year terms. Each commission is a ten-member body comprised of four attorneys and six non-attorneys.
