To my fellow Coloradans:

In order to create a Colorado for all, we want to ensure people have the opportunity to make their voices heard - no matter where they live. Boards and commissions are a critically important way for Coloradans to engage in their state government and help improve their communities. We rely on the expertise of people across our state to serve on our more than 300 boards and commissions, and want them to reflect Colorado's rich, diverse population. Our office is always looking to find people who are interested in helping us create a Colorado where everyone can thrive.

The Governor's Office of Boards and Commissions brings people together from all corners of the state to make government work better for all of us. From the snow-capped peaks of the Western Slope to the rich fields of the Eastern Plains and everywhere in between, more than 2,200 Coloradans, are working tirelessly behind the scenes to tackle the important issues we face, and we'd love for you to join them.

To join the team, and serve on one of our boards or commissions, please fill out an application online at www.colorado.gov/governor/boards-commissions. Although each board or commission may have specific requirements for serving, we will make every effort to ensure that all voices are heard.

For those who have served or are serving, we sincerely thank you. For those who are willing and interested, please apply. With your help, we know we can make Colorado an even better place to work and live.

Kind Regards,

There is a judicial district nominating commission for each of Colorado's 22 judicial districts that selects nominees for district and county judicial vacancies. Each district nominating commission is chaired by a justice of the Supreme Court, who is a non-voting member of the commission.

Each judicial district nominating commission consists of seven citizens residing in that judicial district. No more than four members can be from the same political party, and there must be at least one voting member from each county in the district. In all districts with populations of more than 35,000, the voting members consist of three people admitted to practice law in Colorado and four people not admitted to practice law in Colorado. In judicial districts with populations under 35,000, at least four voting members are people not admitted to practice law in Colorado. It is determined by majority vote of the governor, attorney general and chief justice how many, if any, of the remaining three members will be persons admitted to practice law in Colorado.

Commission members serve six-year terms. Non-lawyers, who are the majority of every nominating commission, are appointed by the Governor. Lawyer members are appointed by joint action of the Governor, Attorney General, and Chief Justice.

The Supreme Court Nominating Commission recommends candidates to serve as judges for the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals. The chief justice of the Supreme Court chairs the commission and is a non-voting member. This commission includes one citizen admitted to practice law in Colorado and one citizen not admitted to practice law residing in each of the state's seven congressional districts, and one additional citizen not admitted to practice law in Colorado.
