

Together, We Are Colorado

The 2022–2023 fiscal year included a number of special moments for History Colorado which helped us remember how powerful it is to be a part of our beloved state, how important history is to building a beautiful and just future, and how incredible it is to do this work with all of you.

First among these was that after ten years of relationship-building and co-creation, we opened an exhibition on the Sand Creek Massacre in November 2022. Created in consultation with the Northern Chevenne, Northern Arapaho, and Chevenne and Arapaho Tribes, The Sand Creek Massacre: The Betraval that Changed Cheyenne and Arapaho People Forever exhibition details the history of the deadliest day in Colorado's history as told by the voices of descendants. This award-winning exhibition also spotlights the living cultures of these distinct Tribal nations, bound together forever by the tragedy at Sand Creek, and their persistence in preserving the memory of the massacre's victims.

In February of 2023, the History Colorado Center partnered with the National Archives and Records Administration in Washington, DC to display one of the most transformative documents in the history of North America: The Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo. Signed in 1848, this treaty ended the Mexican-American War; set the stage for the westward expansion of the United States by shifting the political border south from the Arkansas River to the Rio Grande and west to the Pacific Coast of California; and transformed the citizenship, rights, and property claims of the Mexican nationals residing in the region. Artifacts like the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo serve as tangible witnesses to the historical events that still shape our world today. They enable us to make meaning of our past in ways that inform our present and build our future. It was an honor to display and interpret this object.

Over the 2022–2023 fiscal year, History Colorado was also acknowledged widely for pushing the boundaries of how history museums can present the past and engage directly in communities. In March 2023, History Colorado's Fort Garland Museum & Cultural Center was among fifteen museum finalists for the 2023 National Medal for Museum and Library Service for the staff's work in creating nationally notable exhibitions and programs, meeting community needs, and better representing the rich and diverse history of the San Luis Valley. This honor distinguished Fort Garland as one of the most innovative cultural centers in the nation. In May 2023, Denver hosted the annual conference for the American Alliance of Museums and History Colorado facilitated a number of panel discussions, keynote presentations, and drew national attention for our innovative work and dedicated staff who make it all possible.

History Colorado is a people-driven, history-centered organization striving to build a better future by highlighting the stories of our past. History is a very human endeavor.

Our work reminds us of our common humanity and our commitment to each other. In this current moment, the undeniable relevance of history in our world has become so very clear. We are so grateful to all of you who have been alongside us as we have risen to the challenges of our times and we are honored to continue this important work together.

Mission Statement

History Colorado creates a better future for Colorado by inspiring wonder in our past

At History Colorado, we believe in making Colorado's history accessible and in creating opportunities that connect people to Colorado and our past to cultivate an informed future. We are Colorado!

Established in 1879, History Colorado is a 501(c)3 charitable organization and an agency of the State of Colorado under the Department of Higher Education. We are the trusted leader in helping people understand what it means to be a Coloradan—by sharing our powerful stories, honoring our state's treasured memories, and creating vibrant communities.

Engagement

July 2022-June 2023

Total Engagement 504,872 in our programs and visits to our museums and historic sites.

Land Acknowledgement

We acknowledge that the land currently known as Colorado has been the traditional homelands of Indigenous peoples since time immemorial. We are grateful to work in partnership with the fifty-one sovereign nations who continue to call this land home. Together, we plan exhibits; collect, preserve, and interpret artifacts; do archaeological work; tell the stories of Colorado's original peoples in our publications; and create educational programs to share the history of Colorado.

SHARING — AND PRESERVING — LOCAL MEMORIES

The Dry (above), a mostly Black homestead on the semi-arid plains of Otero County was featured in a new exhibition at the History Colorado Center in Denver. Through the careful keeping of photographs and stories, the women preserved the memories of a close-knit agricultural community that starkly contrasted racially segregated America. Gathered by History Colorado's Associate Curator of Black History and Cultural Heritage, the exhibit tells the story of four generations of women, the first of which established The Dry with the help of the Enlarged Homestead Act.

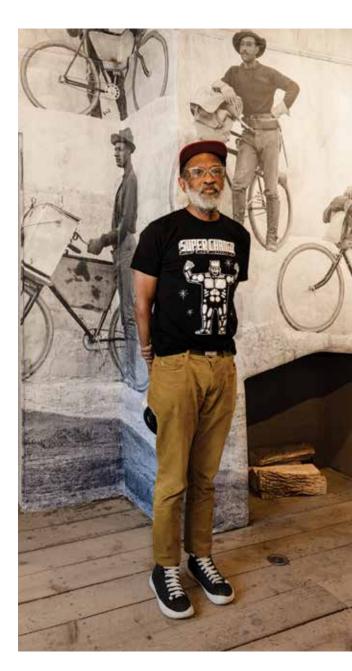

Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo

Four pages of the treaty that ended the Mexican-American War and set the stage for Colorado's statehood were on display in the Borderlands of Southern Colorado from February through May of 2023. History Colorado worked closely with the National Archives and Records Administration in Washington, DC, to meet temperature and humidity control requirements aimed at allowing unobstructed viewing while protecting the precious historic artifact.

The Sand Creek Massacre: The Betrayal that Changed Cheyenne and Arapaho People Forever

The Sand Creek Massacre was the deadliest day in Colorado history, and it would forever change our state. On November 29, 1864, the US. army attacked a combined camp of mostly women, children, and elders of the Cheyenne and Arapaho Tribes on Big Sandy Creek in southeastern Colorado. The soldiers murdered more than 230 peaceful people. In a new exhibition that opened November 19, 2022, History Colorado launched a new exhibition telling the massacre's story from the perspective of massacre survivors' descendants. The exhibit is the result of a ten-year partnership process and was made in deep consultation with representatives from the Chevenne and Arapaho Tribes. Each exhibition element was vetted and approved by Tribal representatives to ensure that the display respects the memories of the victims. Audio guides for the exhibit are available in four languages: Arapaho, Cheyenne, English, and Spanish.

ROSENBERRY LECTURE PANEL

Alexa Roberts, chairperson of the Sand Creek Massacre Foundation, and Dr. Ari Kelman, author of A Misplaced Massacre: Struggling Over the Memory of Sand Creek, joined representatives from the Cheyenne and Arapaho tribes involved in the effort to create the Sand Creek Massacre National Historic Site. They discussed their experiences searching for the site and the ways the generational trauma of Sand Creek is still very much living history.

K-12 Education

Hands-On History

Colorado has the largest number of school districts in the nation with four-day school weeks. Many of these districts are in rural communities that don't have adequate access to child-care. So Hands-On History's fifth-day programming (as well as camps during school breaks) meets a tangible need for working families around the State. Substantial tuition assistance ensures equity of access regardless of circumstance.

Fiscal Year 2023 saw an expansion of support to History Colorado museums for Hands-On History: increasing training of education teams, developing Hands-On History budgets to add staff and interns, and setting up an online registration tool to make signing up for the program easier for both families and staff. In December 2022. Fort Garland, Trinidad, and Pueblo received funding from the Southern Colorado Community Foundation to support the Teen Museum Corps program. Those funds were used to provide $200 stipends to teens volunteering with Hands-On History. In January 2023, Fort Garland launched its Hands-On History Friday classes with twelve weeks of programming. In Summer 2023, six to eight weeks of Hands-On History summer camps were offered at five different locations, ultimately serving 300 students statewide, at approximately 34,000 contact hours, and 39 percent receiving tuition assistance.

Field trips began returning pre-pandemic numbers in 2023. Field Trip Attendees: 32,000 statewide

10th Mountain Division Artifact Kit

We're excited to announce that History Colorado's newest artifact kit centers on the incredible story of the 10th Mountain Division! Created in 1941 the 10th trained at Camp Hale, about thirty miles south of Vail, and put their skills to use during the Italian campaign in World War II. The kit comprises of fourteen artifacts from the division, including laminated photographs, letter excerpts, maps, and lesson plans for fourth grade through high school.

Life-Long Learning

Bold Women. Change History.

The third season of Bold Women. Change History. kicked off in February 2023, and welcomed a variety of speakers — scholars, authors, and history-makers — who illuminated the inspirational contributions of women in Colorado and beyond. From WNBA coach Becky Hammon who discussed the impact of Title IX over the last fifty years, to Navajo/Diné quilter and activist storyteller Susan Hudson whose quilts tell stories of her ancestors' experiences of the Long Walk and the Missing, Murdered, and Indigenous Women, to Lisa Sasaki who is leading the effort for the opening of the Smithsonian American Women's History Museum — Bold Women. Change History. speakers shared a breadth of experience and insight. Only twenty-five percent of attendees were History Colorado members, which shows the events effectively reach beyond the museum's typical audience into the broader community.

Rosenberry Lecture Series

In its 2022–2023 season, the Rosenberry Lecture Series brought speakers from around the state and the country to shed light on Colorado history. The multidisciplinary series covered Black homesteader communities, public lands, sex work in the nineteenth-century American West, Colorado barbecue traditions, and more! Highlight guests included Jorge Zamanillo, the founding director of the Smithsonian National Museum of the American Latino, and Adrian Miller, a James Beard award-winning author and culinary historian.

Historic Preservation & State Historical Fund

Perks of Historic Preservation

The Office of Archaeology and Historic Preservation continues to spread the word about Colorado's preservation tax credits to owners and developers of historic properties all over the state. Of the forty-five new projects that were awarded tax credits in fiscal year 2023, 27 are located in rural communities—a significant increase compared to the previous two years. In addition to preserving and restoring historic buildings, these projects meet local needs for community gathering places, business offices, and housing.

Un-Schooled

Originally established in 1909, the Calkins School has had multiple careers: as Cortez High School, administrative offices, and then a vacant building starting in 2008. With the help of preservation tax credits and a State Historical Fund grant, the site was completely renovated and restored into a combination office space, community gathering place, and affordable housing, while maintaining the building's historical integrity.

SHF total grants: $821,912 State and Federal Historic Tax Credits: $1,781,367

Re-Activated

Deemed unsafe for continued use in 2008, the McGinnis Gym in Buena Vista sat vacant until Watershed NP, Inc., purchased the building in 2022. Watershed received tax credits, a State Historic Fund grant, and funding from the Environmental Protections Agency (EPA) to complete a long list of repairs. Renovations included rehabbing the interior to make the gym accessible to the community. The facility supports the Boys & Girls Club, local students, arts and theater groups, and a pickleball league.

Preservation for a New Day

The State Historical Fund (SHF) fosters accessible preservation funding in historically marginalized communities. More than mere structures, historic sites embody culture, tradition, and identity. Preserving diverse historic places supports History Colorado's overall commitment to capturing the diverse stories that shape our state. SHF supports projects contributing to economic growth, addressing climate change, and revitalizing communities. Through multifaceted grantmaking, SHF not only preserves the past, but actively contributes to a vibrant, equitable, and economically thriving future for Colorado.

Volunteer Support

As a certified Service Enterprise CERTIFIED Organization, History Colorado SERVICE ENTERPRISE collaborates closely with volunteers across the organization to fulfill its mission. In fiscal year 2023, volunteers assisted in analyzing artifacts, digitizing records, hosting special events, and facilitating field trips among many other things. The work volunteers do behind the scenes enhances the organization's work in communities throughout Colorado, while providing access to the field of history to young people (and more than twenty percent of our volunteers were age twenty or younger).

In fiscal year 2023, 1,133 volunteers served across all of History Colorado's museums, contributing a total of 38,703.78 service hours—amounting to an economic impact of $1,291,595.90.

Museum of Memory

The Museum of Memory is one of History Colorado's public history initiatives working most closely with Colorado residents in diverse communities across the state to co-author placebased history. Ongoing projects are run out of El Pueblo History Museum, Fort Garland Museum & Cultural Center, and the History Colorado Center, with staff and fellows hosting workshops to gather oral histories, photos, and objects that participants would like to donate or loan to the museums.

Fort Collins Hispanic Beetworker "Betabeloros" Memory Project

The Hispanic Beetworker Project emerged from a collaboration with Betty Aragon-Mitotes, founder of Mujeres de Colores. As the project took shape, participants built consensus around a mural called "Para Mi Familia," by Armando Silva, an artist from Greeley, Colorado, who has deep connection to Hispanic culture and traditions. Outside of Los Tarascos Mexican Family Restaurant in downtown Fort Collins, the mural portrays Hispanic "Betabeleros" (beetworkers) from the 1910s to the 1940s, and encapsulates a communal sense of pride, resilience, and the enduring work ethic of those striving to provide for their families. The mural was informed by a series of memory-gathering workshops facilitated by History Colorado in Fort Collins in 2023. The project endeavors to give voice to previously unheard stories, contributing to a more comprehensive narrative of Colorado's rich history.

Poetry of the Past

State Historian Jared Orsi teamed up with poet Jodie Hollander to host poetry workshops at museums across the state. Each workshop kicked off with a presentation on Colorado history, from Indigenous enslavement in southern Colorado to the labor struggle at Ludlow, followed by instruction on the basics of poetry writing and time for attendees to write. Attendees could then share their poems, with the opportunity for the compositions to be added to exhibits or posted on social media. The workshops aimed to draw new audiences into museums and extend the experience of exhibits through creativity.

Trinidad History Museum Installs Children of Ludlow Exhibit

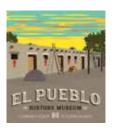

The award-winning exhibit, originally part of the statewide centennial commemoration of the Ludlow Massacre, examines the Colorado Coalfield Strike and the massacre through the eyes of more than 9,000 children who endured the strike. The opening of the exhibit in Bloom Mansion was accompanied by a book signing by Dr. Fawn-Amber Montoya, co-editor of Communities of Ludlow, and one of State Historian Jared Orsi's poetry workshops.

Fort Garland's Fresh Look at buffalo soldiers

History, place, and fine art intersect in buffalo soldiers: reVision, an exhibit that examines the complicated legacy of the all-Black Army regiments established in 1866. These regiments, including the 9th Cavalry which was stationed at Fort Garland from 1875 to 1879, played an important role in American westward expansion and the displacement of Indigenous peoples. The exhibit uses prints and poetry, among other mediums, to trace and consider the history of buffalo soldiers.

Collections

Collections & Curation Work to Reflect Colorado's Rich, Diverse Past

Over the past few years, the Colorado Collection has been moving toward a framework based on key themes in Colorado history. This approach reflects how History Colorado does the work of history keeping, shares powerful stories, and honors numerous voices. To support this thematic approach, the curatorial team expanded in Fiscal Year 2023 with two new positions: Associate Curator of Textiles & Clothing and Assistant Curator of Indigenous Culture & Heritage.

11,000 Acquired Items
162,970 Items Cataloged and Digitized

History Colorado is currently focused on increasing its collection of materials made and/or used after 1940. This focus involves collaborative collection building efforts and the increased representation of diverse subject matter (including ethnic, social, economic, political, and geographic) that will fill gaps in the permanent collection. History Colorado's collection chronicles stories of innovation, resilience, and community, but also challenges, hardship, and division. These stories showcase history's complexity, are multifaceted, and represent the diverse voices and experiences of all Coloradans, whether their families have resided here for generations or have recently made Colorado home.

John Fielder's Colorado Collection

History Colorado is now the proud steward of John Fielder's Colorado Collection, an assortment of more than 6,000 photographs immortalizing the landscapes of nearly every county in the state. This collection represents Fielder's life work and was distilled from the more than 200,000 Fielder photographs taken over the last 50 years. John donated the collection to the people of his state in January 2023, and the collection was digitized and cataloged by History Colorado, making it easily accessible and searchable for all.

Research Center Refresh

The Stephen H. Hart Research Center was redesigned and updated to be more welcoming to visitors. The new layout features activity stations, a selfie station with interactive props, a "Map It" area exploring 100-year-old Denver maps, and a diorama of downtown Denver. History Colorado also formalized a Research Center field trip add-on that K-12 schools and universities can book for a unique experience working with primary sources and learning research strategies. Students can also explore museum collections and get a behind-the-scenes look at how History Colorado cares for its vast collection.

The Publications department at History Colorado is proud to announce we became the new custodians of the Colorado Encyclopedia in 2023! It's a wide-angle reference source Coloradans can rely on for factual historical information about the Centennial State and beyond. Unforgetting Stories

The fourth season of History Colorado's critically acclaimed podcast Lost Highways: Dispatches from the Shadows of the Rocky Mountains reached listeners' ears in 2023. In its third consecutive year of funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the podcast told stories of real-life characters as varied as Cathay Williams the buffalo soldier and Winfield Scott Stratton, the first millionaire from the Cripple Creek gold boom. Listeners went inside the Cheyenne Mountain Complex, explored the mysteries of Mesa Verde, and wrangled the mythologies of the wild horse.
