

Colorado Council on the Arts FY 2002-03 Annual Report

The arts strengthen Colorado. They contribute to the quality of life that Coloradoans so enjoy. They promote creativity, encourage community involvement, offer an antidote to the challenges of growth, and define and preserve Colorado's varied cultural life. The arts are vital source of economic development in communities large and small. They attract high-quality artist-entrepreneurs, generate revenue statewide, and promote rural economic development.

Since 1967, the Council on the Arts has invested public funds (state funds through an annual appropriation from the Colorado General Assembly and federal funds from the National Endowment for the Arts) and a small amount of privately donated funds, to stimulate arts development statewide, to assist and encourage artists and arts organizations, and to help make the arts more accessible to the people of Colorado.

During 2002-03, the CCA awarded $740,050 through 191 grants, supporting arts activities in 62 counties of the state and benefiting over two million individuals. Grants supported folk arts celebrations, professional development services, activities increasing public engagement and community building, and collaborations between schools, artists and arts organizations.

CCA promoted public awareness and appreciation of outstanding artistic accomplishments through our statewide program of the Artist Fellowships. Fifteen awards of $5,000 each were given to individual creative artists who demonstrated excellence in three-dimensional visual art and creative nonfiction were given in 2002-03.

CCA services promoted local arts initiatives throughout Colorado. We supported demonstration projects in arts education throughout our statewide program of the Arts Learning Network, which is identifying the best practices in arts education of eight arts organizations and their school or school district partners. CCA enhanced learning in eight underserved schools in inner-city urban and rural communities through our innovative Online Poetry Project, which unities teacher professional development, poet residencies and online technology. Over 36 consultations were provided by our Peer Advisory Network. CCA supported three regional folklorists to enhance cultural heritage tourism programs and support Colorado's traditional folk artists and organizations.

CCA created more humane and artistically stimulating spaces in state buildings by administering Colorado's one percent for art program. In 2002-03, due to declining state revenues, new projects were suspended and funds returned to the state. However, staff oversaw completion of 17 art projects which were already in progress. Commissioned sculptures, paintings and mixed-media installations works were added to the state's collection.

The thirty-sixth anniversary year of the Colorado Council on the Arts has been one of intense work and creativity, meeting many challenges while still producing tangible results and potential for future progress.

COUNCIL MEMBERS

The Colorado Council on the Arts consists of an eleven-member board, including the chairman, appointed by the Governor. Ten members are appointed for three-year terms (renewable once), and the chairman serves at the discretion of the Governor, but no longer than six consecutive years. State statute stipulates that council members shall be broadly representative of the major fields of the arts, private citizens who are widely known for their competence, experience or connections with the arts, and shall be knowledgeable of community and state standards.

GRANTS

The Colorado Council on the Arts invests in the cultural development of arts activities through annual competitive grant programs that broadly distribute state and federal funds. During 2002-03, the CCA awarded 191 grants, totaling $740,050 and supporting art activities in 62 counties of the state. These grants benefited over two million individuals through four grant programs: Grants to Artists and Organizations, Technical Assistance grants, Folk Arts Mini Grants, and the Peer Assistance Network. Each dollar awarded by CCA leveraged $10 more from other sources to support: folk arts activities' active collaborations between schools and artists; arts organizations and communities; professional development activities for artists and arts organizations; and increased public engagement and community building through the arts.

Grants to Artists & Organizations

The Colorado Council on the Arts promotes broad participation in and access to the arts for all Coloradoans and provides access to limited state and federal funds through the Grants to Artists and Organizations (GAO) category.

With last year's line-item veto of the CCA's Programs/Scientific and Cultural Facilities District line from the state appropriations bill, $718,449 in General Funds was eliminated. Consequently, CCA's authority to fund organizations residing within the Denver Metro area (reflected by the Scientific and Cultural Facilities District (SCFD) seven-county area) in our primary grant category was also removed. CCA had received 111 applications requesting $1,669,909 from artists and arts organizations from this geographic area. Since funds for that region were eliminated prior to the August panel meetings, but after applications had been received, we notified applicants that their proposal would not be reviewed and returned their support materials.

In the course of FY 02-03, the precarious financial situation in the state required further rescissions of general funds. The CCA returned a combined total of $225,665 in general funds to the state. Artists and organizations which were to receive funding in the GAO category received notice of a 10% decrease in their approved funding level due to the rescissions which precipitously dropped funding levels in this grant category (where awards are released half-way through the fiscal year).

The Council was able to award 96 grants totaling $698,600 to artists and organizations located in 28 Greater Colorado counties. This contrasts to 156 awards made the year previously, totaling $1,376,000 and reaching 38 counties throughout Colorado.

FY 2002-03 GAO awards were made to advance the following CCA objectives:

- Increased public engagement in the arts
- Community building through the arts
- Folk/traditional arts
- Collaborations between schools (preK-12) and artists or arts organizations
- Professional development services for artists and arts organizations

From Greater Colorado, CCA received 118 applications, requesting $1,449,104. CCA recognized four distinct regions, each with different resource bases, arts infrastructures, and audience expectations. Awards were made in the following regions:

Front Range communities of Greeley, Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Fort Collins are cities of similar population, with a major university offering strong arts events, with a major public arts center, and roughly similar economies and numbers of arts organizations. CCA awarded $271,900 to 37 proposals from these communities.

Mountain Resort communities are those with international-caliber arts events, sophisticated arts audiences, and a seasonal economy dependent upon second homeowners for their tax base. CCA awarded $193,150 to 29 proposals from resort towns.

Western Agricultural/Mining communities generally have stable year-round populations. Their economies are not primarily dependent upon tourism. Arts organization are typically all-volunteer, with a small cash budget, and their requests are usually small. CCA awarded $143,450 to 21 proposals from these communities.

Eastern communities are generally small, often in sparsely populated counties. Almost without exception their arts organizations have no paid staff, and since many counties are losing population, their resource base is small and dwindling. CCA awarded $53,500 to 5 proposals from these rural communities.

Southern communities are primarily in the San Luis Valley, a region comparable to Appalachia in poverty level/resource base, but with a rich cultural heritage. CCA is aware of only 2-3 staffed arts organizations in this region. Here CCA awarded $36,600 to 4 proposals.

Technical Assistance Grants

Technical Assistance (TA) grants provide up to $500 in support for underserved rural counties and inner-city populations. This year, Technical Assistance grants were used to support projects in other counties where no GAO grants were awarded. In FY 2002-03, CCA awarded 36 Technical Assistance grants totaling $16,400.

Additionally, $2,500 in "Tumblewords" funds, providing literary experiences for underserved populations, and $3,900 in support of TourWest presenter training, both from the Western States Arts Federation (WESTAF) were awarded through this category. In FY 2002-03, the CCA received two private donations totaling $5,500, which were designated by the donors to provide technical assistance to either a specific folklore activity or in support of a statewide service organization. Private and WESTAF funded technical assistance grants which supported organizations within the Denver Metro area.

Examples of Technical Assistance grants include:

- Building infrastructure through an award to the Grand Lake Area Arts Council for assistance in developing an appropriate bookkeeping system

- Expanding arts offerings in a community with an award to the Lamar Public Library to include artists in their library outreach series
- Bringing art to a non-traditional art setting through an award to La Clinica in Huerfano County which united young art students and medical professionals together in creating an art gallery for patients

Folk Arts Mini Grants

Regional folklorists recommended 21 small awards to address CCA's statutory mandate to "encourage public interest in the cultural heritage of our state." During 2002-03, folklorists used Folk Arts Mini Grants (MG) totaling $9,950 to support the development of cultural heritage tourism in their regions of the state.

For example, an award was made to the Town of Ignacio to collect the oral histories from the multi-cultural population which settled the Ignacio community including representatives from the Southern Ute Tribe, Hispanics and Anglos. Another award was made to the Kit Carson Historical Society to participate in the Colorado Wyoming Museum Association Conference to obtain information on preserving their perishable collection.

Peer Assistance Network

The Peer Assistance Network (PAN) enables staff and board members of non-profit arts organizations to help each other and artists in their communities by exchanging advice between peers to who manage similar programs and projects in other areas of the state. During FY 2002-03, 36 Peer Assistance consultations were conducted, with grant funds totaling $13,100.

Peer Assistance Network consultations can cover a breadth of services, such as: Dennis Schiel of Idalia working with the Limon Heritage Museum on assessing their readiness for an endowment; Alison Moore of Boulder working with an artists group in Grand Lake on organizational implications of forming a co-op; and Nancy Kramer of Steamboat Springs working with the Town of Walden to help them develop a performing arts presentation program within the framework of their cultural plan.

Counties Served

The Technical Assistance grants, Folk Arts Mini Grants, and the Peer Assistance Network reached into an additional 33 counties of Greater Colorado.

All grant award programs (GAO, TA, MG, PAN) reached a 62 of Colorado's 64 counties.

RECOGNITION AWARDS

The Colorado Council on the Arts promotes awareness and appreciation of outstanding artistic accomplishments in classical, contemporary, traditional and community art forms and distinguished service to our state's cultural community through our Recognition Program.

Governor's Awards for Excellence in the Arts

The Governor's Awards for Excellence in the Arts honor Colorado individuals or organizations for their outstanding service through arts leadership, arts education or philanthropy.

Due to budget reductions in FY 2002-03, the Governor's Awards for Excellence in the Arts awards were cancelled.

Artists Fellowships

The Colorado Council on the Arts is the only entity in the state providing recognition and financial awards to outstanding Colorado artists. Artist Fellowship awards, cash awards of $5,000 each, acknowledge artistic integrity and quality among Colorado's artists and promote public awareness of their work.

Artist Fellowships are awarded on a rotating cycle of categories. In FY 2002-03 CCA awarded 15 Artist Fellowships in 3-D Visual Art and Creative Nonfiction. CCA had planned to also award fellowships in New Genre and Music Composition. However, due to CCA's reduced funding situation, panels were not convened for New Genre and Music Composition.

Artist Fellowships are awarded based on the artistic quality of the applicant sample as determined by discipline-based panels composed of in-state and out-of-state experts. Their review primarily considers artistic quality of sample work completed within the last three years. Panelists may consider an artist's active involvement in an artistic discipline as demonstrated through recent exhibitions, performance, publications or other activities.

Council members approved panels' recommendations to award fellowships to the following artists:

3-D Visual Arts: Rokko Aoyama, Ft. Collins; Megan Baumer, Lakewood; Michael Brohman, Denver; Virginia Folkestad, Castle Rock; Tsehai Johnson, Denver; Patrick Marold, Wheat Ridge; Mia Fetterman-Mulvey, Denver; Shan Wells, Durango; Michael Wisner, Snowmass Village

Literature - Creative Nonfiction: Steven Church, Bellevue; Jose Martinez, Boulder; Katherine Niles, Hesperus; Kay Marie Porterfield, Littleton; Douglas Schnitsphan, Boulder; Jonathan Waterman, Marble

Fellowship final report information shows that receiving these awards has enabled artists to create work and to reach new audiences across the state.

The CCA raises the visibility of Fellowship recipients' work through opportunistically partnering with organizations to promote Fellowship recipients. In 2003, the Tattered Cover book store in LoDo hosted a reading in celebration of the creative nonfiction fellowship recipients.

SERVICES TO THE FIELD

The Colorado Council on the Arts, "Services to the Field" promotes local arts initiatives throughout the state through assistance provided by a seven-member staff and extended through alliances with other organizations. While direct funding is often critical to stimulating local efforts, some of CCA's goals suggest that local leaders can be added in other ways: through exposure to the work of projects from other communities, through consultation and training, or through an introduction to new thinking or best practices.

Underserved Initiative: Community Arts Development in Rural Counties is CCA's tactic for focusing limited resources by targeting service to the state's most chronically underserved communities (those with little or no arts infrastructure and a previously limited relationship with the CCA). By focusing staff services and those of our partners on 24 rural counties, CCA strives for long-term community improvement on the community's own terms. The success of this program is reflected in the number of applicants from these areas of the state that now successfully compete for limited funds through CCA's grants programs.

Arts Education

During 2001-02, the Council developed demonstration projects in arts education that stimulate learning and provide a framework for local action. During FY 2002-03, CCA demonstration projects were focused on two initiatives: an arts education learning network and an online poetry project.

Arts Learning Network

In 2002-03, the Arts Learning Network continued the work began in 01-02. Eight arts organizations and their partners school or school district, are creating a body of "best practices" for future dissemination related to delivering arts services to schools through:

- Standards-based programming
- Teacher professional development (aesthetic training)
- Artist training for working within the school environment
- Telecommunications technology

CCA identified the goals of the Arts Learning Network and its partners by convening five regional meetings in 2001-02. Following these meetings and by way of a request for proposals and application review, the CCA identified the following learning network partners, for a five year pilot program:

- Colorado Symphony Association/Jefferson County Schools
- Denver Center for the Performing Arts/Denver Public Schools
- Durango Arts Force/9-R School District/Adams State College
- Kim Robards Dance/Schools in Grand Junction, Crested Butte, Aurora, Highlands Ranch & Lakewood, plus Denver Area Youth Services
- Museum of Outdoor Arts/Englewood, Denver Public and Cherry Creek School Districts

- Sangre de Cristo Art Center/Pueblo School District
- Imagination Celebration/Colorado Springs School District
- Young Audience/Pioneer Charter School, DPS/University of Denver

Due to limited funding in FY 02-03, the CCA was unable to convene the Network, but instead focused on deepening the assessment development work of the Network. This will help assure that future “best practices” have strong assessment tools and solid evaluation processes to carry this body of work throughout the state’s schools and school districts.

Online Poetry Project

The Online Poetry Project is a collaboration between the Colorado Council on the Arts and the University of Colorado’s New Media Center to provide Colorado teachers in underserved communities with professional development opportunities that will assist them in creating standards-based curricula that incorporate a wide range of contemporary poems, telecommunication technologies, and the participation of Colorado poets.

In FY 2002-03, CCA and its partners provided teacher training in contemporary poetry and classroom technology applications for the purpose of developing online instructional units related to the participating teachers’ curriculum. These instructional units included:

- Lesson plans tied to state and district standards in language arts and in other content areas as appropriate
- Examples of specific assignments used to accomplish the objectives of the lesson plans
- Descriptions of instructional strategies, student activities, and plans for integrating a poet-in-residence in the unit, both in the classroom and online
- Resources and materials appropriate to the unit
- Performance testing criteria or a scoring unit

In FY 2002-03, eight teachers representing underserved school districts (Antonito, Montrose and inner-city Denver) and three Colorado poets met during the academic year to develop and implement standards-based curriculum units and conducted online and classroom poet residencies. Over 580 students participated and benefited from the Online Poetry Project. Curriculum units and an online record of the year’s activities and residencies is available on the project’s website, <http://newmedia.colorado.edu/poets9/>

Artist/Organization Development

CCA staff provides consultation and referrals to arts resources on a broad range of topics. Staff members have assisted individual artists and arts organizations in: developing arts programming; developing arts infrastructure in underserved areas of the state; securing federal and private funds to augment state appropriations in support of cultural heritage tourism; and delivering many keynote addresses to numerous civic organizations. In FY 2002-03, 56% of staff time was devoted to providing services (up from 46% in 01-02).

Regional Folklorists

Supported by partnerships with the City of Greeley Museums, Trinidad State Junior College and the Western Colorado Interpretive Association, three regional folklorists-in-residence honor traditional artists and art forms throughout the state. Ronna Lee Sharpe serves as our Western Slope folklorist, Kathi Figgen serves as our Southern Colorado folklorist, and Georgia Weir serves as our Eastern Colorado folklorist. Through programs, grants and technical assistance, they celebrate, present and preserve folk art forms integral to Colorado's character.

During FY 2002-03, folklorists concentrated on Cultural Heritage Tourism, dedicated to exploring existing and potential opportunities for CCA's involvement in and impact on Colorado's cultural heritage tourism activities. A highlight of this program this year was the receipt of a grant from the federal Department of Transportation (funneled through the Colorado Department of Transportation) to work on a statewide Scenic Byways Project. This project will provide cultural tourism aspects as they relate to the state's 24 Scenic and Historic Byways (this project will be completed in FY 03-04). Additionally, folklorists regularly spoke on cultural heritage tourism to such groups and organizations as the Governor's Tourism Conference in Grand Junction and to the Colorado Tourism Office board meeting with the Office of Economic Development.

In FY 02-03, Bea Roeder, who had served as a regional folklorist for the CCA since 1988 and had recently retired, began an important archiving of folklore material collected by state folklorists in documenting Colorado's rich heritage. All organized material was then to be turned over to the Colorado Historical Society. Roeder unexpectedly died just prior to the work being completed; however, Georgia Weir, Eastern Colorado Folklorist, stepped in to complete the work and transfer it to the Colorado Historical Society. The work of archiving will continue throughout the next year as the other regional folklorists begin organizing their collections for preservation and care with the City of Greeley Museums and the Museum of Western Colorado.

Additionally, in FY 02-03, the folklorists updated and revised the "Ties That Bind" resource kits which provide Colorado teachers with help so their students can better meet the history and geography standards adopted by the Colorado Department of Education. Proceeds from the sale of the original printing enabled the improvement of the kit which now includes 13 lesson plans for teachers. Almost a hundred kits have been distributed in the closing months of FY 02-03 and early 03-04, and the demand is such that during FY 03-04, additional kits will be produced for distribution.

Communication

Communication services stimulate the exchange of information and learning between artists, arts organizations and communities throughout Colorado. CCA communicates with constituents and the general public through a newsletter, an interactive website, and annual conferences.

In FY 02-03, CCA planned on producing four quarterly newsletters. Due to budget rescissions, only three were produced. As charged in the strategic plan, the number of physical copies of the newsletter distributed by mail was reduced by 30 percent, while the e-mail distribution of the newsletter increased by approximately 18 percent. CCA's website provides immediate access to agency programs and services. This year the CCA's website average 27,643 "hits" per month. Additional CCA press releases were distributed to 191 mailing addresses (a 9 percent reduction for the start of the year) and to 156 e-mail address (up 15 percent from the start of the year). Due to limited funding, the CCA neither convened any statewide meetings nor produced any additional promotional brochures or publications.

PUBLIC ART

The Colorado Council on the Arts creates more humane and artistically stimulating public spaces in Colorado state buildings and their surrounding communities across the state. CCA implements Colorado's Art in Public Places Act, requiring allocation of one percent of construction costs of new or renovated state-owned buildings for the acquisition of works of art for the project site. These art acquisitions form the state art collection developed and administered by the CCA.

Severe cuts in state construction funds in FY 01-02 resulted in the elimination of the Public Art Director position; thus oversight of appropriations administered in FY 02-03 were shared between existing staff (primarily the agency's two Associate Directors). Without the expertise necessary for administering selection processes or initiating new processes, the CCA suspended activity on six recent appropriations. Rescission actions during FY 02-03 resulted in the cancellations of the suspended six appropriations, with funds being returned to the state prior to any contracting with artists. Associate Directors oversaw the completion of 17 art appropriations for client agencies during 2002-03, compared to 42 in 01-02.

The following commissioned art works were added to the state's public art collection during 2002-03:

- Robert Tully's sculpture "Columns of Light" was installed for the Colorado Community College Campus at Lowry.
- Michael Clapper installed his work "Emergence" in front of Houston Hall at Mesa State College.
- Peak Exhibits installed the lobby/environmental design at the DOP Capital Annex.
- Christopher Weed's steel sculptures were completed at Colorado State University, B-Wing.
- Firefly Studio installed "Newton's Corner", a sculpture for Colorado State University Chemistry/Bio Science building.
- Kristine Smock installed her kinetic horse sculpture, "Horsing Around in Colorado", for the Colorado Historical Society Civic Center.
- Masuyuki Naguse has completed construction of "Confluence" an environmentally-influenced pedestrian walkway for the University of Northern Colorado Ross Hall.
- Antonette Rosato's plaque for Maxwell's work at Colorado State University Engineering Building was cancelled. The plaque was completed by CSU. Final payment was made to CSU.
- Creative Stained Glass installed their work for the entrance lobby of Western State College Taylor Hall.

- Richard Hanson completed the “Art Walk” outdoor exhibition/walkway for Mesa State College Humanities Building.
- Nancy Lovendall installed her stone seating area for the Colorado State Patrol Camp George West.
- Carl Reed has completed his steel and wood Western Portal to Guggenheim Hall at the University of Northern Colorado.
- David Griggs and Scott Parsons have completed their integrated murals, columns and exterior designs at Western State College’s Hurst Hall.
- David Nelson has installed his bronze eagle statue for Pueblo Community College, Fremont Campus.
- Emanuel Martinez has completed his bronze globe nestled in blades of grass for Adams State College, Business and Economic building.
- Patricia Musick completed several multi-media murals for the University of Southern Colorado Math/Life Sciences building.
- Context completed “Reflect/Transmit,” a dichroic glass sculpture for Adams State College Fine Arts building.

2002-2003 AWARDS

Awards are sorted by county, identifying each award recipients, the CCA program through which the award was made, amount of award, and hometown of each recipient. (Counties identified with an asterisk have been targeted by CCA as underserved.)
