This report, which is published annually, with the exception of 2001, is a compilation of employment and wage data from the Colorado ES-202 Program. The information is compiled from reports submitted to the Colorado Department of Labor & Employment by employers subject to unemployment insurance law under the Colorado Employment Security Act. Employment and wage data for civilian federal government employees in Colorado are also included in this report.

Employment and wage information are compiled by county and industry for private business and government. Some data items are not available for public disclosure in accordance with U.S. Department of Labor guidelines. Because every attempt is made to use actual instead of imputed data, this report is not published until seven months after the end of the reporting period to allow for the verification of questionable data and the inclusion of late reports.

Colorado in 2002

Covered employment recorded its worst year ever with a loss of 47,271 jobs in 2002. This loss followed a year that recorded a gain of 14,570 jobs. The annual average gain that occurred in 2001 is misleading. Seasonally adjusted employment grew throughout 2000 and reached its peak around the end of the year. Throughout 2001, seasonally adjusted employment decreased at a slower rate than the increase of 2000. Therefore, the average level of employment in 2001 was greater than the average level of employment in 2000, even though 2001 was a year characterized by continuous job losses. The job losses that started in 2001 continued throughout 2002. For this statistical series to record an annual average gain of one percent in 2003, five thousand jobs would have to be added each month of the year. Based on the early reports for 2003, this seems impossible. The more likely outcome is a loss of about 2 percent in 2003 on an annual average basis.

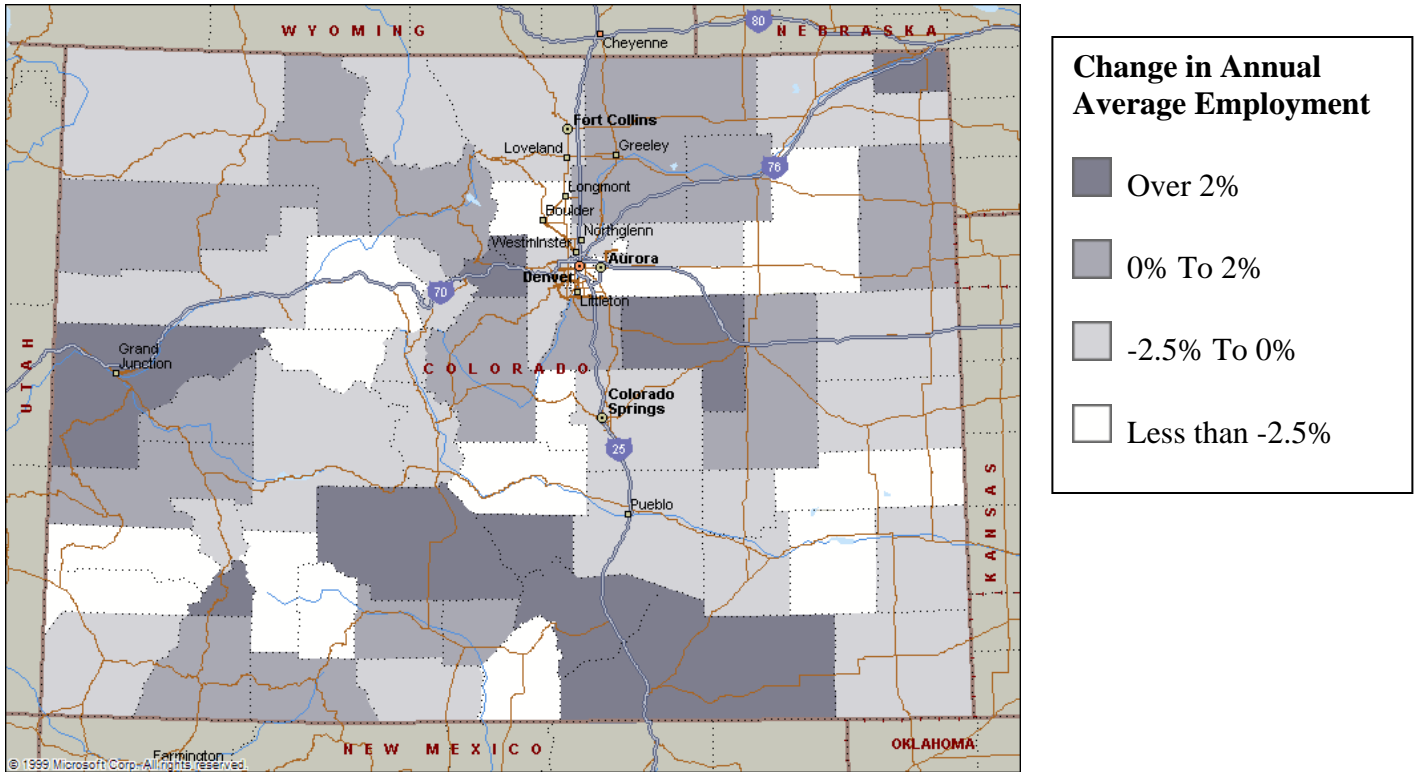

Leading up to the rapidly increasing employment levels during the nineties, Colorado had several competitive advantages in attracting employers. There was an ample supply of available commercial and residential real estate, a high availability of skilled workers and prices that were below the national average. As Colorado grew, these competitive advantages decreased. The recent recession has reversed the trends in real estate and employee availability. A significant decline in overall price levels, particularly in real estate, has not yet occurred.

The downturn in employment is primarily cyclical in nature. Employment driven by business investment was the hardest hit. Employment that is population driven, such as Health care and Educational services, continued to expand. The cyclical downturn is being followed by a significant downturn in the Construction sector just like it was in the eighties. Counties that were not able to attract cyclical industries had very little impact from the downturn.

Colorado added a new county in late 2001. The County of Broomfield was created out of Boulder, Jefferson, Adams and Weld Counties. About eighty percent of the employment that was in the new county was formerly classified in Boulder County. For simplicity sake, the county code changes were made in January of 2002 even though the new county lines took effect in November of 2001. Broomfield was added to the Denver MSA by the Federal Government. Please be advised that over-the-year changes for the 7 counties involved are misleading because of these county code changes.

Job losses were widespread in Colorado with 38 counties experiencing declining employment. Almost half of the 47,317 lost jobs were in Denver County. Technically, Boulder County recorded a greater loss at 28,403. About 20,000 of the decline in Boulder County was because of code changes into Broomfield County. The next biggest job loser was Arapahoe County with a decline of 9,372. Other counties that declined by over a thousand jobs were El Paso at 4,989, Jefferson at 4,385 and Adams at 1,983. Some of the decline in Adams and Jefferson was due to reclassifications into Broomfield.

The only county to add over a thousand jobs was Mesa. Mesa added 1,125 jobs to average 52,039. Accommodation and food services accounted for 502 of the additional jobs. Mesa has grown by 6,825 jobs or 15.1 percent over five years.

The county that added the second most jobs was Weld at 888. Over five years, Weld County has grown by 11,417 jobs or 18.7 percent. Every year, Weld County becomes more of a part of the Denver MSA. It will officially become part of it when the MSA boundaries are redrawn.

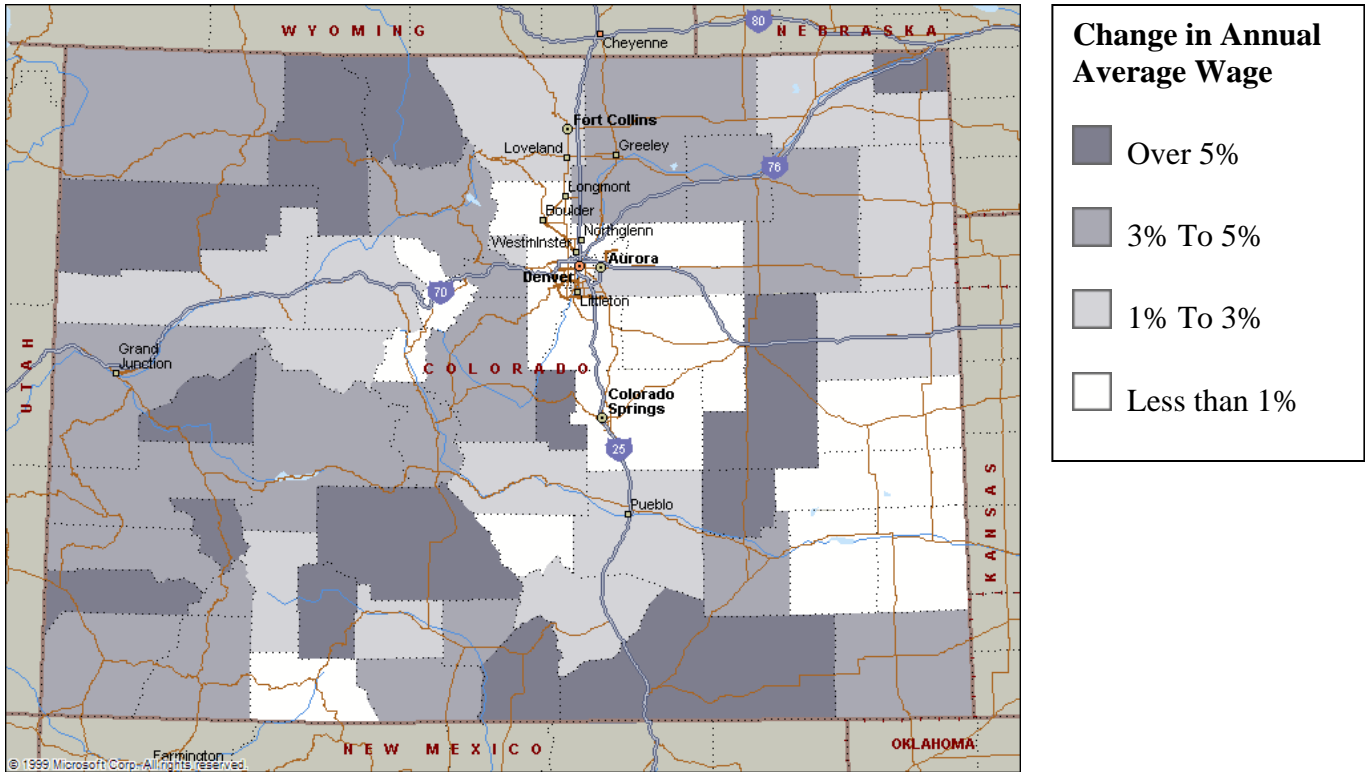

Growth in the rapidly growing counties that are directly south of the Denver MSA slowed considerably. Douglas County added a mere 329 jobs to average 63,592. Over five years, Douglas County has added 26,325 jobs. Elbert County employment increased by 243 jobs or 7.6 percent.

On a percentage basis, the fastest growing county in Colorado in 2002 was Custer at 11 percent. Custer added 96 jobs over the year and 242 over five years.

The Rural Resort workforce development region recorded a loss of 1,875 jobs to average 83,467. The loss was entirely a result of the poor ski season early in the year. By December, the region had an over the year gain of 2,160 jobs. Eagle County employment declined by 914 jobs. Pitkin County employment declined by 482 jobs, and is only 43 jobs higher than it was five years earlier.

The Northwest workforce development region had an increase of 164 jobs to average 28,401. Local government accounted for most of the increase.

The Eastern workforce development region, a.k.a. Big Ten was a job generating machine compared to other parts of the state. The region added 1,236 jobs to average 108,637. Most of the additional jobs were classified in local government.

Average wages increased slightly over the year. The county with the largest decline was Bent with a drop from $26,735 to $24,128. The county that pulled the average down the most was Denver with a decline from $46,134 to $44,603. The decline in Denver was due to losses of higher paying jobs and declines in bonuses and stock options. Three other counties experienced a small decline including Kiowa at ($238), Boulder at ($274) and Custer at ($3). The other 59 counties saw their annual average wage increase.

The county with the largest percentage increase was Dolores at 10.9. Ouray, Jackson, Sedgwick and Routt all recorded increase of over eight percent. Generally speaking, the non-metropolitan counties performed the best. The counties with significant cyclical industries had their averages drawn down by these industries.

On a five year basis, two counties recorded a gain of over $10,000. Boulder increased by $10,878 and Arapahoe increased by $10,463. On a percentage basis, the biggest gainer was Sedgwick County at 38.7 percent.

The county with the highest average annual wage was the new County of Broomfield at $49,176. The new county contains several of the highest paying technology companies. Broomfield acquired this honor despite being home to Flatirons Crossing Mall.

Total wages declined for the first time in 2002. The decline was 2 percent or $1.7 billion. Fifteen counties declined and 49 increased. The relatively rich counties suffered the largest declines.

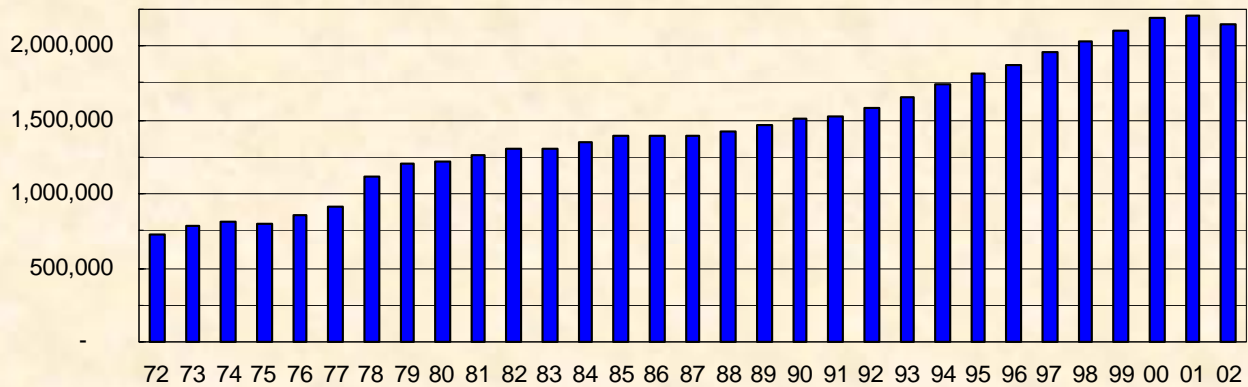

Four counties had a gain of over 10 percent including Las Animas at 11.7, and Custer, Sedgwick and San Juan all at 11.0 percent. The biggest loser was Bent at minus 22.3 percent. Boulder declined by 15.9 percent, but this was because about twenty thousand jobs were reclassified into Broomfield County.

The county with the highest wage total in 2002 was Denver at $19.6 billion. This was despite a decline of $1.7 billion. The only other county to have over $10 billion in covered wages in 2002 was Arapahoe at $12.7 billion.

The largest gains in total wages occurred in the adjacent counties of Larimer and Weld. Larimer County wages increased by $103 million while Weld County added $102 million. These increases were driven by rapidly increasing populations.

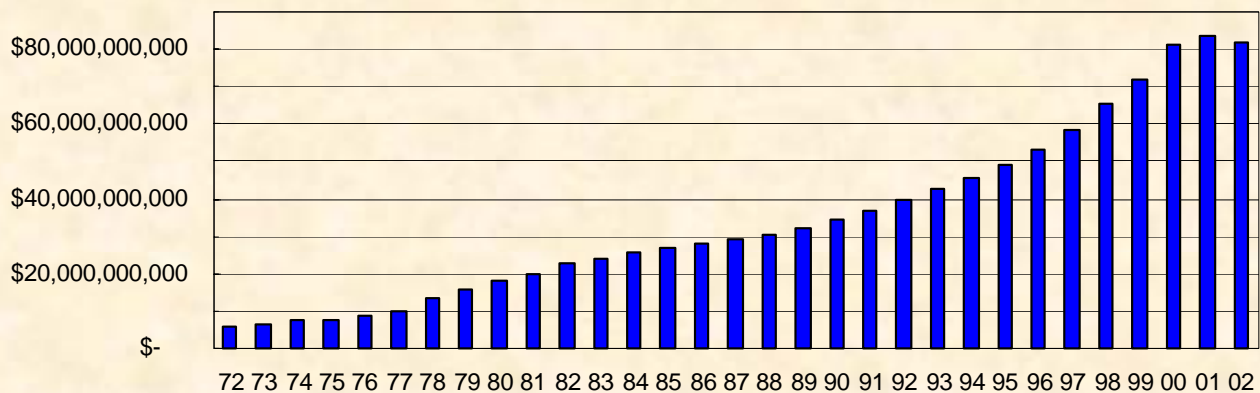

On a five year percentage basis, the biggest gainers were Douglas at 136 percent and Elbert at 119 percent. The counties that had the largest five year total wage increase were Denver at $5.5 billion and Arapahoe at $3.8 billion. The only county to have decline in total wages over five years was Bent with a loss of $8 million.

HISTORY OF COVERED EMPLOYMENT IN COLORADO

Colorado experienced its largest downturn ever in 2002 with an annual average loss of 47,271 jobs. Over the last thirty years, Colorado has only lost annual average employment two other times. In 1986, the state lost 8,921 jobs and in 1975 the state lost 13,882 jobs. The Colorado ES202 series has never reported a loss two years in a row. The employment gain that was reported in 2001 is more of a statistical fluke than a positive statistic. On a seasonally adjusted basis, employment decreased throughout the year in 2001. However, since the decline in 2001 was less steep than the seasonally adjusted increases in 2000, the average employment level increased slightly. The inverse phenomenon would apply in 2003. Since seasonally adjusted employment declined throughout 2002, it would take three percent growth throughout the year to record one percent growth on an annual average basis. The series appeared to be heading downward in early 2003 and annual average employment growth is very unlikely in 2003.

HISTORY OF COVERED WAGES IN COLORADO

Total covered wages declined in Colorado by $1.7 billion in 2002. This is the first time ever that the Colorado ES202 series recorded a decline on an annual average basis. The decline is not exclusively related to there being fewer jobs. Much, if not all, of the decline can be attributed to declining bonuses and stock options that are received by corporate executives. The decline does not appear to be related to declining wage rates. Since inflation was less than in previous years, the decline is not directly comparable over time.

Agriculture, Forestry, Fishing and Hunting

Agriculture, forestry, fishing and hunting employment declined by 235 jobs on an annual average basis. Decreased seasonal hiring related to the drought was the leading cause of the decline. The sector had over the year gains through the first four months of the year. The rest of the year, the sector had over the year losses with August being the worst month with an over the year loss of 860 jobs. The average wage increased by 1.5 percent to $22,684. The number of establishments increased from 1,258 to 1,275.

The leading county in employment for this industry is Weld. Employment in Weld County increased by 84 jobs to 3,288. The only other county to have over a thousand employees in Agriculture, forestry, fishing and hunting is Adams at 1,254. Counties that had over 500 jobs in this sector were Rio Grande at 829, Larimer at 804, Morgan at 678, Yuma at 668, Prowers at 628 and Saguache at 530.

Employment classified under Crop production declined by 120 jobs to 6,826. The annual loss is due to decreased seasonal hiring related to the drought. The average annual wage increased by $89 to $21,912. The leading county in Crop production employment is Weld, which experienced an increase of 124 jobs to average 1,474. The only other county to have over a thousand jobs in Crop production was Adams at 1,108. The county with the next highest employment level was Larimer at 479.

Animal production employment decreased by 72 jobs to average 5,451 in 2002. The average annual wage increased by $572 to $24,609. The leading county in Animal production is Weld with 1,478 jobs. Animal production employment in Weld County was little changed over the year but the average wage increased by $1,263 to $25,289. The county with the second highest number of employees working in Animal production is Prowers with 485. Yuma was a close third at 472.

Covered Forestry and logging jobs are almost nonexistent in Colorado. Employment increased by 7 jobs to average 184 in 2002.

Agriculture and forestry support activities employment decreased by 46 jobs on an annual average basis. The decrease was due to reduced hiring during the summer months. The first three and the last four months of the year had over the year gains while the summer months were down as much as 379 jobs. The leading county in Agriculture and forestry support activities is Rio Grande at 562, an increase of 47 jobs. Second on the list is Weld County with 336 jobs in 2002, a decrease of 35. Third place goes to Saguache County, at 191 jobs.

Note: To be liable for unemployment insurance, and hence to be included in this report, an agricultural employer must pay $20,000 or more in any one quarter of a calendar year, or employs 10 workers for 20 weeks during the year. It is assumed that over half of all agricultural workers are exempt from unemployment insurance.

Mining

Mining employment in Colorado increased by 34 jobs on an annual average basis to 12,879 in 2002. Mining accounted for only one out of every 141 non-government jobs and many of these jobs are not what are commonly thought of as being in Mining. The average wage declined by 13.8 percent to $64,868. This figure is misleading. The average wage declined because a few executives did not receive large bonuses in 2002 like they did in 2001. The number of establishments declined from 959 to 944.

Oil and gas extraction employment continued to rise throughout 2001 and 2002 with only four months recording a decline. The industry added 215 jobs on an annual average basis. Higher prices and the completion of a gas pipeline led to the increase. Over half of all Oil and gas extraction employment is classified in Denver County. The second most jobs were in Weld County with 336. Other counties with over a hundred jobs were Arapahoe at 222, La Plata at 135, and Rio Blanco and Yuma both at 123.

Mining, except oil and gas employment decreased by 99 jobs to average 5,361 in 2002. Coal Mining employment increased by 121 jobs to 2,119 and its average wage increased by 3.8 percent to $59,503.

Metal ore mining employment declined by 68 jobs to average 1,141. County based information on Metal ore mining is generally unavailable due to disclosure restrictions. The Denver MSA had 333 jobs in this industry.

Nonmetallic mineral mining and quarrying employment decreased by 83 jobs to 498. The decline was related to the downturn in Construction.

Support activities for mining employment dropped by 193 jobs to average 1,417. About half of the drop was because of changes in industry codes and not an actual loss. The leading county in this industry is Denver with 1,011 jobs. Second was Weld with 695.

Utilities

Employment classified under Utilities expanded slightly in 2002 with a gain of 127 jobs. The average wage declined by 1.4 percent to $64,300. The number of establishments increased by two to average 316.

The largest industry within Utilities is Electric power distribution. Over the year, the industry added 48 jobs. The average wage increased by 2.6 percent to $64,655.

Natural gas distribution employment increased by 70 jobs. The average wage decreased from $96,802 to $81,860.

Note: Some Utilities are classified under local government and are not included in this synopsis.

Construction

Covered employment classified under Construction declined by 7,101 jobs over the year. This reversed a twelve year trend of employment gains. The previous peak in Construction employment occurred in 1984 and was followed by five consecutive years of declines in which annual average employment declined by a third to 60,138. If this cycle repeats, Construction employment will decline from 167,440 in 2001 to 111,785 in 2006. The average number of establishments increased by 708 to 20,605. The average annual wage increased by $279 to $39,218.

One of the strongest industries within construction is Highway, street, and bridge construction, with an increase of 494 jobs. This increase is primarily related to the T-Rex project on Interstate 25. Employment in this industry within Denver County increased from 472 in 2001 to 906 in 2002. This increase does not fully account for the employment impact from the T-Rex project since much of the work is being done by contractors that are classified under different industries.

Construction of buildings employment declined by 2,274 jobs to 30,334. Nonresidential building construction was particularly hard hit with a loss of 1,588 jobs to 12,156. With the increased availability of houses for sale, rising apartment vacancy rates and high vacancy rates amongst commercial space, these decreases in employment are likely to continue for an extended period of time.

The largest sector within construction is Specialty trade contractors with 108,535 jobs. This is a decline of 3,929 jobs from the previous year. The majority of this decline occurred within Electrical contractors which experienced a decline of 2,315 jobs to average 20,793 in 2002. Plumbing and HVAC contractors' employment declined by 424 jobs to 20,494. Building finishing contractors which include drywallers, painters, flooring contractors and framers experienced a decline of 471 jobs to average 23,692 in 2002.

Note: Construction employment is assigned to the county that the office is in and not the actual worksite. This causes employment statistics to increase in counties that border rapidly growing counties and to under represent the actual employment in the rapidly growing counties.

Manufacturing

Manufacturing employment in Colorado had a devastating year with a loss of 15,614 jobs. The slowing national and world economies in conjuncture with declining construction activity and Colorado becoming a more expensive state contributed to the loss. On a more positive note, the average wage increased by 2.3 percent to $48,657. On average, there were 155 fewer establishments in 2002.

Computer and electronic product manufacturing employment declined every month between March of 2001 and December of 2002. On an annual average basis, the industry lost 7,022 jobs but the annual average wage increased from $66,384 to $69,896. Employment in this industry declined by 2,228 jobs in El Paso County, and 1,270 jobs in Larimer County. Boulder and Broomfield Counties also experienced significant losses.

Food Manufacturing employment declined by 486 jobs in 2002. The drop was largely due to the closing of a plant classified under Cookie and cracker manufacturing. Other declines were related to the drought and the associated processing jobs. One mitigating factor within Food manufacturing was an increase in Meat processed from carcasses which increased by 142 jobs to 1,307. This increase could be related to ranchers selling off their herds because of the drought.

Fabricated metal product manufacturing declined by 1,308 jobs on an annual average basis. The industry did not decline over the course of 2002.

Printing and related support activities employment dropped by 1,177 jobs. The bright spot in this industry is Digital Printing which added 42 jobs to average 312.

Beverage and tobacco product manufacturing declined by 166 jobs and two establishments. Colorado has no Tobacco manufacturing. The number of Breweries declined by 2 to 18 and their associated employment declined by 157 to 3,797. Breweries that are part of a restaurant are not included in this industry. The number of Wineries increased from 10 to 12 with their employment increasing by 15 jobs to 80.

Transportation equipment manufacturing employment declined by 893 jobs. The loss was primarily within Guided missile and space vehicle manufacturing.

Declines within Wood product manufacturing were widespread with the exception of Prefabricated wood building manufacturing which added 114 jobs to average 441. The decline in Wood product manufacturing was related to the slowdown in Construction.

Chemical manufacturing declined by 322 jobs. Nonmetallic mineral product manufacturing declined by 629 jobs to 9,841. Cement and concrete product manufacturing accounted for 234 of the lost jobs. Clay product and refractory manufacturing accounted for 286 more of the loss in Nonmetallic mineral product manufacturing.

Wholesale Trade

The Wholesale trade sector experienced a significant cyclical downturn in 2002. The sector lost an average of 4,491 jobs. Total wages for the year were $260 million less than in 2001. The non-cyclical sectors of alcohol and drugs appear to be the healthiest industries within Wholesale trade.

Merchant wholesalers, durable goods employment declined by 4,092 jobs while the associated total wages declined by $304 million.

The only four digit industry to increase within Merchant wholesalers, durable goods was Motor vehicle and parts merchant wholesalers. The industry added 55 jobs. The entire gain can be accounted for within New motor vehicle parts merchant wholesalers which added 58 jobs.

As of December of 2002, Electric goods merchant wholesalers lost employment for 22 consecutive months. The average annual wage declined by almost $5,000.

Commercial equipment merchant wholesalers had similar results, losing employment for 20 of 23 months. The industry was down 1,603 jobs annually. The average wage was stagnant. Most of the employment loss occurred in Computer and software merchant wholesalers, down 1,192 jobs to 7,237. The average wage in Computer and software merchant wholesalers remained high at $95,562 annually.

Lumber and construction supply merchant wholesalers followed the Construction sector lower with a loss of 167 jobs. Hardware and plumbing merchant wholesalers performed similarly with a loss of 265 jobs. The much smaller Furniture and furnishing merchant wholesalers industry performed even worse with a loss of 217 jobs.

Merchant wholesalers, nondurable goods fared much better than its durable counterpart, losing only 368 jobs. The average wage increased by 4.5 percent to $45,414.

The biggest four digit loser within nondurable goods was Paper and paper product merchant wholesalers, which lost 216 jobs. The loss was primarily within Office supplies merchant wholesalers.

Drought contributed to loss of 95 jobs in Farm product raw material merchant wholesalers.

One of the two shining stars within Wholesale trade is Druggists' goods merchant wholesalers which added 109 jobs. The other star is Alcoholic beverage merchant wholesalers with an additional 73 jobs.

Grocery and Related Product Wholesalers, which is the largest industry within Nondurable goods, expanded by 127 jobs and eight establishments.

Electronic markets and agents and brokers declined slightly with a loss of 30 jobs. Employment in Business to business electronic markets declined by 252 jobs to 1,061. Employment in Wholesale trade agents and brokers increased by 222 to 4,458. Businesses receive these classifications based on the way that they do business and not by what they sell. This methodology degrades the industry detail within Wholesale trade.

Retail Trade

Employment in Retail trade declined for the first time since 1987 with a loss of 3,328 jobs. Factors contributing to the decline were, a poor winter tourist season related to below average snowfall, more forest fires than normal causing the summer tourist season to be sluggish, and a slowing economy. Another possible factor leading to the decline in retail employment is less turnover as a result of the weak economy causing employees to hold onto their retail jobs longer, causing the employment figures to decline because of the way that the ES202 counts jobs. The total number of Retail trade establishments only increased by 18 to 18,119. Total wages were almost unchanged and the average wage increased by only 1.4 percent.

The trend of large, more efficient, stores displacing several small stores continued. One example of this is Building material and supplies dealers that increased by 854 jobs due to a large chain opening a few stores. Another example is in Warehouse clubs and supercenters that added 724 jobs.

Employment classified under Gasoline Stations declined by 1,008 jobs and 18 establishments. This does not mean that there are less gas pumps operating in Colorado since pumps are being added in other industries including Grocery stores and Warehouse clubs.

On an annual average basis, employment at Automobile dealers increased by 222 jobs. The monthly data indicates a slowing in this growth. The last three months of 2002 had fewer employees than the last three months of 2001.

Employment at Grocery stores declined by 1,830 jobs despite there being 25 more of them. The decline is most likely related to the slow tourist seasons and lack of confidence in business conditions.

Employment at Sporting goods stores declined by 509 jobs on an annual average basis. The decline was mostly during the peak ski months and employment was only slightly below the previous years' by summer.

One of the brightest areas within Retail Trade was Motorcycle dealers with eight new establishments and 167 more employees. Total wages increased by 12.5 percent.

Transportation & Warehousing

Although Transportation and Warehousing employment declined by 3,203 jobs on an annual average basis in 2002, the news is not all bad. The sector appears to have hit bottom in January of 2002.

Scheduled air transportation declined by 1,914 jobs to 13,273. Denver County was particularly hard hit with a loss of 1,846 jobs. The average annual wage increased from $52,953 to $56,259 despite news of labor contracts being revised downward.

Carriers' employment declined by 571 jobs in 2002. The industry hired significantly fewer temporary workers for the Christmas season than during the previous year. The annual average wage increased by 6.5 percent to $31,666.

General Freight trucking declined by 212 jobs over the year. The industry bottomed out in February of 2002 and had a positive over the year change by November. Long distance trucking fared better than local trucking.

Specialized freight trucking employment declined by 212 jobs on average. The holiday season was particularly poor for this industry.

Support activities for air transportation had a surprisingly good year with an addition of 88 jobs. The average wage increased by 2.6 percent to $28,903.

Warehousing and storage employment declined by 202 jobs on average. The last three months of the year were all about 200 jobs higher than the same months in 2001. The average wage increased by 3.3 percent.

Both Refrigerated warehousing and storage and Farm product warehousing and storage had employment above that of the same month from the previous year for each month of 2002. The two industries combined had 788 jobs.

Like many other industries in this sector, Freight transportation arrangement employment declined on an annual average basis but showed signs of improvement throughout the year.

Information

The Information sector was brutalized in 2002 with a loss of 13,910 jobs to average 93,408. The annual average wage declined by $2,611 to $63,171. The average was driven down by decreases in stock options and executive bonuses. Total wages declined by $1.16 billion.

The majority of the decline in Information employment occurred within Telecommunications with a loss of 7,232 jobs to 39,631. Colorado has large corporate offices for many of the most troubled telecom companies, particularly in the southern portion of the Denver MSA. Arapahoe County lost 1,957 Telecommunications jobs alone.

Another particularly hard hit industry is ISPs, search portals, and data processing. This industry lost 2,158 jobs to average 8,854. In January of 2001, there were 12,200 jobs and in December of 2002 there were only 8,520.

Publishing industries, except Internet employment recorded a loss of 3,667 jobs to average 31,160. Although this is a substantial loss on an annual average basis, the monthly data indicates a leveling off in the second half of 2002. Software publishers' employment declined by 2,188 jobs.

Broadcasting, except Internet employment also experienced a significant decline in employment with a loss of 838 jobs to 8,121. The drop was almost entirely within Cable and other subscription programming.

On a positive note, Motion picture and sound recording industries employment increased by 161 jobs to 4,530. However, the annual average wage declined from $109,493 to $26,822 because a large bonus was paid to a few executives in 2001 that was not repeated in 2002.

Sixty-thousand of the Information jobs were within the Denver MSA and another 13,768 were in either Boulder or Broomfield. El Paso County had 12,662 Information jobs in 2002.

Finance & Insurance

Employment in Finance and Insurance was unchanged on an annual average basis. The average wage declined slightly because smaller bonuses were paid to executives. The number of establishments increased from 9,000 to 9,419.

Employment in Commercial banking increased by 698 jobs and 99 establishments to 20,403 and 1,058. The average wage increased by 8.9 percent to $44,642. This increase was likely related to falling interest rates leading to increased profitability.

Direct insurers, except life and health employment increased by one percent over the year. Direct title insurance carriers employment increased by 290 jobs on an annual average basis.

Direct life and health insurance carriers employment declined by 445 jobs annually and lost jobs for eleven consecutive months starting in February. The average wage increased by 4.9 percent to $57,114.

Securities brokerage employment trended sharply downward for most of the year before leveling off. Employment in the fourth quarter was about 25 percent below that of the previous year. Despite the layoffs and declining stock market, the average wage increased from $73,691 to $86,672.

Falling long term interest rates caused employment in Mortgage and nonmortgage loan brokers to rapidly increase. Annual covered employment increased by 23.4 percent to 4,213 with an average salary of $63,357.

Employment at Credit Unions increased by 224 despite there being four less of them. The average salary at Credit unions is considerably less than at commercial banks. It is $32,620.

Note: Sales people working strictly on commission are not included in this report.

Real Estate, Rental & Leasing

Employment in Rental and Real Estate declined slightly over the year with a loss of 632 jobs.

Covered employment classified under Real Estate increased by 214 jobs to average 30,857. This industry has a large proportion of commissioned sales people and sole proprietors that are not covered under the ES202.

Lessors of residential buildings fared better than Lessors of nonresidential buildings in 2002 although both experienced declining employment and increasing vacancy rates. The average wage in Lessors of Real Estate increased 4.1 percent to $29,909.

Lower interest rates contributed to increased employment in Offices of real estate agents and brokers in 2002. The industry eked out a gain of 214 jobs. The refinancing boom associated with these lower interest rates led to an additional 80 jobs classified under Offices of real estate appraisers.

The number of jobs classified under Residential property managers increased by 284 to 8,134. This happened despite that fact that there were 290 establishments in both 2001 and 2002. Nonresidential property managers recorded a drop in employment and the number of establishments.

Miniwarehouse and self-storage unit operators expanded rapidly in 2002. The industry added 61 jobs to average 763. The number of establishments increased from 197 to 251.

Employment in Rental and leasing services performed very poorly in 2002 with a loss of 863 jobs and 35 establishments. Many of these establishments are dependent upon business investment and they were hit very hard.

Passenger car rental employment declined by 103 jobs on an annual basis. The monthly figures were flat for 2002 after falling considerably during the second half of 2001.

Video tape and disc rental declined by 301 positions and 15 establishments in 2002. The average wage declined by over 8 percent to $12,326. Alternative modes of delivery contributed to the decline.

Recreational goods rental had a poor year in 2002 with a loss of 8 establishments and 43 jobs. The weakness was primarily due to a poor ski season. Almost the entire drop occurred in the Rural Resort workforce development region.

Home health equipment rentals bucked the declining trend with an addition of 73 jobs. This is consistent with the growth in Health care. The number of establishments increased from 104 to 113.

Professional and Technical Services

Professional and technical services employment declined precipitously with a loss of 9,831 jobs. Total wages declined by $683 million. There were 594 more establishments than the previous year. It is common amongst laid off professionals to start their own businesses when they are unable to find work. Hence, the increase in the number of establishments is not unexpected.

It should be noted when reviewing the data for Professional services that individuals that work in this industry are often not covered under unemployment insurance, which is the primary source of data for this report, and are subsequently omitted from this report. They become liable for unemployment insurance after they incorporate or hire staff. This means that the average wage is weighted more toward the support staff and not the professionals themselves.

The best performing industry within the Professional and technical services sector was Legal services. Covered employment classified under Legal services increased steadily over the last two years and added 339 jobs on an annual average basis in 2002. The average wage increased by only 0.6 percent to $62,458.

Employment in Accounting and bookkeeping services lost 195 jobs and gained 246 establishments. Offices of certified public accountants had a very bad year with a loss of 345 jobs to average 6,360, in 2002. Average annual employment in Tax preparation services increased by 184 jobs due to increased seasonal hiring. Employment in Payroll services declined by 137 to 707 in 2002. Other accounting services employment increased by 103 jobs to average 4,417.

Architectural and engineering services employment declined by 1,723 jobs. Engineering services was particularly hard hit with a loss of 1,085 jobs. On a positive note, the average wage within Engineering services increased by 3.5 percent to $66,086. Architectural services employment followed the decline in the Construction sector with a loss of 343 jobs to average 4,169 jobs.

Employment in Computer systems design and related services was decimated in 2002. On an annual average basis, employment declined by 6,978. From January of 2001 to December of 2002 the industry declined from 45,716 to 33,722 jobs. The average wage declined by 2 percent to $74,277.

Management and technical consulting services had a relatively good year with a loss of only 349 jobs. The majority of the decline occurred in Other management consulting services with a drop of 294 jobs. Marketing consulting services employment increased by 49 jobs to 1,247.

Scientific research and development services employment increased by 65 jobs and its average wage increased by 1.6 percent to $73,752. Physical, engineering and biological research employment increased by 73 jobs to 8,996.

Advertising and related services had an 818 job loss over the year. The majority of the decline was within Direct mail advertising, which declined by 414 jobs to average 1,667. Employment at Public relations agencies declined by 17.4 percent to 670.

Employment at the Other professional and technical services was little changed over the year. Veterinary services continued to increase with an additional 263 jobs and 23 establishments. There were 632 Veterinary services establishments with average employment of 5,490 in 2002. All other professional and technical services employment declined by 316 jobs to average 1,428.

Management of Companies & Enterprises

At first glance, Management of companies & enterprises appears to be a growing industry within the State of Colorado. On an annual average basis, the ES202 reports that employment increased by 1,031. This is very misleading. Employment has been increasing because of a change in the Bureau of Labor Statistics' philosophy concerning coding of what is known as auxiliary establishments. Auxiliaries are establishments primarily engaged in performing management or support services for other establishments of the same enterprise. The new coding philosophy means that more employment is being counted under Management of companies and not the actual industry that the enterprise is in. At this time, the Colorado Department of Labor has not studied the impact that this is having on the other industries employment levels. For the next couple of years, this industry is expected to grow regardless of whether the firms that are presently classified in it expand their payrolls. This philosophy change only affects NAICS 551114 Managing offices and not the two other six digit codes under Management of Companies.

Offices of bank holding companies employment increased by 24 jobs to average 126 in 2002. The average annual wage increased by $46,427 to $156,333. The number of establishments increased from 16 to 19.

Employment at Offices of other holding companies declined by 31 jobs to average 1,766. The average wage declined from $183,410 to $118,284. The number of establishments declined from 204 to 187.

Officially, Managing offices employment increased by 1,038. If it were not for the auxiliary related coding issue, this industry would have declined. The number of establishments increased from 656 to 727 with most of the additional establishments entering the industry as a reclassification in January. The average annual wage increased from $64,649 to $64,861.

Most of the employment classified under Management of companies is classified in two counties. Denver County had 4,997 jobs and $316 million in wages while Arapahoe County had 4,906 jobs and $340 million in wages for 2002. The only other county to have over a thousand employees counted in Management of companies was Jefferson with 1,342.

Administrative & Waste Services

Weakness in Employment services and Travel arrangement and reservations services led to an 8,316 job loss in Administrative and waste services in 2002.

Employment services employment declined by 8,101 jobs. Temporary help services declined to its lowest level since 1994. The monthly Temporary help services employment figures indicate that the industry stabilized during 2002. The same cannot be said of Employment placement agencies which continued to decline over the year.

Employment classified under Professional employer organizations (PEO) declined by 297 jobs in 2002. PEO's are companies that report employment for other businesses under their account. Every attempt is made to classify this employment by what the client company does and to not count it under the PEO code. Only the administrative staff of a PEO company should be counted under this code, but this is not always possible. Employment changes under the PEO code should be treated with caution.

On an annual average basis, Travel arrangement and reservation services had a horrible year in 2002 with a loss of 1,211 jobs. Employment stabilized during the second half of 2002. Between April of 2001 and January of 2002, the industry lost 1,584 jobs.

Telephone call centers employment increased by 340 jobs to 11,483. The average wage decreased slightly and the number of establishments increased by 2 to 177.

Facilities support services employment increased at a rapid pace due to increases at privately run correctional institutions. The industry added 581 jobs and had an average wage of $35,321.

Waste management and remediation services employment was little changed over the year with an addition of 22 to jobs to average 8,687. The average wage increased by 3.9 percent to $54,384.

The large decrease in employment in Materials recovery facilities was due to a code change into Waste treatment and disposal.

Educational Services

Educational services had mixed results in 2002. Decrease in business investment led to declines in some industries and higher unemployment and recession led to increased demand in others.

Elementary and secondary schools' employment declined by 354 jobs and seven establishments. This trend is inconsistent with that of publicly owned Elementary and secondary schools. The reduced employment may be related to parents inability to pay for private education during a severe recession.

One of the hardest hit industries was Computer training which lost 331 jobs and 15 establishments. The average wage decreased from $54,541 to $49,058. About three quarters of the jobs and lost jobs were in the Denver MSA. Management training experienced a drop of 157 jobs to average 1,433.

Colleges and universities' employment increased by 663 jobs. This annual gain understates the increase in employment that has occurred over the two years of NAICS based data. In January of 2001, the industry had 5,753 employees. In December of 2002, it had 7,152. The average salary decreased by 2.4 percent to $31,611 over the year.

The soft economy has buoyed employment at Technical and trade schools of all types. Employment at Cosmetology and barber schools, Flight training, Apprenticeship training and Other technical and trade schools all increased. Although these industries are small, they are growing rapidly.

Other schools and instruction employment also increased as unemployment increased, although the motivation may not be related to the desire to gain employment. Sports and recreation instruction had the biggest job gains with an additional 126 jobs. Fine arts schools, Automobile driving schools, Exam preparation and tutoring and Miscellaneous schools and instruction all had increased employment levels in 2002. The only declining industry was Language schools.

Note: Only privately owned establishments are included in this section. A synopsis of publicly held establishments is included in the government section. Work study jobs are not included in the ES202 for either private or government establishments.

Health Care & Social Assistance

The brightest sector in Colorado's economy, from an employment standpoint, is the Health Care and Social Assistance sector. The sector added 6,685 jobs over the year and the average salary increased by 4.5 percent to $35,565..

General medical and surgical hospitals employment increased by a paltry 1.7 percent in 2002. On a more positive note, the average annual salary increased by seven percent to $37,196.

Employment classified under Offices of Physicians increased by 3.3 percent in 2002. The average wage increased by 4.25 percent to $65,389. It is very difficult to draw inferences from this average wage since medical professionals have a high propensity for dual job holding and very little is known about whether doctors tend to pay themselves in ways that are exempt from the unemployment insurance system which excludes them from this report.

Offices of other health practitioners employment increased at a rapid pace in 2002 with an addition of 781 jobs to average 8,763. The number of establishments increased from 2,093 to 2,265.

Social assistance employment had mixed results in 2002. Services for the elderly and disabled employment increased by an impressive 20 percent to 5,623. Child day care services, Community food services and Other individual and family services all recorded a drop in employment.

Home health care services added 784 jobs to average 8,778 in 2002. The average annual wage was only $21,561. ES202 wages are not adjusted for the number of hours worked.

Employment at Offices of dentists has been steadily increasing. The number of establishments increased by 36 to 2,156 with 546 additional jobs added.

Offices of chiropractors' employment increased rapidly with the number of establishments increasing from 745 to 797 and employment increasing by 220 to 2,250.

Arts, Entertainment & Recreation

A slow ski season, more forest fires than normal and the recession contributed to a one percent decline in employment in Arts, entertainment and Recreation. Considering all that was going against this industry in 2002, it is hard to imagine that it will not show growth in 2003.

Employment at Skiing facilities dropped a mere 92 jobs despite the meager snowfall totals. The January through April totals were on average 928 jobs below the previous year. The other 8 months all showed over the year gains with December being 2,106 jobs higher.

Fitness and recreational sports centers had a year similar to Skiing facilities with a loss of only 60 jobs and a weak first half of the year. The number of establishments increased from 387 to 415.

Average employment at Golf courses and country clubs increased by 210 jobs despite there being 4 fewer establishments. Considering the severity of the drought in 2002, this is a very impressive performance.

The number of Bowling facilities declined from 87 to 82. The number of jobs declined by 57 and the average wage increased by 7.3 percent.

Employment at Casino's, except casino hotels decreased by 219 jobs. This decline is more related to NAICS code interpretations than an actual decline. Within Accommodation, Casino hotels increased by 580 jobs. Other gambling industries increased by 74 jobs due to a NAICS code reclassification.

Sports teams and clubs added 58 jobs over the year. The average annual wage decreased from $253,332 to $240,124. The number of establishments increased from 37 to 43.

Promoters of performing arts and sports employment increased by 56 jobs with one less establishment. There were 31 establishments that operated their own facilities and 69 that did not.

The number of establishments under Theater companies and dinner theaters decreased from 55 to 49 resulting in a job loss of 19. The average wage increased by 4.3 percent to $19,653.

Museums, historical sites, zoos, and parks had a hard year in 2002. The industry lost 108 jobs on average with decreased hiring during the summer months being the primary cause. Museums employment declined by 51 jobs.

Accommodation & Food Services

Accommodation and Food Services employment was flat on an annual average basis with a gain of only 254 jobs. Ski season related weakness in January through April pulled the annual average down. A decline in business travel also had a significant negative impact.

Widespread employment declines were recorded in Hotels and motels, except casino hotels with a statewide loss of 1,682 jobs.. Employment in Denver County declined by 564 jobs to 6,576. Arapahoe County lost 249 jobs or 10.3 percent. The biggest gain occurred in Grand County with an addition of 73 jobs to average 649.

Employment at RV parks and campgrounds 57 jobs to 459 on an annual average basis. The peak summer months had significantly less employment that was probably caused by the drought related fire season. Recreational and vacation camps employment experienced similar results with August and September being particularly weak.

There were two fewer Bed-and-breakfast inns in Colorado in 2002 with 16 fewer employees. The All other traveler accommodation industry had a similar performance in 2002 with a loss of a job and four establishments.

Employment in Mesa County increased from 1,964 to 2,407 with an additional 7 establishments.

There were an additional 82 Limited service restaurants in Colorado in 2002. However, employment only increased by 208 jobs.

Federal Government

Annual average employment increased by 276 jobs. The increase is due to the de-privatization of airport security through the Transportation Security Administration(TSA). This program ramped up in the second half of the year and Transportation program administration had a 1,677 over the year monthly job gain by December. The average annual wage increase by 5.2 percent despite the addition of the lower paid TSA jobs.

Postal service employment decreased by 190 jobs on average. The decline appears to be related to decreased seasonal hiring after the terrorist attacks and does not represent a long term trend.

Hospital employment declined because of a reorganization in the Department of Veteran Affairs. The decline was in Bent County. In January of 2001, Bent County had 377 Federal Hospital jobs. By June of 2002, they were all gone.

Administration of environmental programs Employment increased by 258 jobs. Some of the gain was related to increased funding for Chronic Wasting Disease and bio terrorism related research.

The decline in Educational services was due to a change in reporting at the Air Force Academy in El Paso County and was not an actual decline.

The decline in employment in Miscellaneous manufacturing was due to a drop at the Denver Mint.

Employment at General merchandise stores increased substantially with a gain of 159 jobs. There were still 4 establishments in this industry.

National security and international affairs dropped by 157 jobs due to deployments for the war.

Notes: The wage distribution chart on the following page only includes records for unemployment insurance claimants who claimed against the Federal Government because the Federal Government does not normally provide this information to the states. Only civilian military employment is included in the ES202. Hence, troop deployments do not impact the reported employment levels.

State Government

Employment by the State of Colorado continued to grow in 2002 with an addition of 1,501 jobs. The average wage increased by 5.2 percent to $42,540. Based on analysis of the over the year change, this growth in employment appears to have slowed over the course of the year.

The majority of the job gains occurred within Educational services with a gain of 912 jobs. Employment within Colleges and universities increased by 744 jobs. The counties with the largest gains were Denver at 374, Boulder at 240, Jefferson at 49, El Paso at 47 and Larimer at 34. Junior college employment increased by 172. Administration of education programs grew at a much faster rate than Educational services with a gain of 101 jobs to average 1,413.

Heavy and civil engineering construction, also known as the Colorado Department of Transportation, stagnated in 2002 with a loss of 5 jobs. The average wage increased by 6.1 percent.

The trend of rapid increases in employment within Justice, public order, and safety activities stalled in 2002. The industry only added 159 jobs on average. The over the year change turned negative in September and reach 234 by December.

Employment at Hospitals increased by 272 jobs and the average wage increased by 6.9 percent. Analysis of the over the year change indicates that this growth trend has stalled. January was up 443 jobs over the year and by December it was only 26.

Public finance activities a.k.a. the Department of Revenue experienced a decline of 51 jobs to average 1,396. Revenue employment declined nine out of the last ten months of the year.

Agricultural market and commodity regulation, a.k.a. the Department of Agriculture, declined by an average of 50 jobs. The decline is related to decreased seasonal hiring at the State Fair.

Other human resource programs administration employment increased slightly with a gain of 44 jobs to average 2,583. Gains in the federally funded Department of Labor and Employment out weighed losses at the state funded Department of Human Resources.

Local Government

Employment in local government continued to grow at a rapid pace in 2002 with an additional 9,241 jobs. The growth is a function of municipalities and school districts catching up with the growing demand for services associated with an expanding population. Fourteen counties recorded a decrease in employment and 50 had an increase. The fastest growing county on a percentage basis was La Plata which grew by 9.7 percent to average 3,245 jobs. San Juan had the biggest percentage drop at 14.2 percent.

The catch all category of Public Administration added 2,825 jobs on average in 2002. This sector is very hard to analyze because so much industry detail is lost in the way that some municipalities report. Some reports only allow for a single industry code to be assigned to a City while others will allow separate codes to be assigned to different functions such as utilities, libraries or transportation departments.

The largest sector of local government is Educational services. The industry added 5,691 jobs on to average 113,822. Several things led to this growth including an increasing population, several bond issues passing, and a constitutional amendment that requires that the legislature increase their funding each year. Elementary and secondary schools employment increased by 5,689 jobs to 111,688. The average wage in Educational services increased by 4.8 percent to 30,581. El Paso County added more jobs than any other county at 797. Adams was second at 779. In Colorado, school district employment is only reported at the county level and not by individual schools. Educational services is the one industry under local government that does not lose a significant amount of industry detail based on the way that it is reported since school districts are their own separate entity and are consistently reported as such.

Hospital employment increased by 665 jobs to average 10,190. The county with the most Hospital employees within local government was El Paso at 3,509. This was an increase of 266 jobs on an annual average basis and the growth appears to be ongoing. Denver County was a close second with an average of 3,114 jobs, which was an increase of 310 jobs. The other counties with over 300 employees under local government Hospitals were Montrose at 490, Pitkin at 383, and Delta at 319.

Information employment under local government, which is almost entirely Library and archives, increased by 82 jobs to average 1,590 in 2002. The industry continued to add jobs over the year.

Local government employment classified under Utilities increased by 42 jobs to average 5,552. Water supply and irrigation systems employment increased by 17 jobs to 2,598. Power generation and supply employment decreased by 18 jobs to average 2,123. Most of these jobs were at Colorado Springs Utilities which was approaching 1,900 jobs by the end of 2002. Employment in Water supply and irrigation systems in Denver County decreased by 35 jobs to average 1,047 in 2002.
