Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

This report, which is published annually, is a compilation of employment and wage data from the Colorado Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages program, formally known as the ES202 or Covered Employment and Wages. Only tables were printed for 2001. The information is compiled primarily from reports submitted to the Colorado Department of Labor & Employment by employers subject to unemployment insurance law under the Colorado Employment Security Act. Employment and wage data for civilian federal government employees in Colorado are also included in this report.

Employment and wages are compiled by county and industry for private business and government. Some data items are not available for public disclosure in accordance with U.S. Department of Labor guidelines. Because every attempt is made to use actual instead of imputed data, this report is not published until eight months after the end of the reporting period to allow for the verification of questionable data and the inclusion of late reports.

Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

Colorado in 2003

The Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages, which was formally known as the ES202 or Covered Employment and Wages recorded its first back to back decline in employment since its inception in 1972. The series declined by 36,279 jobs after losing 47,203 in 2002. These annualized changes do not accurately indicate the turns in employment numbers in a timely manner. Monthly analysis of the data indicated that the recent decline started at the end of 2000. Since the declines of 2001 were less than the increase in 2000, the annual average increased despite weakness throughout 2001. The inverse is likely to occur should employment rebound in 2004. Analysis of the monthly data for the end of 2003 and the early returns of 2004 indicate a rebound may be occurring.

Much of the weakness in employment was concentrated within cyclical industries. Employment driven by business investment experienced a much sharper decline than employment driven by population growth.

Construction and Manufacturing were particularly weak despite significant Federal monetary and fiscal stimulus. Health care and social services was the strongest sector. Mining also had a strong year. The increase in the Management of companies sector is misleading because it is derived from code changes and not actual growth.

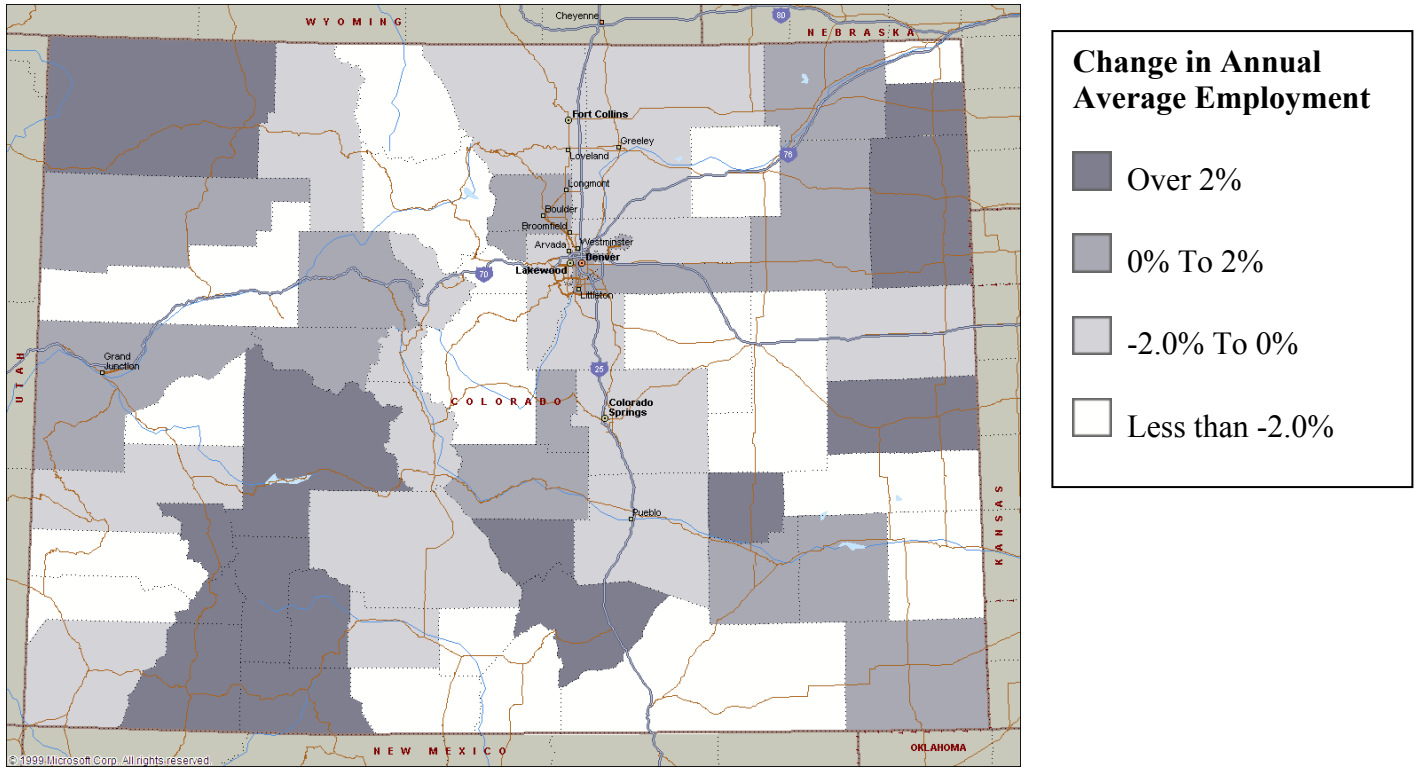

TABOR restrictions took their toll on government employment levels in 2003. The government sector added jobs for a considerable period of time after the cyclical downturn started. The declines in the government sector started to occur in earnest in the second half of 2003. Because of the ratcheting effect of the TABOR amendment, the government sector is not likely to add employees as soon as the private sector does even if tax revenues rebound.

Total covered wages increased in 2003. The increases were attributed to a return of bonuses. During the downturn, large bonuses to executives took a nosedive. They began to reappear in 2003. The average wage increased by 2.5 percent or $940 to $38,942.

Colorado's competitive advantages in attracting new investment capital for primary types of businesses increased in 2003. There were both a greater percentage of available employees and an increase in available commercial and residential real estate. The local CPI advanced at a slower pace than the national CPI. The return of these competitive advantages bodes well for employment growth in the future.

Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

On an annual basis, job losses were widespread in Colorado in 2003 with declines in 37 out of 64 counties. Denver County recorded the largest decline with a loss of 13,199 jobs. This would have been the third year that Denver lost the most jobs if it were not for Boulder losing 28,403 jobs in 2002 primarily because of the creation of Broomfield County. The county with the largest gain in 2003 was Douglas with an increase of 1,408 jobs. The second fastest growing county was Montrose with 462 additional jobs. The only other counties to add over 300 jobs were Broomfield and Morgan up 371 and 326 respectively.

Since the recent downturn can be classified as a cyclical decline, the biggest job losers were the regions with the most cyclical industries. Other than Denver, the Workforce Development Region (WDR) with the largest decline was the Boulder/Broomfield WDR with a loss of 5,399 jobs to average 176,432. The third biggest job loser was Arapahoe/Douglas with a drop of 4,704. Fourth was Adams with a drop of 4,081. Other regions that lost more than 2,000 jobs were Tri County and Pikes Peak at 3,235 and 2,754 respectively.

On a five-year percentage basis, the fastest growing counties were the Southern metro counties of Douglas and Elbert at 47.3 and 47.1 respectively. The third fastest growing county was Custer at 25.4 percent. The only other county to grow by over 20 percent in five years was Jackson at 22.2. Only two counties declined by over ten percent over a five year period. They were Bent and Kiowa at 20.3 and 17.3 respectively. The only counties to add over 10,000 jobs in a five year period were Douglas and El Paso at 25,852 and 12,195 respectively.

The Southcentral WDR added the most jobs with an increase of 333 to average 23,871. The Eastern WDR was second with 309 more jobs and an average of 108,946. The other WDR's that added jobs were Mesa, Southwest, and Western at 247, 166 and 102 respectively.

On a percentage basis, the fastest growing county in Colorado in 2003 was San Juan at 7.1 percent. San Juan County added 20 jobs to average 315. Jackson County employment increased by 5.9 percent or 32 jobs. The only other county to grow by over five percent was Rio Grande with an increase of 5.1 percent or 216 jobs.

On a pro-forma or percentage of total employment basis, the fastest growing county over the year was Douglas with a 0.117 percent gain. Douglas County had 1.24 percent of all Colorado jobs in 1994 and 3.07 percent in 2003. Weld County came in second over the year with a gain of 0.067 percent. Over the year, Denver County lost 0.275 percent. Since 1994, Denver lost 3.21 percent. The suburban counties surrounding Denver have been growing at a faster rate than the county.

Note: Graphs for every Workforce Development Region are available starting on page 66.

Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

Average wages increased by nearly 2.5 percent in 2003 after a flat year in 2002. The 2003 average was $38,942. The average wage declined in 6 counties and increased in 58. On a five year basis, the average wage increased by $6,685 or 20.7 percent. An increase occurred in every county over five years. The smallest five year increase was in Bent County at 1.1 percent.

The county with the highest average wage in 2003 was Broomfield at $49,953. The next three highest averages were in Arapahoe, Denver and Boulder at $47,267, $48,880 and $45,542 respectively. The only other county to have an above average annual wage was Jefferson at $39,039. The three lowest average wages were recorded in Costilla, Hinsdale and Baca at $19,963, $18,833 and $18,789 respectively.

The county with the largest percentage increase was Ouray with an increase of 15.7 percent to $29,732. The Ouray County increase is related to a specific bonus and is not indicative of a widespread increase. The second largest increase was in Gunnison at 9.3 percent to $26,336.

Three of the four largest percentage declines in average wages occurred in the eastern agricultural counties of Sedgwick, Kiowa and Prowers at (5.7%), (4.7%) and (3.9%) respectively. The other counties with declines were San Miguel, Jackson and Elbert at (4.0%), (1.3%) and (0.2%) respectively.

Total wages increased slightly in 2003 with a gain of $612 million. The gain was less than the rate of inflation. Fifty-two out of 64 counties recorded an increase in total wages.

The largest percentage increases occurred in the Southwest corner of the state with Ouray gaining 15.9 percent and San Juan adding 14.6 percent. The next three largest percentage gainers were Mineral, Rio Grande and Gunnison at 10.0, 7.4, and 6.6 respectively.

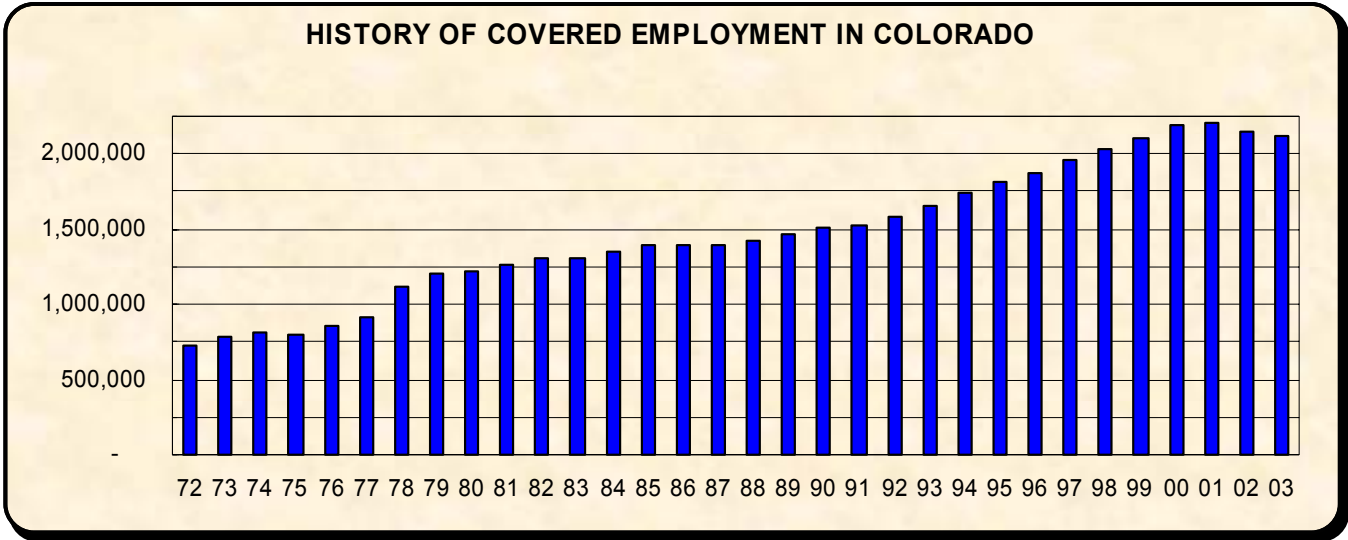

The county with the highest wage total was Denver at $19.5 billion. This was the lowest total for Denver since 1999. The only other county to have over $10 billion in wages was Arapahoe at $12.8 billion.

The largest gains in total wages occurred in the Southern Metro area with Arapahoe gaining $127 million and Douglas gaining $101 million. El Paso County added $75 million and Jefferson added $66 million.

The largest five year percentage gainers other than Broomfield were Douglas, Elbert and Gilpin at 135%, 119% and 73% respectively.

Note: Average wages are difficult to analyze because they are published without any indication of distribution. In some cases, they may be near the center of a bell shaped curve and in other cases they are heavily skewed by a few outliers on the high end or a substantial number of observations on the low end.

Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

For the first time, the QCEW series reported a loss in annual average employment for two consecutive years. The series declined by 36,279 jobs in 2003 after declining by 47,203 in 2002. Over the last thirty years, Colorado has only lost annual average employment two other times. In 1986, the state lost 8,921 jobs and in 1975 the state lost 13,882 jobs. Annual average employment does not tend to capture turns in a series as they happen. When reviewing the monthly data, particularly industries that are considered to be leading indicators, declines could be seen as early as the second half of 2000. The monthly data for 2001 clearly indicated that job losses were occurring. However, an annual decline was not registered until 2002. The monthly data for 2003 and early 2004 indicate a flattening out of the series with leading indicator industries turning positive. To ascertain what the QCEW series might report in 2004, it is best to look at the Current Employment Statistics monthly estimates.

After recording its first ever loss in 2002, total wages increased slightly with a gain of $612 million. This 0.75 percent increase was less than the Denver-Boulder-Greeley CPI increase of 1.1 percent. Much of the decline in wages over the past two years is directly related to fewer large bonuses being paid out to executives. Some of the decline is associated with there being fewer jobs. The decline does not appear to be indicative of declining hourly pay rates.

Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

11 Agriculture, forestry, fishing and hunting

Employment in Agriculture, forestry, fishing and hunting continued to decrease in 2003 with a loss of 360 jobs after losing 235 in 2002. Decreased seasonal hiring related to the drought was the leading cause of the decline. The average wage increased by 2.8 percent to $23,319. The number of establishments increased from 1,275 to 1,300.

The leading county in employment for this industry is Weld. Employment in Weld County increased by 34 jobs to 3,332. The only other county to have over a thousand employees in Agriculture, forestry, fishing and hunting was Adams at 1,143. Counties that had over 500 jobs in this sector were Rio Grande at 988, Larimer at 707, Morgan at 674, Yuma at 690, Prowers at 512 and Saguache at 526.

Employment classified under Crop production declined by 307 jobs to 6,520. The annual loss is due to decreased seasonal hiring related to the drought. The average annual wage increased by 4.6 percent to $22,927. The leading county in Crop production employment is Weld, which experienced a decrease of 67 jobs to average 1,408. The only other county to have over a thousand jobs in Crop production was Adams at 1,048. The county with the next highest employment level was Alamosa at 415.

Animal production employment decreased at an increasing rate in 2003 with a loss of 166 jobs to average 5,285. The average annual wage increased by 1.0 percent to $24,852. The leading county in Animal production is Weld with 1,587 jobs. Animal production employment in Weld County increased by 109 jobs over the year and the average wage decreased by 1.7 percent to $24,858. The county with the second highest number of employees working in Animal production was Yuma with 475. Prowers was a close third at 373.

Agriculture and forestry support activities employment increased by 139 jobs on an annual average basis. There were 2,118 jobs with an annual average wage of $20,792. The increase was due to increased hiring during the summer months. Most of the increase occurred in Rio Grande with an additional 128 jobs to average 690. Second on the list is Weld County with 328 jobs in 2003, a decrease of 8. Third place goes to Saguache County, at 213 jobs.

Covered Forestry and logging jobs are almost nonexistent in Colorado. Annual average employment declined by 30 jobs to average 155. The average wage declined 4.7 percent to $22,321.

NAICS code changes had almost no impact on this sector as a whole. Coding beyond 4 digits is very difficult in this sector because establishments often do more than one thing.

Note: To be liable for unemployment insurance, and hence to be included in this report, an agricultural employer must pay $20,000 or more in any one quarter of a calendar year, or employ 10 workers for 20 weeks during the year. It is assumed that over half of all agricultural workers are exempt from unemployment insurance.

Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

21 Mining

Mining employment growth accelerated in 2003 with an addition of 230 jobs to average 13,109. The sector added only 34 jobs the year before. These official numbers do not reflect the actual strength in Mining employment since the sector lost about 400 jobs to NAICS reclassifications. Administrative offices of Mining companies have been moved from Mining to the Management of Companies sector. The average wage increased by 2.8 percent to $66,657. The number of establishments increased by 2 to average 942.

Mining employment within the Denver MSA declined by 149 jobs to average 4,977. Mining in counties that are not included in any MSA increased by 265 jobs to average 6,001. Most of the reclassifications from Mining were within the MSA's.

Oil and gas extraction employment continued to increase with 175 more jobs and 4 more establishments. Higher prices and the completion of a pipeline to California have been the impetus for the increases over the last couple of years. Anecdotal evidence suggests that the industry would expand faster if more qualified workers were available. Air pollution regulations are also a drag on growth. The average wage increased by 14 percent to $93,382.

Mining, except oil and gas dropped precipitously with a loss of 431 jobs to average 4,930. Much of the loss is correlated to the decline in Construction. However, the vast majority is due to NAICS reclassifications into Management of companies. Nonmetallic mineral mining and quarrying declined by 133 jobs with about 90 of them being a result of NAICS reclassifications. The average wage decreased by 3.4 percent to $41,164.

Metal ore mining declined by 252 jobs. There was a loss of 350 jobs due to NAICS reclassifications. The average wage declined by over 20 percent. The higher paying jobs were those that were reclassified into Management of companies.

Support activities for mining employment grew steadily throughout 2003. On an average basis, the industry added 486 jobs. The over the year gain was 1,013 jobs in December.

Employment classified under Utilities contracted in 2003 with a loss of 277 jobs. The average wage was nearly unchanged at $64,284. The number of establishments increased by one to average 317.

The largest industry within Utilities is Electric power distribution. Over the year, the industry lost 202 jobs. The average wage decreased by 0.2 percent to $64,545.

Natural gas distribution employment decreased by 25 jobs. The average wage decreased again in 2003 with a loss of 6.6 percent to $76,457.

Note: Some Utilities are classified under local government and are not included in this synopsis.

23 Construction

On an annual average basis, covered employment losses in Construction accelerated with a loss of 10,414 jobs after losing 7,101 jobs the previous year. In contrast to this accelerated annual decline, the over the year monthly losses declined in the second half of the year and early in 2004. This may be a temporary phenomenon related to interest rates declining late in the year. The annual average wage increased by a quarter of a percent to $39,315. The number of establishments increased by 148 to 20,754. The increase in the number of establishments was due to many more small businesses.

Specialty trade contractors employment experienced broad declines with an aggregate loss of 6,862 jobs. Once again, Electrical contractors had the largest decline with a loss of 1,722 jobs. Plumbing and HVAC contractors employment declined by 1,400.

Losses within Heavy and civil engineering construction more than doubled with a decline of 2,028 jobs. Employment classified within the Denver MSA was particularly hard hit with a decline of 1,415 jobs. The annual average wage decreased by $455 to $45,830 after rising by $960 in 2002.

Employment classified under Construction of buildings declined at a slower rate in 2003 with a loss of 1,524 versus 2,274 the previous year. Although the structure of NAICS codes distinguishes between builders of multi and single family dwellings and commercial versus residential, the literal interpretation can be misleading because firms often do both. That being said, the strength within building appears to be within single family residential.

The largest declines occurred in Denver and Adams counties at 2,340 and 2,126 respectively. The Rural Resort WDR declined by 10.9 percent to 9,416. Construction employment within the Southwest WDR increased by 3.8 percent to 3,259. Employment in Mesa County held steady at 4,314. Employment in Larimer County which had been steady in 2002 began to decline with a loss of 566 jobs to average 9,416.

Note: Construction employment is assigned to the county that the office is in and not the actual worksite. This causes employment statistics to increase in counties that border rapidly growing counties and to under represent the actual employment in the rapidly growing counties.

31-33 Manufacturing

Manufacturing employment in Colorado had another abysmal year with a decline of 10,499 jobs. However, this was much better than in 2002 when the sector declined by 15,614 jobs. On a monthly basis, the losses decreased later in the year. The average wage increased by 4.5 percent to $50,855. The number of establishments decreased by 83 to average 5,967. Businesses with revenue related to national defense expenditures were the strongest within Manufacturing. Computer and construction related industries were among the weakest. NAICS reclassifications cost the sector a net of 900 jobs.

The Computer and electronic product manufacturing industry was particularly hard hit with a loss of 4,786 jobs to average 35,932. The average wage increased by 8.0 percent to $75,476. The losses were concentrated in Boulder (1,729), El Paso (982), Larimer (721) and Adams (694) Counties.

Food Manufacturing employment declined by 934 jobs with about 300 of the decline being attributed to NAICS code changes. The average wage increased by 2.5 percent to $32,329.

Fabricated metal product manufacturing declined at a slower rate in 2003 with a loss of 757 jobs after losing 1,308 the year before. The average wage increased by 2.4 percent to $41,292.

Transportation equipment manufacturing continued to decline at a steady rate with a loss of 853 jobs. This industry would have performed much worse were it not for increases at defense related companies.

Declines in Chemical manufacturing ceased in 2003 with a gain of 3 jobs after declining by 322 in 2002. The industry had an over the year gain for the last six months of the year.

Nonmetallic mineral product manufacturing declined at a more rapid pace with a loss of 786 jobs after losing 629 in 2002. The losses were related to the decline in the Construction sector. Cement and concrete product manufacturing declined by 639 jobs to average 4,805.

Miscellaneous manufacturing declined by 295 jobs. Medical equipment and supplies manufacturing decreased by 60 jobs to average 5,586. The average wage within Medical equipment and supplies manufacturing increased by 7.9 percent to $47,279.

The county with the largest Manufacturing decline was Boulder with a loss of 2,389 jobs. The county with the most Manufacturing jobs was Denver at 24,666, a decline of 1,376. The only other county with over 20,000 jobs was El Paso with 20,497, a loss of 1,783.

The average wage within Commercial equipment merchant wholesalers increased by 4.3 percent to $80,415.

Electronic markets and agents and brokers gained 1,147 jobs to average 5,605. The average wage increased by 9.1 percent to $61,349. This sector gained about 475 net jobs because of NAICS reclassifications. Establishments that do not take possession of inventory are classified in this industry. This methodology degrades the industry detail within Wholesale trade.

44-45 Retail Trade

Employment in Retail trade fell again this year with a loss of 2,909 jobs. The sector was particularly weak over the summer months and seemed to rebound somewhat toward the end of the year. There were 287 more establishments on average in 2003 than 2002. The average wage increased by 1.5 percent to $24,562.

Retail trade employment within the Denver MSA declined significantly with a loss of 2,377 jobs. Employment in El Paso County increased by 171 jobs to average 27,818 due to new development around Chapel Hills Mall. Employment in the Rural Resort WDR increased by an average of 110 jobs due to strong over the year gains at the end of the year.

Food and beverage stores employment declined by 1.0 percent or 407 jobs on average. The year over change was positive for the last three months of the year. The number of establishments increased by 94 to 2,257. There were 39 more Beer, wine, and liquor stores and they employed 57 fewer people. Grocery stores employment declined by 806 jobs after losing 1,803 jobs in 2002.

Employment in General merchandise stores was almost unchanged with a gain of 287 jobs to average 44,339. Within General merchandise stores, there was a code change from Department stores into Other General merchandise stores. The industry had weaker summer hiring.

The number of Gasoline stations increased by 9 while employing 564 fewer people. There is a trend toward gasoline attendant employment being included in other NAICS classifications such as Grocery stores and Warehouse clubs and supercenters.

There were 17 more Building material and supplies dealers stores in 2003 and they employed 421 fewer people. The decrease in employment was due to less summer hiring.

On an annual average basis, Automobile dealers employment declined by 517 jobs. The monthly data indicates that the industry began shedding workers during the second half of 2002 and started to improve in July of 2003. The average wage stagnated at $45,231. Used car dealers fared better with a gain of 100 jobs to average 2,465.

Health and personal care stores reversed their decline with an additional 210 jobs. The average wage was $25,298.

48-49 Transportation and warehousing

Transportation and Warehousing experienced another hard year in 2003. The numbers are likely worse than the official statistics indicate. The over the year gain that was reported in the first 3 months is likely a mistake based on an inaccurate report that was not corrected before it was published. Officially, the sector declined by 1,219 jobs after declining by 3,203 the year before. The average wage declined by 1.6 percent to $37,822. The number of establishments increased by 39 to average 3,448.

Scheduled air transportation, which was the industry with the inaccurate employment numbers early in the year, appeared to add jobs as the year went on. Unfortunately, the average wage decreased by 12.6 percent to $48,136. Ninety-five percent of the employment in this industry is classified in Denver County.

Couriers employment registered a slight increase of 131 jobs. The average wage increased by 1.3 percent to $32,069.

General Freight trucking employment losses slowed with a decline of 129 jobs versus 212 the previous year. The average wage was virtually unchanged at $36,500.

Specialized freight trucking continued to decline with a loss of 229 jobs. Used household and office goods moving had a minimal loss of 0.9 percent to average 2,547.

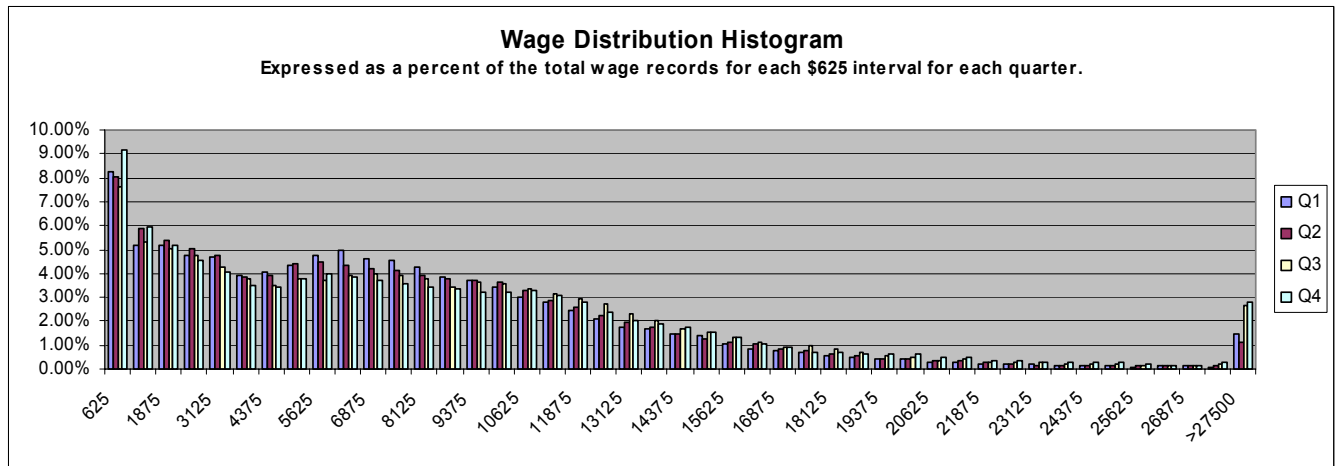

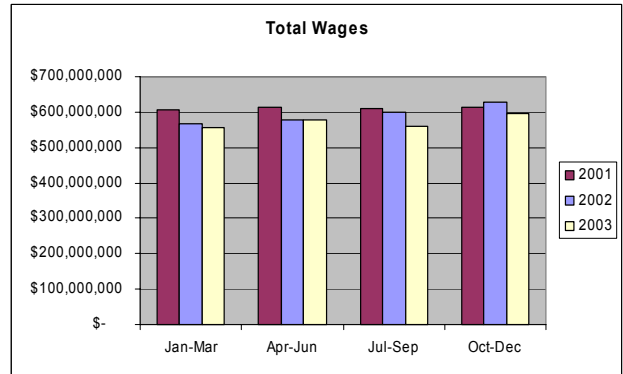

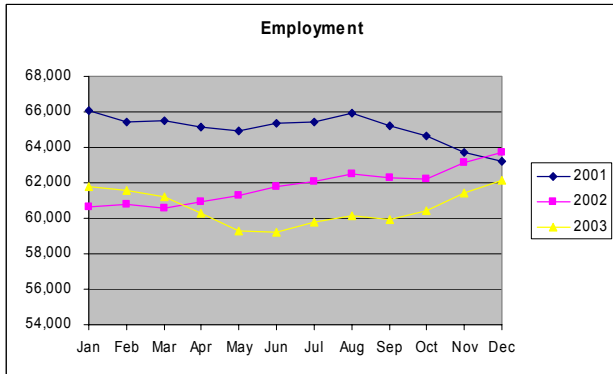

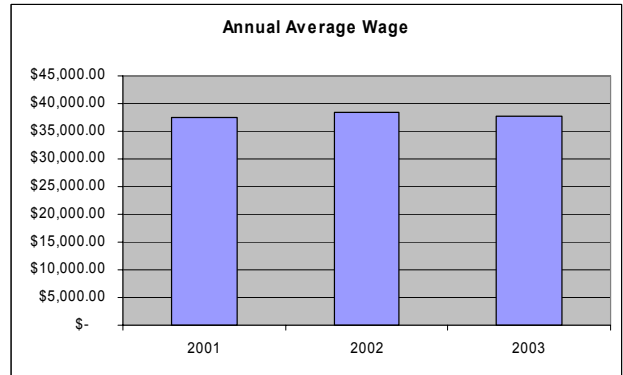

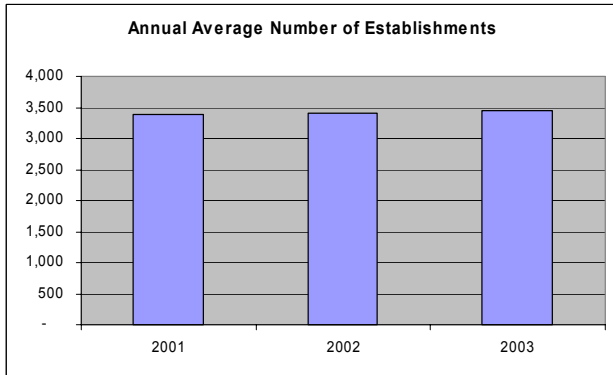

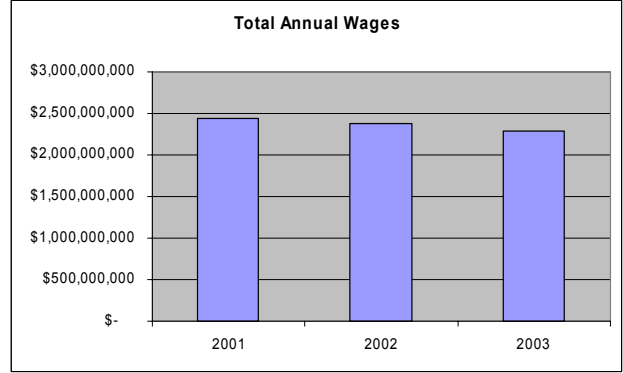

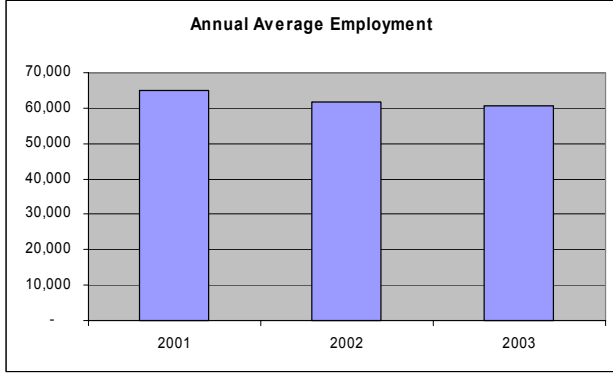

Support activities for air transportation added 20 jobs. The average wage increased by 1.3 percent to $32,069. Forty-two percent of the employment in this industry was classified in Denver County.

Warehousing and storage employment declined by 632 jobs to average 8,017. The industry was particularly weak during the middle of the year. The average wage increased dramatically with a gain of $6,214 to average $41,142. The average wage increase was skewed by bonuses for a few individuals.

51 Information

Although the Information sector experienced another sharp decline on an annual average basis, the monthly data indicates a bottoming out may be occurring. Another indicator that the sector may have reached a bottom can be seen in the average annual wage. The average declined by 4.0 percent in 2002 and increased by 5.3 percent in 2003. The average is skewed by bonuses and stock options and is not necessarily indicative of hourly compensation. The average was $66,529 in 2003.

Employment in the Telecommunications industry mirrored that of the Information sector as a whole. Employment was down but seemed to have bottomed out late in the year and the average wage increased by $9,400 to $77,254. The large drop in Wireless telecommunications carriers was primarily due to an industry reclassification into All other support services.

Publishing industries, except Internet employment had small declines in 9 out of the 12 months in 2003. Average annual employment declined by 3.3 percent to 30,139. Employment classified under Software publishers declined in 11 months in 2003.

The large decline in employment in Cable and other subscription programming was primarily due to layoffs but reclassifications also took their toll. Maintaining accurate codes within the communications industry is particularly difficult due to the large number of accounting code changes that occur within the large companies.

The rapid growth in Other telecommunications is attributed to out of state employment that was liable for unemployment insurance tax in Colorado and consequently is included under the QCEW.

The Information sector contains a large number of high paying jobs within the Denver MSA. There were 54,470 jobs with an annual average wage of $73,991.

52 Finance and insurance

Employment in Finance and Insurance increased by 1,340 jobs in 2003. The increase was primarily related to the refinancing boom that occurred in the middle of the year. The strength dissipated in the last four months. The average wage increased by 5.8 percent to $58,284 with increased commissions from loans and bonuses related to increased profits and a rising stock market contributing to the gain.

Credit intermediation and related activities employment increased steadily over the past three years, until the refinance boom ended in September of 2003. Average employment increased by 3,060 jobs to 50,500. The number of establishments increased every quarter in 2001 through 2003. The average wage increased by 8 percent to $54,364.

Employment growth at Credit unions slowed in 2003 with an additional 189 jobs after gaining 224 the previous year. The number of establishments decreased by one to 238.

Mortgage and nonmortgage loan brokers employment increased by 1,140 jobs to average 5,353. The year over gain for December was only 402 jobs. This classification does not account for all of the refinance boom related increases since other codes such as Commercial banking and Credit unions also originate loans.

The job losses within Securities, commodity contracts, investments slowed in 2003. The industry lost 1,070 jobs to average 13,885. The average wage increased by 12.7 percent to $97,511.

Insurance carriers and related activities employment increased again this year with 159 more jobs to average 36,280. The average wage increased by 3.9 percent to $36,280.

Note: Sales people working strictly on commission are not included in this report.

54 Professional and technical services

Professional and technical services employment declined on an annual average basis by 2,840 jobs after declining by 9,831 in 2002. On a monthly basis, the sector looks much better. The over the year change has improved in 16 out of 18 months from July of 2002 through December of 2003. The sector had over the year gains for the last three months of the year.

Legal services employment continued to increase with a gain of 581 jobs. The industry has added jobs for 7 straight years. The average wage increased by $655 to $63,114.

Accounting and bookkeeping employment changed very little in 2003. The average wage declined by 3.25 percent to $42,596. Losses under Offices of certified public accountants accelerated in 2003 with a decline of 404 jobs to average 5,956.

Architectural and engineering services declined by 1,042 jobs on an annual basis. The industry appeared to improve over the year based on the monthly data. Engineering services employment declined by 1.9 percent on an annual average basis to 26,342. It was steady to positive on a monthly basis. Landscape architectural services had a hard year with less seasonal hiring. Employment declined by 122 to 1,207 jobs annually.

The sharp decline in employment in Computer systems design and related services that continued for two years ended in early 2003. The industry lost 2,635 jobs on an annualized basis after losing 6,978 in 2002. If the current over the year change trend continues, it will turn positive in 2004. The average wage stagnated with a loss of 0.4 percent to $73,952.

Management and technical consulting services had a strong year that is not fully reflected in the annual average numbers. On an annual basis, the industry's employment was up by 1.65 percent.

The industry steadily added jobs over the year and had an over the year gain of 6.1 percent by December. The average wage declined by 0.8 percent to $65,429. Administrative management consulting services employment declined by 49 jobs annually to average 3,362. On a monthly basis it increased at an increasing rate and set a record high during December.

Scientific research and development services declined slightly on an annual basis but appeared to be adding jobs on a monthly basis throughout the year. The annual number was negative due to a NAICS reclassification from Social science and humanities research into Child and youth services. Physical, engineering and biological research employment increased by 125 jobs to average 9,121.

Advertising and related services employment declined by 95 jobs after an 818 job loss in 2002. Employment at Direct mail advertising continued to decline but at a slower rate losing 200 jobs in 2003 after shedding 414 the previous year.

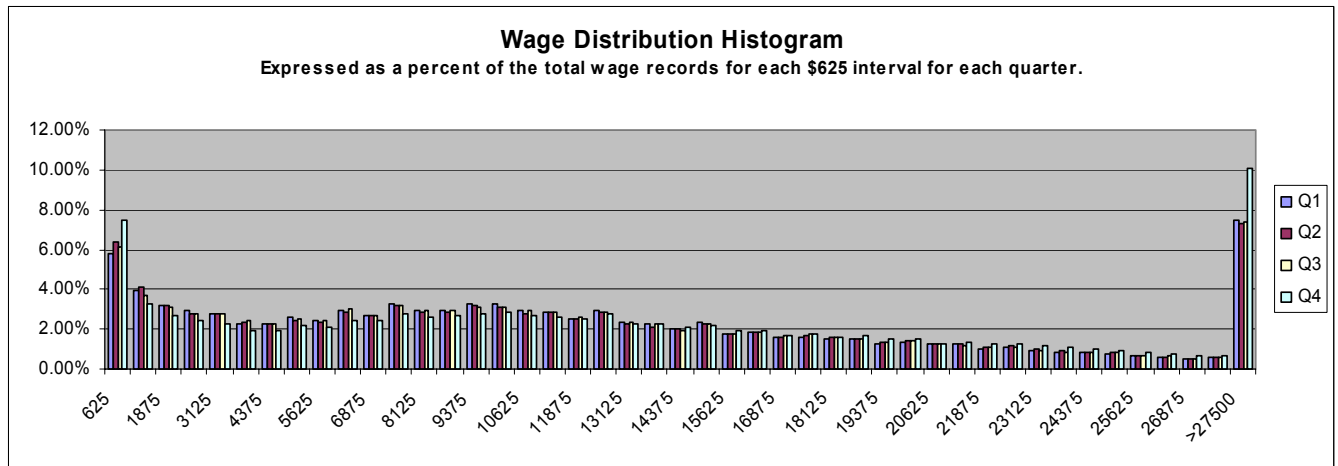

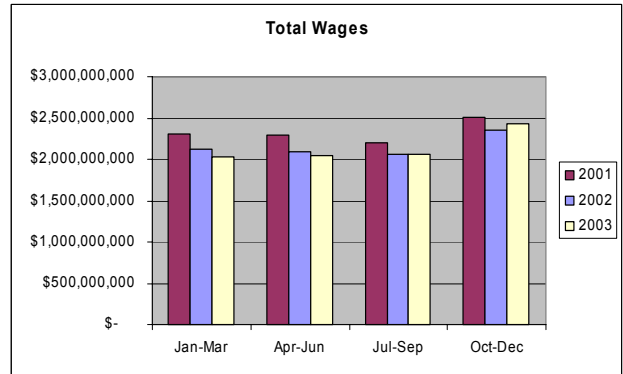

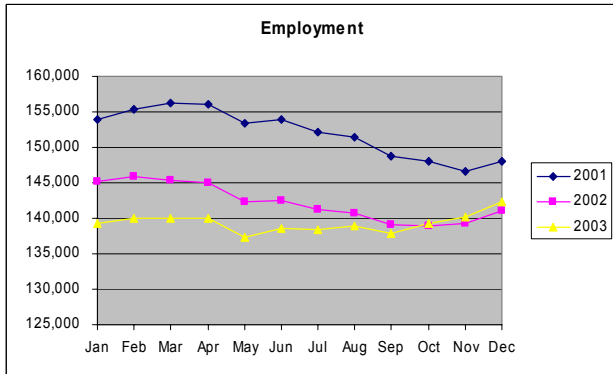

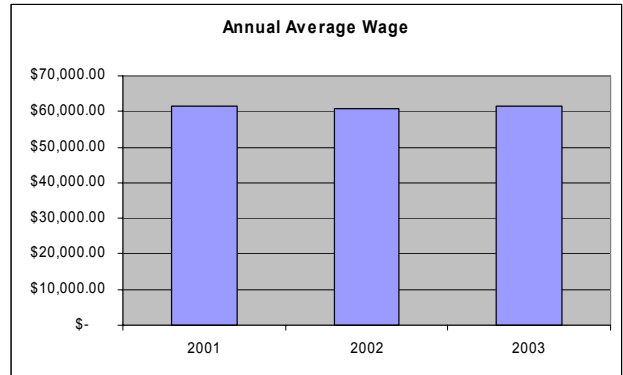

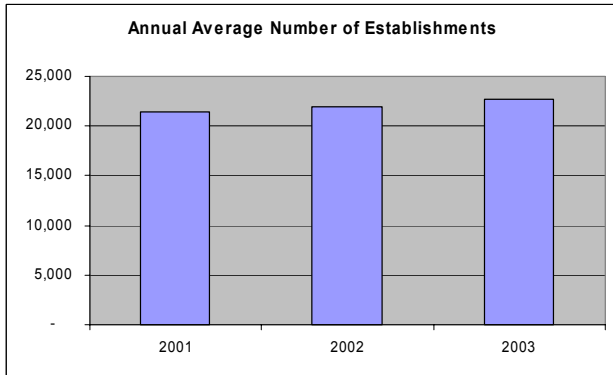

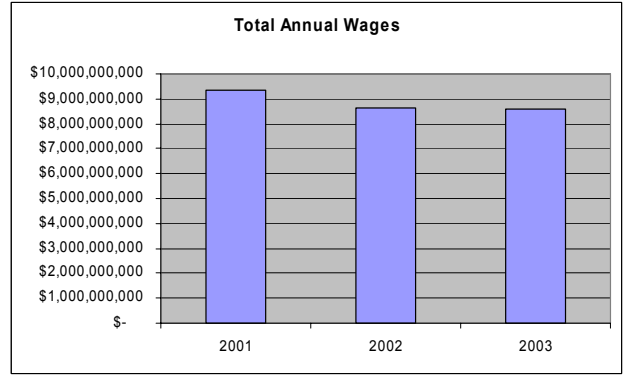

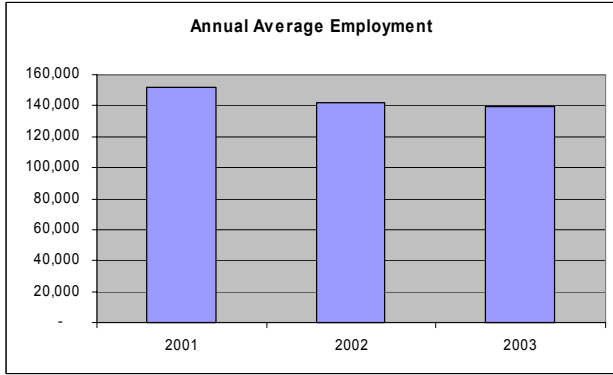

Other professional and technical services employment recorded a small gain of 98 jobs to average 10,332. Veterinary services employment continued to grow but at a slower rate. Veterinary services added 113 jobs in 2003 after adding 263 in 2002. There were 655 Veterinary services establishments employing 5,603 people in 2003.

It should be noted when reviewing the data for Professional and technical services that individuals that work in this industry are often not covered under unemployment insurance, which is the primary source of data for this report, and are subsequently omitted from this report. They become liable for unemployment insurance after they incorporate or hire staff. This means that the average wage is weighted more toward the support staff and not the professionals themselves.

55 Management of companies & enterprises

At first glance, Management of companies & enterprises appears to be a growing industry within the State of Colorado. On an annual average basis, the QCEW reported that employment increased by 1,324. This is very misleading. Employment has been increasing because of a change in the Bureau of Labor Statistics' philosophy concerning coding of what is known as auxiliary establishments. Auxiliaries are establishments primarily engaged in performing management or support services for other establishments of the same enterprise. The new coding philosophy means that more employment is being counted under Management of companies and not the actual industry that the enterprise is in. At this time, the Colorado Department of Labor has not studied the impact that this is having on the other industries employment levels. For the next couple of years, this industry is expected to grow regardless of whether the firms that are presently classified in it expand their payrolls. This philosophy change only affects NAICS 551114 Managing offices and not the two other six digit codes under Management of Companies.

In January of 2003, there were 84 establishments reclassified into Managing Offices.

The December of 2002 employment at these establishments was 1,699. The January of 2003 figure for these 84 establishments was 1,477.

Employment within Managing Offices officially increased by 1,507 jobs. The average wage increased by 4.3 percent to $67,662.

The leading county with Managing Offices employment is Arapahoe with 5,456. The average wage was $60,514, a decrease of 4.45 percent. The county with the second highest Managing Offices employment level was Denver at 5,404. The average wage in Denver increased by 10.5 percent to $76,488. Other counties with over a thousand employees include Jefferson, Broomfield and Adams with 1,535, 1,241 and 1,022 respectively.

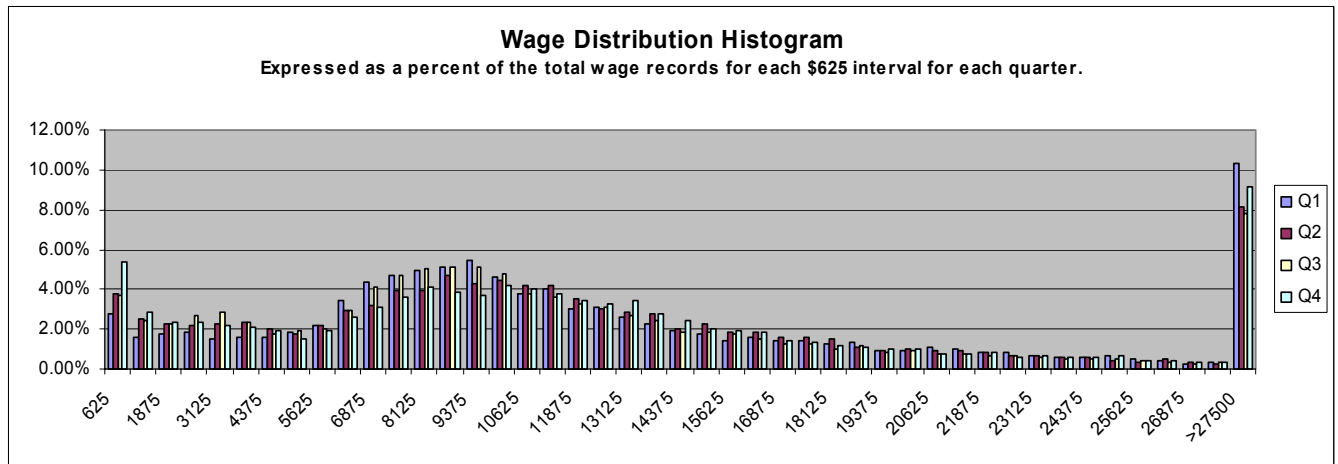

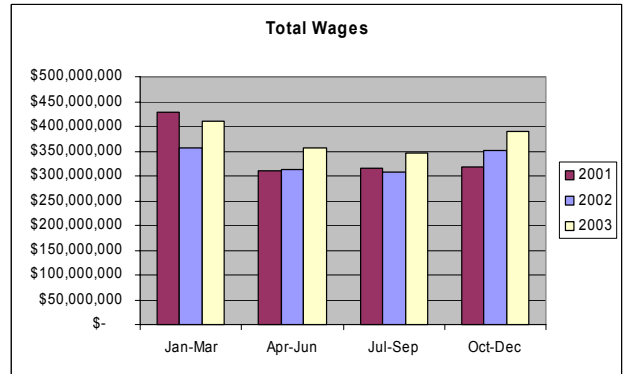

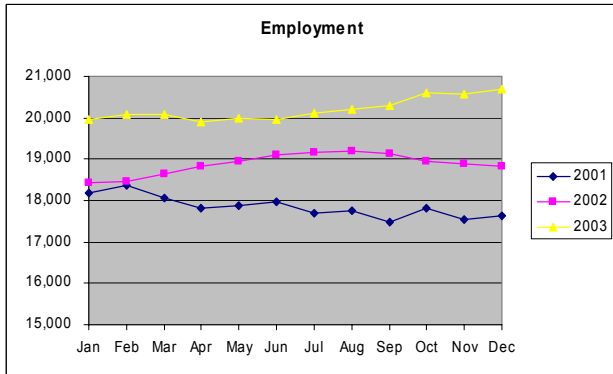

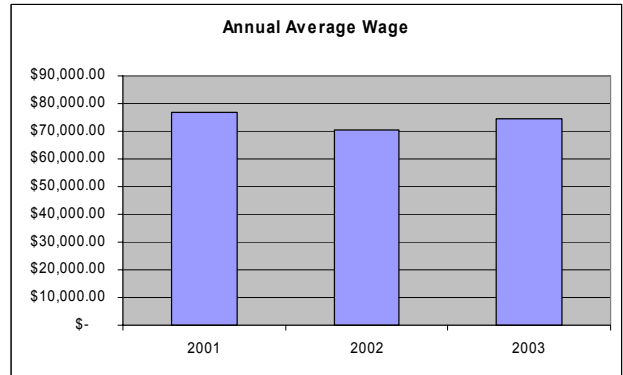

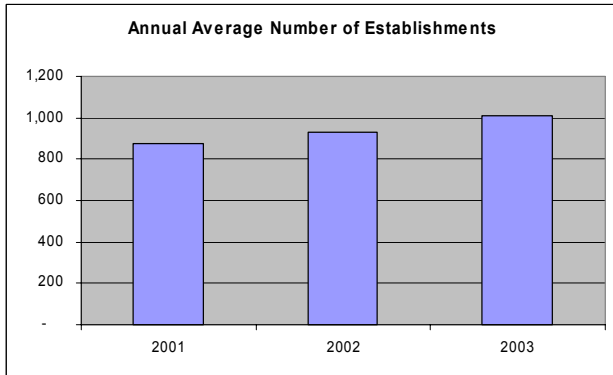

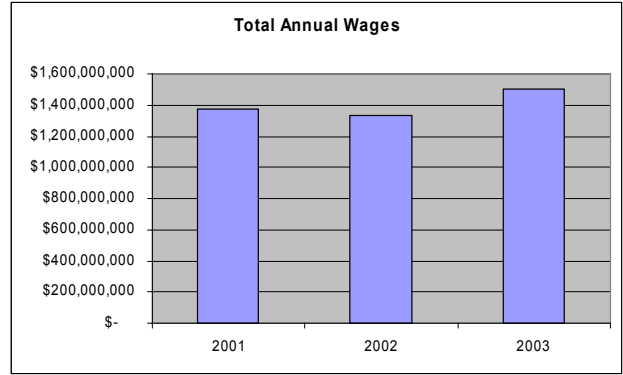

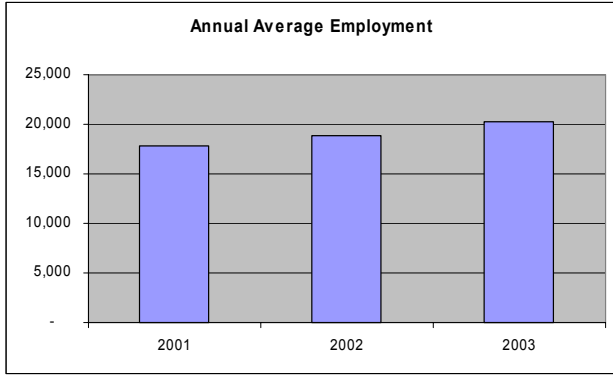

Offices of bank holding companies increased slightly with an additional 9 jobs to average 135. The average wage dropped by 31.8 percent to average $106,576.

Employment at Offices of other holding companies declined by 192 jobs to average 1,574. The average wage increased by 27.8 percent to $151,149.

56 Administrative & waste services

Although Administrative and waste services employment declined by 2,674 jobs on an annual average basis, the sector appears to have reached a bottom and started to rebound. The sector lost 8,316 jobs the previous year and had a year over gain in December. The average wage increased by 2.9 percent to $28,470.

Temporary help services, which is considered a leading indicator, declined by 2,355 jobs on an annual basis but finished the year strong and appears to be poised to show year over gains in early 2004.

Employment classified under Professional employer organizations (PEO) increased by 31 jobs to average 2,064. These organizations lease back the employees of other entities. Every attempt is made to classify the employees under the NAICS and county codes of the original entity. The employment that is counted under this code is the administrative staff of the PEO and those employees that cannot be assigned to a worksite with its own NAICS.

Security and armored car services declined by an average of 918 jobs. The decline is largely attributable to the federalizing of airport security.

Travel arrangement and reservation services losses slowed, down only 266 jobs to average 4,962.

Telephone call centers employment declined by 1,280 jobs to average 10,203. The no-call list contributed to the decline. All but 71 of the decline occurred within the Denver MSA.

Janitorial services employment increased by 361 jobs on average. The industry had an over the year gain of 727 jobs in December. The average wage increased by 3.1 percent to $14,894.

Landscaping services employment increased by 422 jobs on average. The industry started the year weak and finished much stronger based on an over the year analysis.

Waste management and remediation services declined throughout the year and recorded an annual average loss of 274 jobs. The primary reason for the decline is less clean up work at Rocky Flats.

The number of establishments increased by 56 to average 1,740. Decreases in business investment led to declines in some industries and the economic downturn led to increased demand in others.

Employment declines within Elementary and secondary schools reversed in 2003 with the addition of 194 jobs. The industry declined by 354 jobs in 2002. The number of establishments increased by 6 to 135. The average annual wage increased by 1.5 percent to $26,857. The comparable wage within local government was 18.3 percent higher at $31,771.

Colleges and universities employment increased moderately with 201 more jobs to average 7,179. The industry added 663 jobs in 2002. The number of establishments rose by 5 to 47. Other technical and trade schools employment increased even without the reclassification. The number of jobs increased by 301 to average 2,642. The average wage increased by 9.0 percent to $32,000.

Other schools and instruction employment was almost unchanged with only 30 more jobs to average 4,658. The average wage declined by 3.5 percent to $17,771. The number of establishments increased by 30 to average 698.

Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

62 Health care & social assistance

Non-government employment growth classified under Health care and social assistance slowed considerably in 2003 with an addition of 4,132 jobs after adding 6,685 in 2002. Growth in the annual average wage also slowed with a rise of 2.9 percent to $36,602. There is a high propensity for dual job holding amongst health care professionals and this is not reflected in QCEW statistics. A large portion of Health care and social assistance is classified under government ownership and is not included in the statistics on this page.

There was an average of 6 fewer General medical and surgical hospitals in 2003. However, they had 712 more jobs and the average wage increased by 5.85 percent to $39,371.

Offices of Physicians employment increased by 3.9 percent. The average wage was nearly unchanged at $65,205. Very few employees earn around this average. About 15 percent of the wage records indicated earnings of over $100,000 per year and the vast majority earned noticeably less.

Nursing care facilities employment was essentially unchanged in 2003 with an average of 19,792 jobs. The decline in the number of establishments is a misleading statistic. When a multiple location establishment changes account numbers within a quarter, both the predecessor and successor accounts are counted as active establishments. Officially, there were 14 fewer establishments in this industry in 2003.

Services for the elderly and disabled employment increased by 624 jobs with an annual average wage of only $16,210.

Home health care services employment increased by 561 jobs. This industry had a relatively low average wage of $21,754.

Offices of dentists employment increases steadily every year. In 2003, it added 369 jobs and 41 establishments.

Employment growth at Offices of chiropractors slowed considerably, adding only 94 jobs compared to 220 the previous year.

71 Arts, entertainment & recreation

Arts, entertainment and Recreation declined by 1,715 jobs with almost the entire decline resulting from NAICS reclassifications into Accommodations. The average wage rose by 3.1 percent to $28,474. This sector is very hard to analyze due to the combinations of industries that an individual establishment may contain with only one code being assigned. For instance skiing, golf courses, retail trade, restaurants and hotels are combined in various mixtures.

Skiing facilities employment declined by 218 jobs with the decline being a result of reclassifications and not a poor ski season. Fifty-three percent of the employment was in the Rural Resort WDR.

Fitness and recreational sports centers increased by 41 establishments and 82 jobs. The average wage declined 0.9 percent to $12,598.

There were 8 more Golf courses and country clubs establishments on average in 2003 with an additional 296 jobs. This highly seasonal industry had 2,878 jobs in January and 7,579 in August.

The Bowling facilities industry declined by 4 establishments and 63 jobs. Bowling lanes that are part of a larger establishment are not included in these statistics.

Casinos, except casino hotels recorded a decline of 1,494 jobs. The industry would have registered only a small decline if it were not for a reclassification into Casino hotels. The average wage was up 5 percent to $30,420.

The Sports teams and clubs employment was little changed over the year. The average wage rebounded after a tough year in 2002. The average increased by $8,179 after declining by $13,208 in 2002. The 2003 average was $248,303. Almost all of this employment is located within the Denver MSA.

Promoters of performing arts and sports employment increased by 6.1 percent to 1,115. The average wage rose by 1.0 percent to $25,134.

Theater companies and dinner theaters was little changed on an annual basis due to weaker summer hiring. The average wage increased by 2.2 percent to $20,093.

Museums, historical sites, zoos, and parks declined slightly with a loss of 66 jobs due to decreased summer hiring. The average wage increased by 0.9 percent to $24,046.

72 Accommodation & food services

Accommodation and food services employment declined by 294 despite gaining about 1,500 jobs from NAICS reclassifications. The late spring and summer months were particularly weak. June of 2003 employment was 3,045 jobs lower than June of 2002. Douglas and El Paso Counties finished the year particularly strong with large over the year gains. The number of establishments increased by 250 to 11,108.

Denver County added 50 establishments but employment declined by 334 jobs. This was a smaller drop than in 2002.

On an annual average basis, Food services and drinking places employment declined by 458 jobs to average 165,764. The industry was particularly weak during the summer months with June recording an over the year loss of 2,511. The employment picture improved later in the year with October and November showing over the year gains of 1,066 and 967 respectively.

Employment at Full-service restaurants increased only slightly even though there were 104 more of them. The average wage was $13,716, an increase of 2.1 percent.

Limited-service restaurants establishments employed an average of 293 fewer people even though there were 98 more businesses.

Drinking places, alcoholic beverages took a large hit in 2003. The industry's employment declined by an average of 599 jobs and 6 establishments. It is difficult to distinguish whether an establishment should be included in this code instead of Full-service restaurants or Theater companies and dinner theaters. Reclassifications contributed to the decline.

Cafeterias employment continued to slide with a drop of 193 jobs. The decline in the number of Cafeterias has been dramatic. In 2001 there were 179, in 2002 there were 140, and the average for 2003 was 125.

Accommodation employment increased by 163 jobs to 39,272. At face value, this appears to be a positive statistic. However, the increase was recorded after gaining about 2,400 jobs from reclassifications. There were 12 fewer establishments on average in 2003.

Hotels and motels, except casino hotels declined again in 2003 with a loss of 1,099 jobs after declining by 1,682 the previous year. There was an average of 2 more establishments. Employment in the Rural Resort WDR declined by 433 jobs or 7.75 percent. Employment in the Denver MSA started the year with over the year gains and ended the year with over the year losses. The same phenomenon occurred in El Paso County.

RV parks and recreational camps employment returned close to 2001 levels after a tough year in 2002. The average wage remained flat with an increase of only 1.3 percent to $16,024.

Special food services employment declined by an average of 383 jobs. The industry was particularly weak during the middle six months of the year.

Note: Restaurants that are part of an Accommodation establishment have their employment counted under the Accommodation code.

Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

Federal Government

Annual average employment increased by 299 jobs to average 53,484. The average wage increased by 3.55 percent to $53,876. Employment had over the year gains through September and then it had losses. This is because of the initial ramp-up of the Transportation Security Administration in late 2002.

Postal service employment decreased again in 2003 with a loss of 541 jobs. This is the fourth consecutive year that postal employment has declined. The average wage rose 1.9 percent to $46,573.

Hospitals employment increased slowly but steadily in 2003. On a monthly basis, employment steadily declined in 2001 and most of 2002. In late 2002 it began to increase.

Transportation Security Administration (TSA) employment was reclassified from Transportation program administration into Other justice and safety activities.

Administration of environmental programs was little changed over the year. The average wage increased by 4.1 percent to $56,397.

Educational services employment declined again this year with a drop of 145 jobs after declining by 195 in 2002. Reporting changes led to the decline.

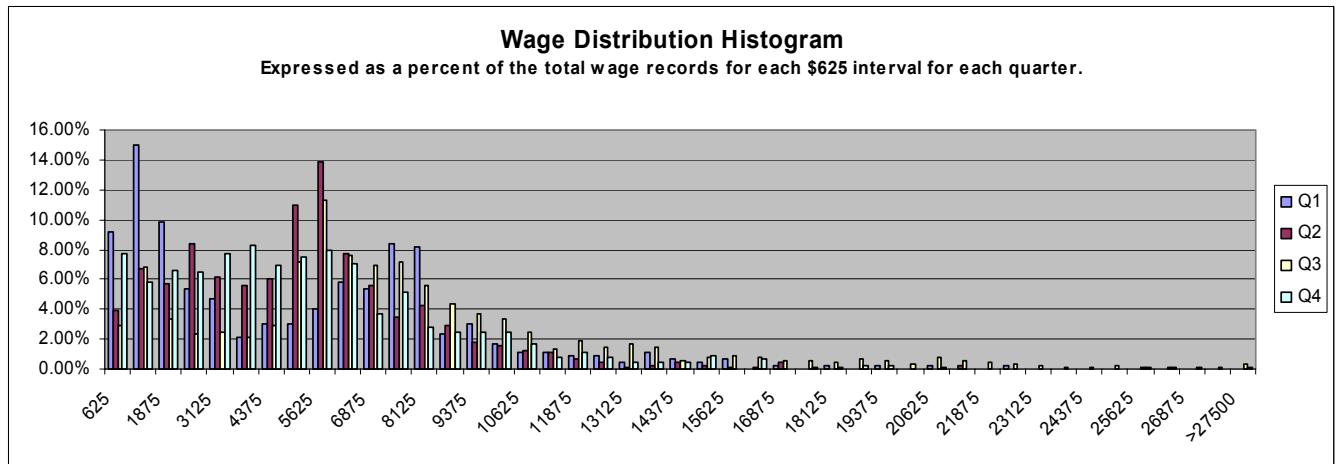

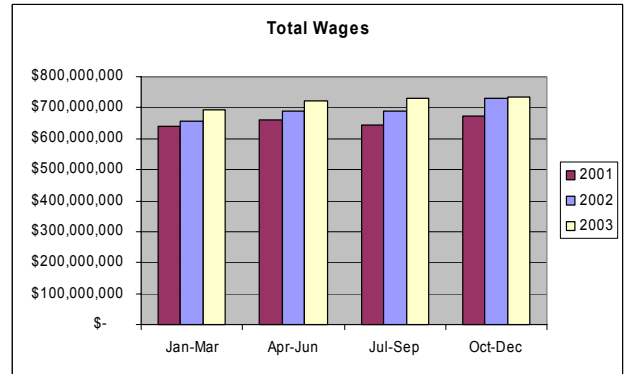

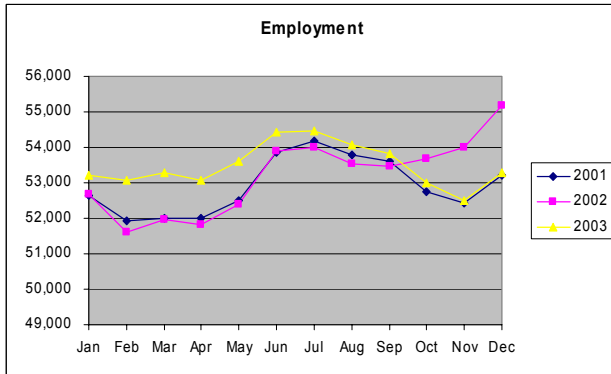

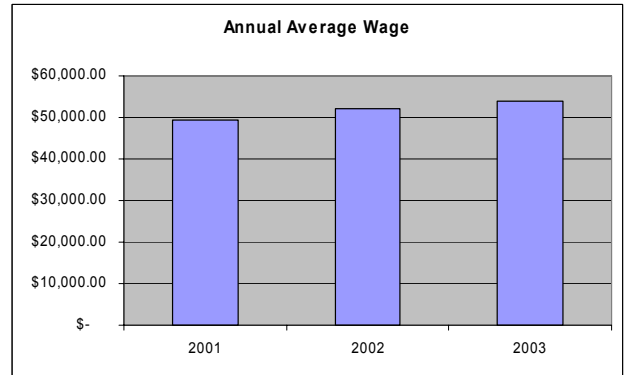

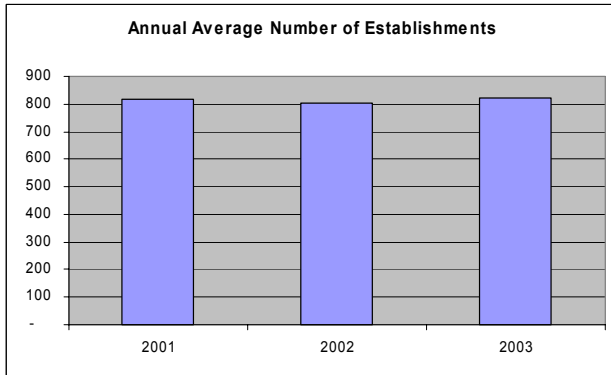

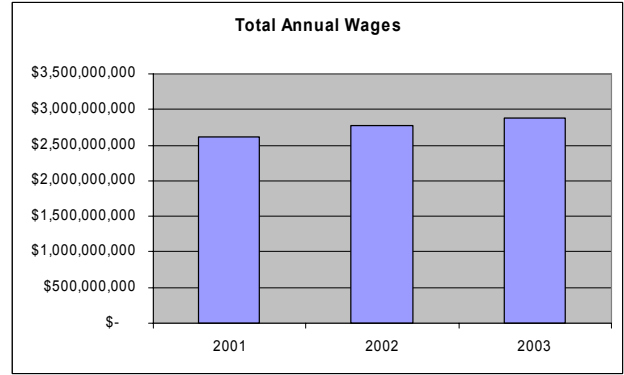

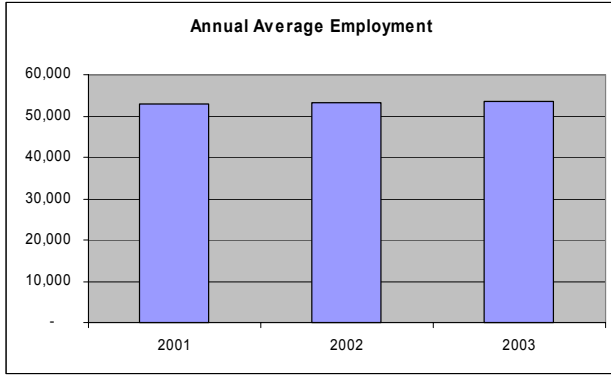

Denver County employment increased by 2.0 percent to 15,562. El Paso County employment increased by 0.4 percent to 10,301 and Jefferson County decreased by 0.6 percent to 8,541. No other county had over 3,000 jobs.

Notes: The wage distribution chart on the following page only includes records for unemployment insurance claimants who claimed against the Federal Government because the Federal Government does not normally provide this information to the states. Only civilian military employment is included in the QCEW. Hence, troop deployments do not impact the reported employment levels.

Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

State Government

State employment reversed a long standing streak of increases with a loss of 743 jobs. The last time that covered employment decreased was in 1996 when work study students were removed from the series. On a monthly basis, the downturn is much more severe. The over the year loss was 1,538. The average wage, which increased by 5.2 percent in 2002, increased by only 1.2 percent in 2003 to average $43,066. There was an over the year loss in average wages for the fourth quarter. State workers did not receive raises in 2003.

Educational services employment was little changed on an annual basis. On a monthly basis, the industry recorded over the year gains early in the year and losses latter on. The average wage increased by only 0.4 percent to $40,256.

Justice, public order, and safety activities employment declined for the first time in memory with a loss of 461 jobs to average 11,190. Courts had the highest percentage drop and Correctional institutions had the largest job loss. Police protection employment increased slightly.

Health care and social assistance employment was essentially unchanged with 7,345 jobs. On a monthly basis, the over the year loss was 1.9 percent or 142 jobs in December. The average wage increased by 2.75 percent to $40,404.

Administration of economic programs employment decreased by 45 jobs to average 883. The average wage increased by 3.1 percent to $50,276.

Heavy and civil engineering construction a.k.a. the Department of Transportation, employment increased by 58 jobs to average 3,165. The increase was a result of increased employment levels during the summer months.

Within Denver County, employment declined by 142 jobs to average 20,882. Boulder County was unchanged at 7,891. Larimer County declined by 60 jobs to 7,435. The only other counties to have over 3,000 employees were Jefferson 3,989, Pueblo 3,881, Arapahoe at 3,666 and El Paso at 3,008. The county with the largest decline was Pueblo at 151 and the largest gain was Arapahoe at 199.

Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

State Government

Quarterly Census of Employment and Wages

Local Government

Employment in local government increased on an annual basis despite recording over the year losses toward the end of the year. Growth in local government was constrained by slumping tax revenues and/or TABOR restrictions. The rapid growth in population ceased during the economic downturn which decreased the growth in demand for some local government services.

Educational services employment increased by 910 annually. Employment levels for the start of the 03/04 school year were below those of the previous school year. The average wage increased by 3.4 percent to $31,618. The largest decline occurred within Denver County with a loss of 545 jobs. The over the year loss in December was 1,332 jobs. El Paso County added the most jobs with an addition of 444 to average 14,684. Douglas County added 281 jobs to average 5,584. Adams County added 258 jobs to average 8,945.

Health care and social services employment gained 375 jobs on an annual average basis to average 11,898. Employment in this sector advanced rapidly throughout 2002, gaining jobs every month. In 2003 employment was unchanged throughout the course of the year. The average wage increased by 4.7 percent to $37,156.

Hospital employment increased by 311 jobs to average 10,502. The average wage rose by $1,844 to $38,603. Employment growth within El Paso County slowed with the addition of 82 jobs versus 266 in 2002. There were 3,591 jobs with an average annual wage of $38,071. Employment growth within Denver County slowed with the addition of 194 jobs after adding 310 in 2002. There were 3,308 jobs with an average wage of $45,697.

The catch all category of Public Administration increased by only 222 jobs or 0.3 percent. This sector is very hard to analyze because a great deal of industry detail is not disclosed. Even the county coding can be misleading for municipalities that are within more than one county such as the cities of Englewood or Westminster. The largest decline occurred in Denver County with a loss of 500 jobs to average 12,653. The average wage in Denver increased by 2.5 percent to $45,512. The largest gain occurred in Arapahoe County with a gain of 134 jobs to average 7,580. The average wage in Arapahoe increased by 3.7 percent to $43,813.

Utilities employment increased by 161 jobs to average 5,713. The average wage increased by 4.6 percent to $50,221. Water supply and irrigation systems employment increased by 40 jobs to average 2,638.

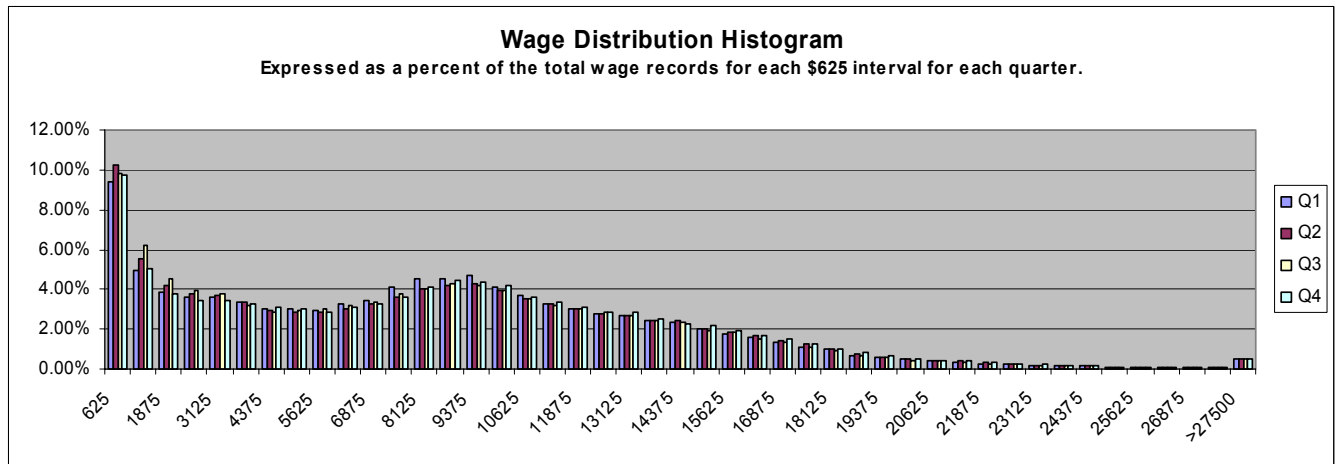

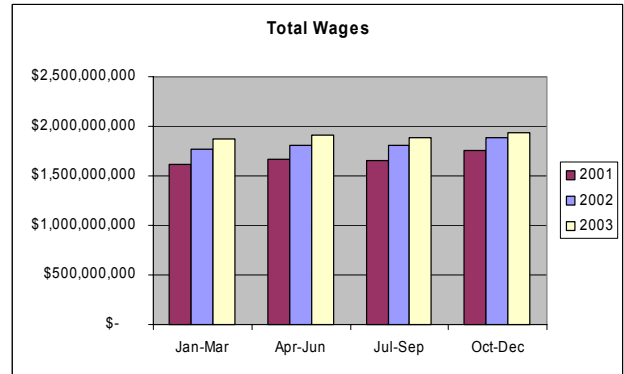

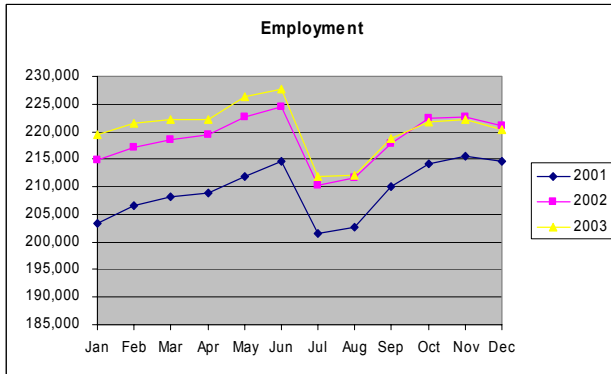

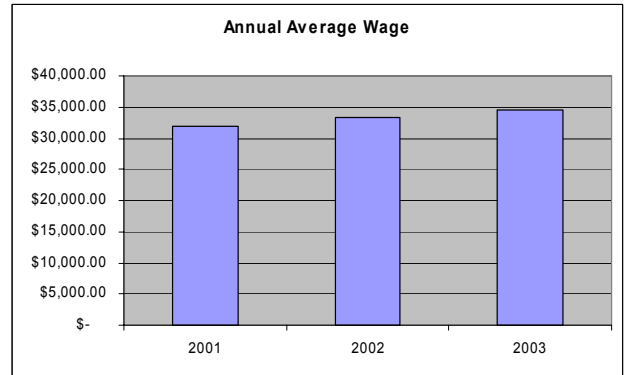

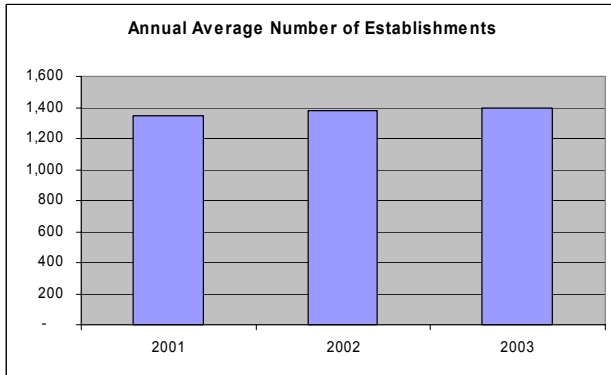

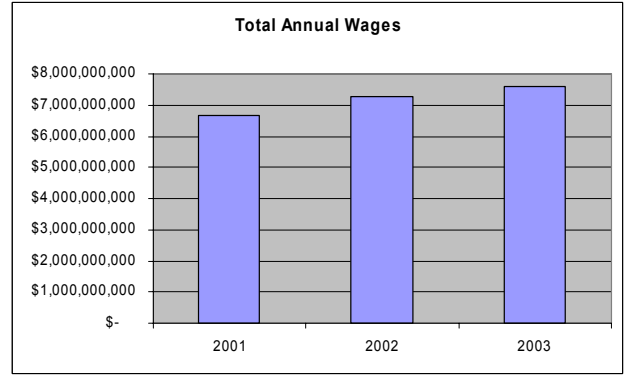

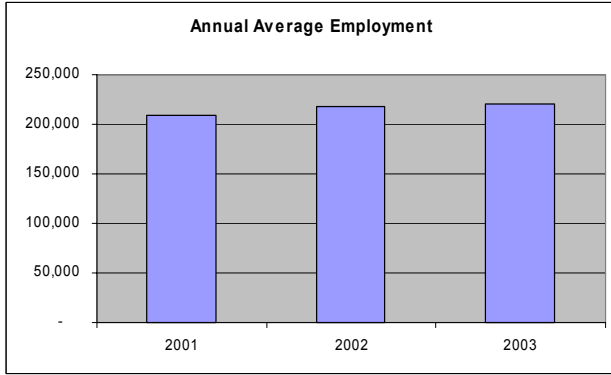

Transportation and Warehousing employment decreased by 106 jobs to average 2,571. Transit and ground passenger transportation increased by 119 jobs to average 2,443. The average wage in Transit and ground passenger transportation increased by 2.15 percent to $42,544.

Note: Most city and county governments only report totals and do not provide the QCEW with employment and wages by industry. School districts are always reported separately but only at the county level.
