ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
DENVER, COLORADO, November 30, 1886. }

To His Excellency,

BENJAMIN H. EATON,
Governor and Commander-in-Chief,
State of Colorado:

SIR :

I have the honor to present herewith my report for the two fiscal years ending November 30, 1886, with accompanying report of Colonel P. McCallin, Inspector General.

Before entering into a detailed account of the administration of this department, I deem it meet to refer to a prevalent popular misconception regarding the militia and the National Guard of the State, respectively. The terms are not synonymous. Section 1, article 17, Constitution of Colorado, provides for the establishment of the militia as follows: "The militia of the State shall consist of all able bodied male residents of the State, between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years; except such persons as may be exempted by the laws of the United States or the State." Thus, all citizens (except exemptions) are members of the militia.

The organized and disciplined military force of the State is the National Guard, created by section 2, article 3, act of 1879, and section 3, page 242, act of 1883, and should not be designated "militia," for, while the law empowers the Governor to call out the militia, he can only do so after the National Guard has been found inadequate to the occasion.

Section 3, article 17, of the Constitution, provides that the Governor shall appoint all general, field and staff officers of the militia, and that he shall commission all line officers elected by the companies.

Under the law creating the National Guard, the general officers are elected by the commissioned, field and line officers, and line officers elected by the companies are to be commissioned only after they have properly qualified. Thus, the distinction between the militia and the National Guard is well defined, and officers of the general staff, as per opinion of the Attorney General, are not officers of the National Guard, and are not entitled to vote at the election of a Brigadier General.

ENROLLMENT.

The Adjutant General of each State is, by law, required to furnish the Adjutant General of the United States with a report giving the number of the organized militia, and of the unorganized militia, by counties. For this purpose an enrollment was ordered in 1885, resulting in failure, as only one-half of the counties responded, owing to the fact that this law had been regarded as a dead letter by the county assessors, though they had each been notified by letter that such an enrollment was required.

Again, an enrollment was ordered this year, and eleven counties having failed to make the proper returns, suit has been brought against the assessors of these counties, as required by law.

EXEMPTION OF NATIONAL GUARD.

The question having been raised in several counties of the State as to the exemptions enjoyed under the law by members of the National Guard, the following is appended:

Section 18, article 4, Militia, page 705, General Statutes, 1883: "Active members of all companies, troops, and batteries, shall, during their membership, be exempt from labor on the public highways, and from service as jurors."

APPROPRIATION.

Upon taking charge of the department, I found that the unreported indebtedness, incurred by the previous administration, was so large that the estimated collection of the military poll tax for the year 1885 would not meet the necessary expenses of the National Guard, after the payment of the indebtedness alluded to; a full and detailed statement was made, with the recommendation that the General Assembly make an appropriation, or disband the National Guard. Your Excellency was pleased to approve the report, and submit it, with your recommendation to the Legislature, then convened. This body, recognizing the importance of maintaining the military branch of the State service, made an appropriation of $15,000 for the year 1885, and of $20,000 for the year 1886. With this amount, all indebtedness was paid, every company of the National Guard thoroughly uniformed and equipped, and at the presentation of this report this department does not owe one dollar, with the exception of such quarterly expense bills as will be presented in January, 1887.

CERTIFICATES OF INDEBTEDNESS.

It was my intention, with the balance of the appropriation for 1886, (herewith reported) to lift the certificates of indebtedness issued (explanation of which will be made hereafter), but the State Treasurer has decided that this can be done only by act of the Legislature. In consequence of this decision, the balance is allowed to revert to the general fund.

PURCHASE OF ARMS.

During the summer of 1885, owing to the labor troubles then existing, the Military Board deemed it advisable to place guards over the armories in the city of Denver, for the protection of State property. This was undoubtedly a wise course, for had it not been for the vigilance displayed, and the efficiency of the troops, much damage might have resulted.

The military department was deficient in arms and ammunition, and requisition was made on the ordnance department at Washington for such stores as were absolutely needed. General Benét refused to approve of the requisition, as the State of Colorado had already overdrawn its quota, and stood indebted to the United States government over $19,000. It being considered necessary, I was instructed to telegraph General Benét to ship the stores at once, as the State would pay for them in cash. He replied that the United States government would not sell ordnance stores. I was then ordered to purchase in the open market such stores as were needed, upon which order I bought 400 B. L. Springfield rifles, caliber 45, with accouterments, 50,000 rounds of ammunition, and fifty saddles, blankets and bridles. At this time the appropriation for 1885 and the military fund were exhausted. There were no funds on hand to pay the guards at the armories, and for stores purchased. The Attorney General having ruled that it was a case of emergency, certificates of indebtedness were accordingly issued to meet the demand.

UNIFORMS.

At a meeting of the Military Board, it was concluded to equip all companies with fatigue uniforms. Bids were solicited, and at a meeting of the board, March 23, 1885, the contract was let. As the former biennial report embraced the uniforms that were individual property of companies and the uniforms issued by the State in one grand total, as "uniforms on hand," it was decided that the companies that had supplied themselves or wished to purchase their own outfit, should be allowed contract prices.

EXTRA EXPENSE INCURRED.

During the present administration some expenses were incurred, which past administrations did not allow. These were guard duty, courts martial (pay of officers for attendance, and cost of transportation and stenographers), officers' meeting, Colorado Volunteers, Examining Board, enrollment, rent (State store room, which, under the Constitution, should have been supplied by the Legislature), Indian troubles (expenses of couriers and officers ordered to report for duty), and expense account. In the last account is included salary of clerk at Adjutant General's office, telephone, with connections to armory, which was deemed advisable, and insurance ordered by the Military Board, to be placed on all military property within the State.

ARMORIES.

For the past few years, the military fund has been burdened with the payment of large rentals under old contracts. The worst case is the lease of the Leadville armory, which calls for a monthly rental of $200, irrespective of light, fuel and other incidental expenses. This lease will expire on the fourteenth day of August, 1887. The lease of the Denver armory at $2,400 per annum expired last December, and was immediately renewed at $1,200 per annum. The lease of the Lake City armory at $900 per annum expired at about the same time, and the company at that point was allowed $40 per month thereafter to cover all expenses. The only other expensive armory under lease is that of Pueblo, at $900 per annum, irrespective of gas, fuel and other expenses, which lease runs until 1889. At the time these leases were made, Leadville was the station of five companies. The Denver armory was occupied by six, and Pueblo had two companies. At the present time, Leadville has but two, Denver five, and Pueblo one company, occupying these armories. To determine the exact expense of each company to the State, janitors' hire, lights and fuel have been added to the armory expense account in these cases, divided pro rata, and charged to the companies in proportion to the time they have occupied these armories.

This will explain the large amounts charged to the company at Pueblo and to those at Leadville.

Action was taken by the Military Board early in this administration, by which all future leases entered into should not exceed $40 per month for any one company, which amount should cover rental, janitor's services, light, fuel, and all other expenses. At this expense, the handsomest armory in the State, that of Company "C," First Infantry, stationed at Greeley, has been secured.

ENCAMPMENT.

At the organization of the National Guard, it was enacted that a State encampment should be held annually. The importance of such an encampment, especially as a camp of instruction, cannot be overestimated, and is conceded by all having knowledge of the subject.

The companies comprising the various regiments and battalions are scattered, numbers of them being stationed at remote points from headquarters. With the exception of the companies stationed at Denver, none have had experience in battalion drill, which is most essential should they be called into active service. In past years such an encampment could not have been held, as the National Guard was neither uniformed nor equipped, nor were there sufficient funds for the holding of the same. This year it was expected that the first State encampment would be held, and all arrangements were made accordingly; but the failure of the relief bill in Congress to pass in time to supply the troops with overcoats and blankets before winter set in, caused its postponement until next year.

The troops are now ready to go into camp on the shortest possible notice, and all that remains to carry out the law requiring an annual encampment, is the necessary provision to be made whereby the military fund will become an established fact, and be sufficient to cover all expenses. In connection with this, I wish to call attention to the camp grounds in other States. Nearly every State having an organized militia has for encampment permanent and fixed grounds, the property of the State. In this State there are now large tracts of school lands which are rapidly being disposed of. A tract of such land, sufficient for encampment and contiguous to some central point accessible to railroads, could be purchased at a very low price, in comparison to what it will cost in the future. I recommend that some provision be made for the immediate purchase of such a tract of land, and for the erection of suitable permanent buildings thereon, to be used for encampment purposes.

OFFICERS' MEETING.

An encampment having been found impracticable this year, as stated, the Military Board decided to assemble the officers of the Colorado National Guard and of the general staff, for the purpose of education in tactics and official courtesies, exchanging views for the promotion of the efficiency of the National Guard, and the devising of means by which necessary legislation might be secured. To carry out this programme, special rates of transportation were secured, and garrison pay was allowed the officers for the time thus engaged.

This meeting was a most decided success, bringing together (as it did) officers from all portions of the State, and establishing that harmonious feeling so essential to the troops of any State. Heretofore, the officers of the National Guard, stationed outside of its immediate vicinity, were unknown in Denver, and the appearance of such a large, intelligent and fine looking body of men at the Capitol, was a source of surprise and gratification. Their reception and entertainment by the Denver officers, Chamber of Commerce, City of Denver, and citizens generally, will long be gratefully remembered by the officers who attended this meeting.

RECORDS.

Upon taking charge of the Adjutant General's office, I found that no record had ever been kept of the officers and men composing the National Guard, so that it was impossible to give any member thereof, upon his discharge, a complete military record.

Copies of all vouchers of disbursements had been kept by my predecessor, but in the ledger and journal, evidently purchased in 1879, not one entry had been made. No accounts had ever been kept of the expenditures, no duplicate bills were on file, and had a committee been appointed to examine into the expenditures of the office, its papers could have been found only in the Auditor's office, and the military accounts would have been found mixed indiscriminately with others. I immediately opened a set of books, filed duplicate bills, and kept each account separate. The various expense accounts can now be readily checked and examined by any one desiring so to do.

At a meeting of the Military Board, March 23, 1885, I urged the necessity of making a complete record of the National Guard, and keeping it in this office. I was instructed by the board to procure proper books and to have a roster compiled, a clerk being allowed for the necessary increase of the office work.

The following order was issued :

GENERAL ORDER No. 10.	}	STATE OF COLORADO, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, DENVER, COLO., April 28, 1885.	}
--------------------------	---	------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	---

It is ordered that, for future reference, a record of the Colorado National Guard be compiled and kept complete in this office. Herewith you will find blanks to be filled and returned. Commanders are instructed to fill out blanks commencing with original muster of company, troop, or battery, adding only such names, up to date, as show honorable discharge by expiration of enlistment or death while in service, and the names of all commissioned officers who have resigned. Promotions, meritorious service, etc., will be noted under "Remarks."

This will be recorded, and then a roster commenced, showing present organization, and, after this entry, no names will be allowed to be dropped from the rolls except through absence from State or county, or by reason of court-martial.

Blanks, will, on application, be furnished for "Enlistment" and "Dropping from Rolls."

Officers are particularly instructed to aid in securing a correct roster.

By command of

BENJ. H. EATON,

Commander-in-Chief.

F. A. TAYLOR,

Adjutant General.

It is a matter of regret that but few company commanders of old organizations had the esprit de corps to take the time necessary to properly fill out the blanks furnished and forward them to this office. To this neglect may be ascribed the absence of a table in this report, showing the military record, or history, by advancement of the officers of the Colorado National Guard. It is to be hoped that before the next report is submitted, commanding officers may take pride in completing this record.

CONGRESSIONAL RELIEF FUND.

During the year 1868, the Territory of Colorado had considerable trouble with Indians located within and without its borders, and was not supplied with arms and other ordnance stores for the proper protection of its citizens. Hence the General Government was called upon for aid. The appeal was responded to by the shipping to the Territorial authorities of a very large number of worthless Spencer carbines and rifles at prices ranging from twenty-four to thirty dollars each, a thousand obsolete sword and bayonet scabbards, and some cap pouches built before the war. These arms were issued to the settlers, but after a series of accidents, resulting more disastrously to the settlers than to the Indians, by reason of the breech being more deadly than the muzzle, the Adjutant General of the Territory ordered the use of these arms discontinued, and refused to pay the freight for their return to the Territorial headquarters. These relics may now be found throughout the State, and are pointed to with pride by the old settlers. The cap pouches and sword bayonet scabbards are held awaiting the passage of a Congressional bill exchanging obsolete arms and accoutrements for the modern patterns. This remarkable invoice of curiosities was charged to the Territory by the ordnance department in the amount of nearly $35,000. The basis of quota of ordnance stores supplied to the States and Territories is fixed upon the number of representatives. As this State has had but one representative, this indebtedness, together with others created by subsequent Indian troubles, would have caused Colorado to celebrate her centennial as a State before ordnance stores (under the act arming the militia) could have been drawn. Efforts were made to cancel this indebtedness, which met with no success.

While in Washington, December, 1885, representing

Colorado at the convention of the National Guard association of the United States, I discovered that several States had succeeded in securing their release of ordnance indebtedness. I visited the Adjutant General's department, secured a bill of particulars, and succeeded in getting Senator Teller and Representative Symes interested in the matter. These gentlemen introduced bills of relief in the Senate and House, and through their united efforts, the indebtedness was removed, and credit given the State for $16,000, to be drawn in ordnance stores.

The thanks of the Colorado National Guard are due Senator Teller and Representatives Symes for their earnest efforts in its behalf.

Having already purchased ordnance stores, and being in need of quartermaster stores, I was instructed by the Military Board to proceed to Washington, and make some suitable exchange for stores as needed. I was there informed that the Government would neither issue nor sell quartermaster stores to the States. As a last resort, an exchange was arranged by which the State is to be furnished with all necessary blankets, overcoats and other minor stores, leaving a balance sufficient to supply ammunition and such other ordnance stores as are needed by the Colorado National Guard. As this transaction is not completed, it does not appear in this report.

BONDS FOR STORES.

It is to be regretted that, in the past, little attention has been paid to securing to the State, uniforms, arms and accoutrements issued to the various commands, by good and sufficient bonds, or any bonds at all. Through this neglect a large amount of quartermaster and ordnance stores have been lost. Where reliable bonds were given, the losses have been made good, with the exception of the following companies, mustered out:

Co. I, First infantry, Capt. E. P. Pitkin commanding—
Ordnance stores-----	$37 70
Quartermaster stores -----	90 50
Total -----	$128 20
Co. I, First infantry, Capt. W. H. Andrew commanding—
Ordnance stores-----	$74 00
Co. A, Third infantry, Capt. J. J. Quinn commanding—
Ordnance stores-----	53 00
Quartermaster stores -----	177 50
Total -----	$230 50

If settlement is not made for these stores lost, suit will be instituted against the bondsmen.

All companies now in the service have filed proper bonds, approved under seal by the clerk of the county in which they are stationed.

ENLISTMENT PRIOR TO ELECTION.

The Attorney General has decided that, under the law, a line officer elected and failing to qualify, must be relegated to the ranks. Hence members of the National Guard only are eligible to such election.

RIFLE PRACTICE.

One of the most important factors in the drill of the soldier, and one in which officers and men should alike take interest, is that of target practice.

In the past, for a year or more, various companies throughout the State have vied with each other in rifle matches, but the failure of the State to provide ammunition, with the expense entailed upon the companies, gradually brought about such a want of interest, that lately no emulation has been manifested.

There must be something to relieve the monotony of the volunteer soldiers' duties, and in no manner can the relief be more marked, combined, as it is, with valuable instruction, than in target practice. With the small amount of ammunition on hand, the refusal of the Ordnance department to furnish any on requisition, and the necessity of keeping on hand a sufficient quantity in case of emergency, I could only issue (and that late in the season) a limited supply to each company, but with this a reloading apparatus to each post.

There is now enroute from the Ordnance department, Washington, a sufficient supply of ammunition to furnish all rifle teams for the coming season. It is to be hoped that interest in this branch will be renewed. Company commanders will be expected to keep not only a strict account of all ammunition expended, but also of the score made by each member of their respective commands.

BRIGADIER GENERAL JONES.

To Brigadier General A. H. Jones, retired, I wish to express my thanks for valuable aid, by advice and service. To his efforts in the interests of the brigade, and of the esteem and affection with which he is regarded by his late subordinates, the best testimonial is the following resolution passed by the officers of the National Guard, at a meeting to elect his successor :

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
DENVER, COLORADO, August 3, 1886. }

Circular No. 1.

At a meeting held March 27, A. D. 1886, at the State Armory, Denver, Colorado, for the election of Brigadier General, vice Brigadier General A. H. Jones, retiring, the following resolutions were introduced and unanimously adopted :

WHEREAS, Brigadier General A. H. Jones has served the State in a military capacity for the last fifteen years, and for the last three years as Brigade Commander, and in every position in which he has been placed, has shown himself a high minded gentleman and an officer of superior ability.

Resolved, That it is the universal expression of the officers of the Colorado National Guard, here assembled, reposing the utmost confidence in him now, as in the past, we deeply regret his decision to retire from the service, and we hereby return our sincere thanks for the untiring zeal he has always manifested in forwarding the interests of the National Guard.

In retiring, against the wishes of the officers of his command, from a position he has so honorably filled, we would convey to him our heartfelt wishes for his future success, coupled with the deepest regrets, that he should feel compelled to relinquish the position of which he has ever been an ornament.

By command of

BENJAMIN H. EATON,

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

F. A. TAYLOR,

Adjutant General.

THE CODE.

Under the acts of 1879, the State Military Board was required to prescribe a code of regulations not inconsistent with the law, that would improve the discipline and increase the efficiency of the National Guard, which code, on the approval of the Governor, should become a part of the law.

Former military boards ignored this, in consequence of which there was, in reality, no law under which officers could act. The present board, after due deliberation, adopted and had printed such a code of regulations, after being approved by the Governor. The code having been duly filed at the office of the Secretary of State, has now become part of the military law of the State of Colorado, and it is earnestly recommended that, for their guidance, officers and men of the National Guard will make themselves thoroughly familiar with the same.

COLORADO VOLUNTEERS.

The General Assembly of 1883 appropriated one thousand dollars, known as "the Adjutant General's Special Fund," for the purpose of writing up from the rolls in the possession of the State, the record of the Colorado volunteers in the War of the Rebellion. Adjutant General Sheperd procured a roster, and employed clerks to write up the records. At the last biennial report the balance in this fund is reported as $190.78—meant for balance December 31.

Following is the statement of expenditures, as under the above appropriation:

STATEMENT ADJUTANT GENERAL'S SPECIAL FUND.

November 30, 1884.....	Balance on hand.....		$ 280 78
	CONTRA.
December 31, 1884.....	Clerks.....	$ 40 00

The appropriation having been exhausted, and the work being incomplete, I was instructed by your Excellency to draw on the military fund to such an amount as was necessary to complete the same. The money thus expended, it was expected would be replaced to the credit of the military fund, through appropriation, by the next Legislature.

The rolls from which these records were to be compiled are very incomplete, and frequently efforts were made by members of the Colorado Veteran Association to obtain from the Adjutant General's department at Washington records of the Colorado Volunteers, but without success. While in Washington, I succeeded in interesting Adjutant General Drum in this matter to such an extent that he had his clerical force discontinue all other work and prepare copies of all muster-out rolls of companies of Colorado in the possession of his department. The association then endeavored to raise sufficient funds to have these copies compared with the records of this office, the necessary corrections made, and additions placed on the record. It was, however, unable to obtain funds for the necessary clerical hire, and there is no authority to draw such an amount from the military fund.

• I earnestly recommend the necessity of an appropriation sufficient to cover all expense of completing these records. As the records now stand, whole companies are entered without dates of muster-in or muster-out, and scarcely a day passes without application for one or more transcripts of record, involving much time taken from other duties in looking up various dates, and often requiring correspondence with the Adjutant General.

DUTIES OF ADJUTANT GENERAL.

The duties of this department, if properly attended to, require the constant application of the Adjutant General and the assistance of at least one clerk. My predecessors in this office, having individual business interests to engross their attention, and consequently much of their time, the papers required to be on file were permitted to remain unrecorded or were never demanded, and although my undivided attention, and that of a clerk, have been given to the work of posting up, my successor will find the next two years necessary to fully complete the records.

Formerly no effort was apparently made to furnish this office quarterly returns, semi-annual statements and enlistment papers. This has been corrected, and, with the exception of the First Regiment, papers are now received with commendable regularity. Upon receipt of these papers, they are compared with the roster of the National Guard and the quartermaster and ordnance books of this office, and upon the detection of any error are returned for correction. This is the only feasible method for a correct exhibit of the numerical strength of the various commands and of the State property in their charge. With this work, the keeping of the books of account, the constantly increasing correspondence and the daily demands for transcripts of record, the time of the Adjutant General is fully employed.

CADETS.

Appreciating the importance of instructing the youth of the country in the use of arms and in primary military discipline, the State has encouraged the formation of companies of boys without the pale of the National Guard.

The Eaton Cadets, stationed at Denver, a fine company of young men, commanded by Captain Lew Reyer, a former officer of the National Guard, in pursuance of this policy, have been issued arms and accoutrements, and on stated drill nights occupy one of the State armories.

The High School Cadets, pupils of this educational institute, and commanded by Captain C. A. Bradly, their military instructor, are also in possession of State arms and accoutrements. This company has bi-weekly drills, and contemplates its enlargement to a battalion organization in the near future.

INDEPENDENT COMPANIES.

There is in the Military Board a decided opposition to granting permits for the organization of military companies not connected with the National Guard, and but one independent company, stationed at Leadville, has permission to carry arms. They are a splendid body of men, well officered and finely uniformed. Should the State ever be in need of their assistance, it is my opinion they would respond to a man.

IMPORTANCE OF THE NATIONAL GUARD.

That a thoroughly organized, well disciplined and well maintained military force is essential to the best interests of every State, is acknowledged by all, and it is to such a force that the better class of citizens look when danger is apprehended, through mob violence, to life or property.

Such was the case when, during the trouble in Chicago, leading citizens of Denver, afraid that it might extend to this city, became alarmed and begged that a guard might be placed over the armories. Their request was granted, and if danger was not averted, their fears were allayed. In time of peace, with no threatened danger, the National Guard is looked upon as a sort of nonentity, not needing any special support, but allow the smallest speck of trouble to arise in the peaceful horizon, and this same guard is expected to be up and doing, as if it had been encouraged and cared for.

The need of the National Guard may come any time, at a moment's notice, and too much cannot be done to keep it in a state of readiness. The National Guard is not only looked upon with favor by the people of its State, but, during late years, by the officers of the United States Army, who lend every encouragement in their power toward the maintenance of what they consider a "reserve," believing that, in case of domestic violence of magnitude or trouble with a foreign power, the National Guard would prove a powerful adjunct to the regular forces. Ever since the late war the relations between the officers of the National and State services have been very friendly, and the influence has been felt in a marked improvement in the militia organization.

In States where encampments are held, regular army officers are detailed to inspect and instruct. These officers, while observing the points open to criticism, as comparing the State troops with those of the regular army, are loud in their praises of the material at hand, and highly estimate the possibilities of the future of the National Guard. I take pleasure in quoting from the reports of Lieutenant General Sheridan and the Adjutant General, United States :

"I have taken great interest in the National Guard organizations of many of the States. Their status should be regulated by a general law of Congress, the number of officers and men fixed and unchangeable except, as necessitated by growth of population, at stated periods. The General Government could then issue them the best arms and camp and garrison equipage, and exact a responsibility which is not now required."

"The reports submitted herewith, of the several officers designated by the War department, to inspect the encampments of State troops, are highly interesting, and worthy of careful consideration. While just, but kind, criticism points out many defects (none that cannot be remedied by men exhibiting the military zeal and pride that animates the State militia), the reports unmistakably evidence a slowly maturing temper and character, destined to still more closely unite the regular army and the militia—the twin parts of the defensive power of the Government.

"A careful perusal of these reports leads me to make the following general remarks :

“State encampments, to be of absolute benefit, should at least be of ten days' duration, and, while established at convenient points, looking to economy in the concentration of the troops, should be at a sufficient distance from the homes of the members of the command, in order to overcome business and social influences, which seriously affect efforts at imparting instruction and holding the men in hand for drills, target practice, guard duty, etc. Camps should be divested of every appearance of holiday character.

“The programme of military exercises should exclude elementary company drills, and the time of the encampment devoted to instruction and practice in skirmish and battalion drills and guard duty. As most of the fighting in the future must be done in open order, a thorough acquaintance with the skirmish drill is of the highest importance.

“Officers should be required to recite upon the duties of guards and sentinels, and instruction in guard duty be given to the men in the armories.

“So far as fatigue uniform, or dress for field service is, concerned, it would be of advantage for the authorities of each State to prescribe a simple, plain, but serviceable fatigue uniform for all its troops, to which companies ought gradually conform within a limited time, say, one year. This is not intended to interfere with the right of each command to wear such full dress uniform as it may have selected for wear on reviews, parades and other occasions of pure ceremony.

“Obsolete arms and ammunition in the hands of State troops should be replaced by improved guns of same pattern as in the hands of the Regular Army, and suitable ammunition provided. On this subject, I beg to renew the recommendation made in my last report.

“Exhibition drills, while interesting, as showing to what degree of mechanical precision a body of men can be trained to attain in movements and motions, are an undesirable feature of military camps. In many instances the development of extreme smartness in drill involves the neglect of some of the most important and solid parts of a soldier's training.

“The report on the target practice at the Maine encampment is most creditable to the troops participating, and demonstrates what results can be obtained from careful instruction and practical discipline in this important exercise. The great want is a thorough, systematic course of instruction, prescribed from State headquarters, and rigidly insisted on, and the establishment in each State of an examining board, before whom ignorant and incompetent officers could be brought, with a view to their elimination from the military service of the State. Every officer elected should, before appointment, be subject to examination by a board of officers, of which, if possible, the regimental and brigade commanders and the Inspector General should be members.

“The material composing the militia of the several States is generally excellent, and zeal and intelligence the rule; but the former must be wisely directed and the latter systematically cultivated.”

MILITARY FUND.

The military polls are imposed for the maintenance of the National Guard.

In order that the object of this law be met, additional legislation for its enforcement is necessary.

By reference to schedule A, it will be seen that the per cent. of polls assessed, in comparison to the vote, is becoming smaller every year. Assessors of counties receive but small fees for the proper levy of this tax, and apparently take no pains to comply with the law, and, in some instances, by direction of the county commissioners, neglect this duty altogether. If the assessor has complied with the requirements, the polls are seldom collected, except from owners of real estate, and, even in such cases, are frequently stricken from the tax list by the county treasurer, if objection is made to its payment.

The treasurer's fee for the collection of the one dollar is very small, and he can readily ignore its collection.

I will cite Arapahoe and Lake counties as examples. In the former from the vote of 1884 (13,200), the assessor returns 3935 military polls, when at least 12,000 should have been assessed, and states that by instruction of the Board of County Commissioners, only property owners were thus assessed.

Of the 3935 polls levied, only 2983 were collected.

In Lake county, with a vote of 6,150 in 1884, the assessor found 825 subject to military poll tax. The Treasurer managed to collect 460 from this number; yet this county, with Arapahoe county, drains the Military Fund more than any two counties combined.

County officials claim that it is impossible to collect these polls from other than property owners. While this is, in a measure, true, as the law is at present constructed, the Treasurers, by insisting on the payment of this tax, could aid materially in making the law operative.

The books of the County Treasurers and of the State Auditor make the following exhibit of uncollected military polls:

November 30, 1882	$ 50,823 74
November 30, 1884	71,272 62
November 30, 1886	97,960 02

This year a strenuous effort was made to collect the polls, resulting in an increase over the collection of 1885 of $215,51. With this special fund for the maintenance of the National Guard properly collected, aid by appropriation would be unnecessary. The enforcement of the law in the assessment and collection of the military polls should be insisted upon, even if additional legislation be required, in which event the Colorado National Guard will be second to none in the United States.

I wish to compliment the Inspector General on his very able and comprehensive report, and congratulate the National Guard upon having such an efficient and impartial officer at the head of that department. Through his endeavors companies existing on paper only have been mustered out of the service, and from the numerous applications made but few, and then only the best companies, have been received into the service, thus carrying out the plan adopted of maintaining an efficient rather than a large force.

In closing this report, I desire to express my thanks for the interest in the affairs of this department which has ever been manifested by your Excellency, and for the uniform courtesy with which I have been treated.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

F. A. TAYLOR,

Adjutant General.

HEADQUARTERS INSPECTOR GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
DENVER, COLO., November 30, 1886. }

Brigadier General

F. A. TAYLOR,

Adjutant General, State of Colorado,

Denver, Colo.:

SIR:

I have the honor to report the result of the biennial inspection of the several companies and troops, and of the battery, composing the Colorado National Guard.

As I had the honor to be appointed to the vacancy caused by the promotion of Colonel Reardon to the command of the brigade, I deem it best to consolidate his report with mine, and furnish you with a tabulated form, averaging the two years' report into one. On my inspection of the companies of the National Guard, I found them generally well instructed in the duties of a soldier, and I am confident they would prove reliable should they be called into active service. However, in my opinion, they are far below the correct standard of proficiency. The chief cause to be assigned for this lack I find, upon investigation, to be the absence of any law giving company commanders full power to compel attendance at drills.

In submitting my report of the average attendance at inspections, I beg leave to call attention to the fact that it does not do justice to the majority of the companies, for, as you are aware, a large number of their members are engaged in mining and such other avocations as render it difficult for all to attend drill regularly, without manifest injury to personal interests. For this reason, the company commanders have invariably reported numbers of their men excused. I am, however, confident that should there be a call into active service, the companies would respond with their full strength.

Upon a second visit to any company, I have missed numbers of men from the ranks, whom I had met at the first inspection, and in their stead found new faces, members whose occupations had prevented their appearance on the previous occasion, and vice versa.

The officers, as a rule, are close students of the tactics in all pertaining to the school of the soldier and the company, but, owing to the scattered condition of the battalions (only two stations in the State having more than one infantry company), they lack the practical knowledge of battalion movements essential to a well informed officer. To remedy this defect, annual encampments must be held, and, as the troops are now supplied with all necessary equipage, no difficulty should be found in establishing such encampment. The month of June, just before miners and prospectors leave the towns for the mountains, I think, would be the most opportune time for assembling the respective battalions in camp for brigade, battalion and skirmish drill, for training in guard duty and for target practice.

In many instances I have had occasion to call the attention of company commanders to the ignorance displayed by the non-commissioned officers in the performance of their duties. Non-commissioned officers' schools of instruction should be established in every company. I have invariably found those the best companies, in which such a mode of instruction has been adopted. First sergeants of companies, whose officers have passed the rough examinations before receiving commissions, I have found to make inexcusable mistakes in forming the company.

In calling the roll, first sergeants should never include the names of the company's officers, for these are not responsible to their subordinates, but to their superiors in rank only. The result of the roll call should not be reported to the captain as "present or accounted for," when a number of men are absent without leave, and consequently not accounted for. Too many first sergeants, as they are asked the strength of their companies, have recourse to the roll book. An efficient sergent should not only know the number of men in the company, but take pride in repeating the roll without the aid of a book.

While only one company has appeared for inspection without white gloves, several captains have questioned their necessity, though every soldier should know that gloves are indispensable on all occasions of ceremony.

I have often seen lieutenants, on being directed to assume command of the companies, take their place in front more like bashful maidens than military officers. Captains should give their subalterns more practice in manœuvring. Lieutenants should not only be competent to take command in the absence of the captain, but should also be qualified, in case of his resignation, for promotion to his place, and be able to assume his duties without detriment to the command.

I deem it my duty to call attention to the indifference manifested by field officers, residing in towns where a company of their command is stationed. Those who attended inspection, with the exception of Major Ewing, of the Second Infantry, and Major McCoy, of the Fourth Infantry, were in civilian dress. This conduct by officers is highly censurable, not only on account of seeming indifference to the service which has honored them with high rank, but also by setting a bad example to the men of their commands.

With the distribution of the lately adopted military code, officers and men alike will become better acquainted with their duties. The code clearly defines the duties of sentinels, the correct conduct of courts martial, and the mode of rendering the various returns required at your office. Assumed ignorance of this last duty by some of the officers has caused considerable trouble in the past, and I would respectfully recommend that commanders of regiments, battalions and companies in the future be deemed guilty of disobedience of orders, if the papers are not furnished in proper form and in the prescribed time.

As regimental and battalion adjutants now receive a compensation of one hundred dollars per year, it will be more imperatively their duty to keep the papers at their several headquarters in perfect order. They should file all orders from their superior headquarters, preserve copies of all orders issued at their headquarters, and keep a correct roster of the officers of their respective commands. No official paper should pass through their headquarters without an endorsement, a copy of which should be recorded in a book kept for that purpose.

The two separate troops of cavalry are in very good condition. The men are required to hire and pay for horses for mounted drills here. Hence, they have only weekly dismounted drills, and receive very little practical mounted instructions. Mounted or dismounted, they will respond at any time, should their services be required.

The Chaffee Light Artillery deserve the highest praise for soldierly appearance and knowledge of duty. The command justly holds the reputation of a first class battery. The late repairs to the gun carriages, limbers and caissons were much needed, and render them as serviceable as if new, while all the other State property in the battery's keeping is in excellent condition. The men should be armed with Schofield-Smith & Wesson revolvers, caliber 45. This would add materially to the effectiveness of the command, and lessen the need of a large infantry support in case of insurrection or riot.

At present, the Second Infantry band, stationed at Telluride, is the only musical organization in the Colorado National Guard. Mustered into State service on June 7, 1886, it has only lately been uniformed, too late to be visited and inspected by me. The officers and men of the Second infantry may well feel proud of their band.

Too much attention cannot be directed to the care of arms and accoutrements. Company commanders shall hold each man accountable for the condition of his piece, uniform and accoutrements. To this end, he should inspect his command whenever it is assembled, and cause any man guilty of neglect to fall out and remedy the same before rejoining the ranks.

The armories I found generally in good condition, though a number are too small for the manœuvres of a company. By your directions, on my visit to Trinidad and Alamosa, I engaged larger drill rooms for the companies stationed at these points, without additional expense to the State. These companies now have splendid armories.

I have aimed to point out the defects of the State troops, in order that remedies may be applied. The most glaring one, however, I deem to be the apparent lack of courtesy and respect to the superior officers. This applies to the officers, as well as to the rank and file. In uniform, equality ceases between officer and private. In saluting an officer, the soldier pays respect to the rank, not to the man. The salute to the officer, the standing to attention when an officer enters the quarters, or addresses an enlisted man, marks the well trained soldier as much as proficiency in the drill. The National Guard generally seems to have this failing, and officers of the army visiting National Guard encampments in the several States have, without exception, called attention to the absence of anything like military courtesy.

Since the organization of the National Guard into brigade formation, it has been inspected by the officers appointed to that duty only during the past two years. I have, therefore, refrained from making extended individual remarks on the appearance of its various organizations.

Herewith I append a table, showing the average of attendance since your introduction of monthly drill reports, which has caused quite an improvement in the attendance at drills. It is to be hoped this published table will beget a spirit of emulation in officers and men, stimulating them to greater efforts to the end that all will vie in efforts to present an increased average in the future.

In concluding, I wish to record my appreciation of the uniform courtesies which have been shown me by yourself, by General Reardon, and by all the officers of the National Guard; also, in closing my official relations with his Excellency, Governor Eaton, to express my sincere thanks for the distinguished consideration he has ever given me.

Trusting that the important changes and improvements inaugurated by you will be continued in the future, I have the honor to be

Your obedient servant,

P. McCALLIN,

Colonel and Inspector General.
