“Ending Violence Against Women” (EVAW) Training Project Provides Training and Consultation at the Air Force Academy and Pentagon

By Anne Munch, Esq., EVAW Project Director

The “Ending Violence Against Women” (EVAW) project is a state-wide, multidisciplinary training project established and supported by STOP VAWA grant funds. EVAW has been providing training and technical assistance around Colorado on the issues of domestic violence, sexual assault and stalking for the past seven years. Our training team of experts has grown to over twenty, and we are proud of the work we are doing on behalf of victims and Colorado communities.

Due to our experience working on the problem of violence against women, we were recently invited to provide a one-day non-stranger sexual assault training to 250 people at the Air Force Academy. We assembled a top-notch training team that included both civilian and military personnel and on October 6, 2003 spent the day addressing everyone from the top command staff, victim service providers, permanent professors, squadron commanders and about 100 cadets on the very difficult and often misunderstood topic of sexual assault.

We were fortunate to have Dr. David Lisak join the EVAW training team for the day. Dr. Lisak spent valuable time educating the class on “undetected rapists” using his now famous “Frank” tape, which depicts the reenactment of an actual interview he had with a college campus rapist. (For more information about Dr. Lisak’s “Frank” tape presentation, contact the National Judicial Education Program, or call Anne Munch at (303) 271-6799.) He also spoke about the neurobiology of trauma, and answered a variety of questions directed at him from the audience throughout the day. In addition, we assembled a team of highly experienced victim advocates, prosecutors, law enforcement officers, and legal specialists to round out the agenda, and spent the day teaching the material from the multidisciplinary model that EVAW has always embraced. The training team received a warm welcome from the Air Force Academy. The audience, which included the Superintendent, Commandant and Vice-Commandant of the Air Force Academy, was engaged, interested, and obviously committed to understanding sexual assault in order to effectively address the problems that exist there. It was a heartening and very positive experience.

On a personal note, providing this training at the AFA was also a return to my roots. My father is a West Point graduate from the class of 1943, and was on the founding faculty for the Air Force Academy, and head of the Legal Department. I spent the first seven years of my life on base at the AFA, and felt honored to return there as an adult and address them as a former prosecutor from a military family.

Following the training, I was invited to accompany the Vice Commandant of the Air Force Academy, Colonel Debra Gray, to West Point, Annapolis and the Pentagon. We spent the week analyzing current programs at the other military academies, and working with a team of experts on proposed changes in policy and procedure at the Air Force Academy. Our work coincided with the recommendations of the "Fowler panel", a panel of civilians appointed by the Department of Defense to investigate the problems at the Air Force Academy. The ideas we generated are being considered as the AFA moves forward with their "Agenda for Change". The dedicated leaders who are in place at the Academy are certain to move things forward in a positive fashion. It has been exciting and invigorating for me and the EVAW project to be involved with assisting the Air Force Academy and the way they respond to victims and perpetrators of sexual assault. It was truly a highlight.

The Office for Victims Programs is happy to announce that Nancy Feldman has returned to the Office for Victims Programs as its manager! Many of you know Nancy from her years in the field of victim services, her work in the Office for Victims Programs as the Victims Rights Act specialist and the local VALE/State VALE administrator in our office, and from her current assignment as the director of the Sex Offender Management unit at DCJ. Nancy has been with the Division of Criminal Justice for nine years. Prior to coming to the Division of Criminal Justice, Nancy worked as a victim advocate for the Arapahoe County Sheriff's Department and as the local VALE grant evaluator for the Eighteenth Judicial District. Nancy has a Masters Degree in Public Administration from the University of Colorado. We are thrilled that Nancy brings with her the experience and skills to keep the Office for Victims Programs running smoothly.

State VALE Grant Funding Process for July 1, 2004–June 30, 2005 Already In Progress

By Rebecca Oakes

The State VALE grant funding process is well underway. State VALE grant applications were due on September 5, 2003 and preliminary decisions were made on November 4 and 5, 2003. Any requests for reconsideration of denial were decided on December 2, 2003. Once the Board makes its final recommendations, the Executive Director of the Department of Public Safety and the Director of the Division of Criminal Justice will announce the final awards on December 19, 2003. State VALE grants will go into effect on July 1, 2004. It is anticipated that approximately $800,000 will be awarded for the state fiscal year July 1, 2004–June 30, 2005.

The priorities of the State VALE Board are projects that are statutorily mandated to implement the Victim Rights Act statewide, projects designed to have statewide impact or a model project that can demonstrate success and a plan for statewide replication, agencies that are ineligible for local VALE or VOCA funding, and projects that have previously received State VALE funds and have demonstrated a measurable level of success with the project. The State VALE Board firmly believes that due to the fact that State VALE monies are derived from collections on local VALE fines and surcharges, that all twenty-two judicial districts should benefit from the State VALE funds.

Victims Rights Act Subcommittee Update

By Heidi Pomfret, VRA Specialist

The following case scenario illustrates an issue that recently came before the Victim Rights Act Subcommittee. As always, names and other identifying factors have been changed to maintain confidentiality.

Case Scenario

Molly made a report to the police about an incident in which she was the victim of a sexual assault. The police forwarded their investigation to a Special Prosecutor in the 87th Judicial District (JD) due to the fact that Molly was an employee of the district attorney's office in the 256th JD, the jurisdiction in which the crime had occurred. Molly initiated contact with the 87th JD-DA's office upon being informed that the case was assigned to their office. Molly kept a log of her contacts with the DA's office and reported the following difficulties to the Division of Criminal Justice (DCJ).

Molly stated that at the outset of the case she made numerous phone calls to the prosecutor assigned to the case, Deputy District Attorney (DDA) Jones, without receiving return calls. She stated that when she did receive return calls she was treated rudely and that DDA Jones promised to call her back within a particular time frame and then did not call back. Molly contacted DCJ staff at this time. DCJ staff suggested that Molly work through the Victim Witness Director, Susan Ryan to receive information. Molly agreed to this arrangement provided that Susan was able to obtain information from DDA Jones.

Shortly after setting up this arrangement, the case was assigned to the supervising district attorney in the division, Assistant District Attorney (ADA) Bates. Molly reported that she continued to have trouble obtaining information. She reported several unanswered phone calls and further delays in a filing decision, culminating in a request that staff at the Division of Criminal Justice contact ADA Bates directly. DCJ staff did contact ADA Bates directly with Molly's concerns. Subsequently, charges were filed and Molly was informed of the arraignment date. However, Molly felt that the DA's office continued to violate her rights. She reported that they sent her a subpoena for the wrong date, made a motion for a different special prosecutor but did not follow up with the court to determine the outcome of that motion, and did not provide her with timely information or return calls when she attempted to seek the information herself.

Allegations

The complaint filed by Molly was against the District Attorney's Office for allegedly violating her victim rights under the following statute:

C.R.S. § 24-4.1-302.5(1)(a) The right to be treated with fairness, respect, and dignity, and to be free from intimidation, harassment, or abuse, throughout the criminal justice process.

- Molly felt that the right to be treated with fairness, respect, and dignity was not afforded to her by DDA Jones or ADA Bates because her phone calls were not returned in a timely manner.
- Molly believed that her right to be treated with fairness, respect and dignity was not afforded to her due to her difficult interaction with the DA's Office. Molly stated the following in her formal complaint, "DDA Jones and ADA Bates have both been really rude and 'snippy' with me and my husband, Aaron. It is not my fault I am a victim. I deserve to be treated fairly and have my rights... ADA Bates has not treated me fairly, he always says he is busy with a murder case. (It is not fair to me to be pushed aside, just because I am not dead!!)"
- Molly felt this right was violated due to the fact that she was sent a subpoena for the wrong court date by Mr. Bates, which indicated to her that he was not paying attention during the arraignment.

Planning Underway for Statewide Conference

By Rebecca Oakes

Planning for the 2004 Local VALE and Victim Compensation statewide conference has begun! The conference committee, which is comprised of victim compensation administrators, VALE administrators and DCJ staff are in the beginning stages of planning what promises to be a wonderful conference. The conference will be held May 19 through 21, 2004 at the Vail Cascade Resort and Spa. This conference, which occurs every other year, offers individuals involved in victim compensation and VALE programs an opportunity to learn from fellow board and staff members and to be apprised of new and/or pertinent issues. If you have questions regarding the conference, please contact Peggy Gordon or Rebecca Oakes at (303) 239-4442.

VRA Subcommittee Update...

- Molly believed this right was also violated because ADA Bates did not follow up on his motion for a Special Prosecutor and therefore was unable to provide any information to her regarding the future of the case.

Response by the District Attorney's Office

The District Attorney responded to these allegations with the following points. First, they indicated that due to the fact that DDA Jones was no longer under their employ, they could not account for her actions. Second, they acknowledged that their office had, in fact, been under a personnel crunch and that they were unable to keep up with the workload. Third, the DA's Office felt that efforts had not been made to resolve the case at the local level. Finally, the DA's office stated that Molly had been exceedingly difficult to work with and was often rude and hostile in her communication with the DA's office.

VRA Subcommittee Finding

The VRA Subcommittee considered all of the allegations together sensing a pattern of difficult communication. The Subcommittee felt that there were inappropriate communications between Ms. Jones, Mr. Bates, and the victim in this case. Specifically, Ms. Jones clearly expressed animosity and a lack of respect to the victim in this case. This lack of respect is supported by the response provided by Mr. Bates wherein he chose to repeat the derogatory reference to the victim. Additionally, the Subcommittee found that there was a lack of timely response to the requests of the victim. This finding was supported by the detail of Molly's log of contacts. Additionally, the Subcommittee believed that the contacts between Molly, the District Attorney's Office, and staff at DCJ did constitute efforts to resolve the issues locally. Finally, the Subcommittee found that there was a failure on the part of the Office of the District Attorney to take responsibility for an adequate and smooth transition of the case between prosecutors' offices. Together, these events were found to have the cumulative effect of resulting in a violation of Molly's right to be treated with fairness, respect, and dignity.

With regard to the incorrect date on the preliminary hearing subpoena, the Subcommittee found that although Molly was subpoenaed for the wrong court date, there was no information provided to show that this error was intentional, or that it occurred as a result of disrespect for the victim in this case.

Requirements

The District Attorneys Office was required to undergo Victim Rights Act Training with all of the deputy district attorneys in the office. The training was completed on a Saturday morning so that all of the attorneys could attend. Additionally, the District Attorney's Office was required to make substantial changes to their manuals on victim rights and to their procedures for working with victims with VRA allegations.

While not a Subcommittee requirement, the District Attorney's Office did, ultimately, meet with Molly and her husband to explain some of the personnel issues in their office that had led to a lack of communication.

Important Issues

Several important issues came to light as a result of this case. First, the victim in the case had better documentation of her contact with the DA's office than vice versa. Second, the Subcommittee felt that regardless of the current employment status of an employee of the DA's office, that office was responsible for the employee's conduct. Third, the Subcommittee felt that DCJ staff and the victim had made efforts to resolve the case at the local level through interaction with the Victim Witness Coordinator and direct contact with ADA Bates, and that Molly had made numerous attempts to resolve the communication gap. Finally, the Subcommittee was particularly offended by the repetition of derogatory statements about the victim in the DA's response to the allegations.

Stump the Grant Geek...

By Tony Tilger

Dear Grant Geek:

A few weeks ago our program was generously given some office space in a local building. I am contemplating using this "rent" as match for my VOCA project, but don't know if it should be cash or in-kind. Any thoughts?

Matchless in Colorado

Dear Matchless in Colorado:

Whether or not rent is a "cash" or "in-kind" match depends on whether or not your agency is paying rent for that space, or if the entity which owns the space is letting your agency use the space at no or a reduced cost. An example may be illustrative.

Example 1: Shelter is given an office at 101 Elm Street by ACME Company. ACME Company actually owns the building at 101 Elm Street. Your match would be reported as an in-kind match.

Example 2: Shelter pays $3,000 a month for rent to ACME Company. The value of the office occupied by VOCA staff is $1,000 per month (about 1/3 of the space). The value of the office ($1,000 a month) could be applied as cash match, as money is being paid for that office with non-VOCA funds (non-federal funds). A good rule of thumb is that if "cash" actually changes hands between your agency and another party, it will be a cash match. If no "cash" changes hands between your agency and another party, it will be an in-kind match. Hope that helps.
