A Few Thoughts...

By Nancy Feldman

As usual, there has been a flurry of activity in the Office for Victims Programs and we have experienced some staff changes over the past couple of months. Peggy Gordon, the Victim Compensation Administrator, left at the beginning of the year to become the Director of the Colorado Lottery. In early February, Laura Baker, VOCA Specialist, moved to Orlando, Florida to join her husband at his new job at Disney World.

We are carefully watching the many activities at both the national and state level that will affect crime victims and funding for victim services. As this newsletter goes to press, we are waiting to hear about the amount of federal VOCA, Victim Compensation, and Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) monies that Colorado will receive.

Senators Jon Kyle and Dianne Feinstein have once again introduced a joint resolution (S.J. Res.1) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States to protect the rights of crime victims. The House Resolution is worded exactly the same as the Senate Resolution. The amendment has the support of President Bush and other officials. Congress is expected to vote on this important issue this spring. We will keep you posted as to the progress of the proposal. For more information, please visit the National Victims' Constitutional Amendment Project website at www.nvcap.org.

The Local VALE/Victim Compensation conference, which is held every other year, will be occurring May 19-21, 2004 at the Vail Cascade. It promises to be an interesting program with many outstanding speakers. If you would like additional information regarding the conference, please contact Rebecca Oakes at (303) 239-5714.

This year marks the 24th anniversary of National Crime Victims' Rights Week, which will occur the week of April 18th. Please watch for information about events taking place throughout the state.

It is also the 20th anniversary of the passage of the Victims of Crime Act (VOCA), which established the Crime Victims Fund to provide support for victim services through fines and fees levied against federal offenders. Since 1985, the Crime Victims Fund has provided over $5.5 billion nationally to support victim assistance and services.

Do you know how many VOCA awards were given for the 2004 calendar year? How about for State VALE? If you needed to mail a letter to the Victim Compensation administrator in the 12th Judicial District, would you know where to easily obtain the address? Have you ever gone to the file drawer for a reporting form, only to find you have every form but the one you need? If you answered “no” to any but the last question, don’t despair. Help is as close as the Internet.

In case you were wondering, the title of this article is the address for the Office for Victims Programs webpage and, if you haven’t visited the site since the late 90s, you’re in for a treat. Not only has the site been made easier to navigate, but also the amount of information available to you has grown significantly. Here’s a quick tour of what you’ll find at our webpage.

Program Information

Each program has its own page within the site and you can find a list of awards, calendars, funding and training information. The navigation bar, which is provided on each page, makes it easy to move from program to program.

Links

There are links to a listing of Board members broken out by program, the Division of Criminal Justice homepage, current funding information, and other important websites such as the National Criminal Justice Association, the National Organization for Victim Assistance, and the National Center for Victims of Crime, to name a few. There is even a link to the complete Crime Victim Compensation Statute, (Colorado Title 24, Article 4.1).

Forms

The forms posted on the web page are the most current version and available in both Word, for those who use Windows, and in Adobe Acrobat, for those who use WordPerfect or some other word processing software. The forms are divided between those used by more than one program and those that are program specific to facilitate effortless navigation.

We are always looking for ways to improve our webpage so that it will serve as a valuable tool for you, our subgrantees. Please give us your feedback, as that’s the only way we know whether or not we’re providing you with all the information you need to make your grant process run smoother.

So, the next time you find yourself out there on the Web and have a few minutes to spare, cruise on over to our webpage. We think you’ll be pleasantly surprised.

Victims Rights Act Subcommittee Update

By Heidi Pomfret, Victim Rights Act Specialist

The following is a summary of a recent VRA Subcommittee decision. As always, names have been changed to protect confidentiality.

Case Summary

Shelly was the victim of two domestic violence crimes perpetrated by her husband. As a result of the first incident, Tom, her husband, received a two year deferred sentence with the following conditions: that he was to neither possess nor consume alcohol, that he commit no new crimes, and that he complete domestic violence treatment. His sentence was supervised by a private agency that contracted with the Probation Department. While on the deferred sentence, Tom committed another crime against Shelly. After several continuances, Tom pled guilty to third degree assault and was sentenced to probation. Tom reported to the private agency rather than the Probation Department to complete his intake on the second case. Three months later, Tom wrote a letter to the judge requesting a sentencing modification hearing due to an injury that he had sustained. At the hearing, he requested that he be allowed to move out of state to his brother's home and complete the sentencing requirements for both cases there. The judge granted this request and terminated Tom's probation. Neither the District Attorney's Office, nor the Probation Department were informed by the Court, prior to the court date, of the hearing at which the sentence modification occurred.

Shelly remained in contact with the private probation agency throughout the first case. One week after the termination of probation in the second case, Shelly contacted the probation department to let Tom's probation officer know that Tom had written $22,000.00 in checks on a joint account that had been closed for six months. At that time, Shelly was informed that the judge had previously terminated Tom's probation.

Alleged Violations & Subcommittee Findings

This formal complaint was against the judge who presided over the sentence modification (and termination.) While the court date had initially been set simply as a "review", it did evolve into a reconsideration of the sentence.

C.R.S. § 24-4.1-302.5 (1)(b) The right to be informed of and present for all critical stages of the criminal justice process as specified in section 24-4.1-302(2).

The Subcommittee found that Shelly's right to be informed of and present for all critical stages was violated. However, the Subcommittee did not find a basis in fact that the judge had directly violated the VRA since the Court is not the entity that is responsible for notifying the victim of this critical stage.

The Subcommittee was highly concerned about the fact that the Court had not notified the District Attorney's Office of the hearing. As such, the District Attorney's Office was unable to notify Shelly of the hearing. The Subcommittee suggested that the Court develop procedures so that the District Attorney's Office would be notified of any court date that could evolve into a hearing that is a critical stage under the Victim Rights Act.

C.R.S. § 24-4.1-302.5 (1)(d) The right to be heard at any court proceeding that involves a bond reduction or modification, the acceptance of a negotiated plea agreement, or the sentencing or any modification of sentence of any person accused or convicted of a crime against such victim.

Due to the fact that this court hearing involved a crime covered by the VRA, and that this hearing evolved into a modification of the defendant's original sentence in this case, the Court had the responsibility to ascertain whether the victim was present and wished to address the Court. The transcript of this proceeding did not provide information indicating that this type of inquiry occurred. As such, the Subcommittee found that there was a basis in fact to this allegation.

Remedies/Requirements

Upon receipt of this complaint and prior to the findings of the Subcommittee, the Court had already taken steps to change its policies and procedures so that future violations could not occur. The judge in this case convened several meetings between County Court Deputy District Attorneys, officials from the Probation Department, and all of the County Court Judges. Pursuant to these meetings, all officials involved signed an agreement that specifically stated the procedures to be followed which would ensure that each party received appropriate communication regarding VRA procedures.

Stump the Grant Geek...

By Tony Tilger

Dear Grant Geek:

I am thinking of hiring a new staff person at my agency. I have been told that I should not have that person's salary funded 100% by VOCA dollars. I am curious if this is true, and if so, why?

Understaffed in Colorado

Dear Understaffed:

It is generally recommended that VOCA not pay 100% of an individual's salary. If an individual's salary is paid by 100% of VOCA funds, ALL of the activities performed by that individual must be VOCA eligible (which are to provide direct victim services). Administrative staff expenses not associated with direct victim services such as, needs assessments, fundraising activities, task force participation, general meetings for system improvement, coalition business meetings, etc. are not allowable as VOCA costs and activities. It may be prudent to pay a small portion (perhaps at least 10%) of the new individual's salary from another source to assure there is not a question as to whether 100% of everything they do is VOCA eligible. Happy recruiting.
