LETTER FROM THE SECRETARY

JENA GRISWOLD
Colorado Secretary of State

Dear Coloradans,

The Colorado Secretary of State's Office is responsible for overseeing charitable organizations in our state. My office works year-round to ensure that residents have the resources needed to verify they are giving to registered charitable organizations operating in Colorado. As part of our efforts to help Coloradans understand the charities landscape and make informed giving decisions, I'm pleased to present our 2025 Charitable Annual Giving Report. Inside, you will find information about where charities are formed, insights into how charity registrations have changed in the past year, and resources available from my office.

Charities support our communities in ways big and small, and they provide services, information, and opportunities for Coloradans to contribute to our communities and our state. Whether you want to contribute your time, money, or expertise, it's heartening to know that the people of our great state are doing so much to support our neighbors and communities.

My office prides itself on service, and our charities registration and nonprofit lookup tools are easily accessible on our website. Thank you to every organization doing this important work and to the donations that make it possible.

INDUSTRY INSIGHTS AND TRENDS

The total number of registered charities in Colorado increased by 2% between 2025 and 2026, while initial charity registrations grew by 7%, reflecting continued sector expansion. Colorado Gives Day reported 616 new nonprofits joining for the first time with a total impact of $56.6 million raised.

Throughout the year, the Charities team prioritized outreach, partnering on events such as Connecting Colorado, hosting virtual engagements, and participating in panel discussions at the National Association of State Charities Officials (NASCO) conference.

The newly established Charities Advisory Committee launched successfully, bringing together influential leaders from across the state—including CEOs, Executive Directors, Operations Managers, and Legal Advisors—who serve nonprofits in diverse capacities. This committee is dedicated to strengthening collaboration between the Secretary of State's Office and Colorado's charitable sector, ensuring transparency, compliance, and shared progress.
