COLORADO LAW
UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO BOULDER

A person with short dark hair, wearing a blue and red plaid shirt, is seen from the back, looking out over a scenic mountain landscape. In the background, two other people are sitting on a stone ledge. One person is wearing a red plaid shirt and a cap, and the other is wearing a blue jacket. The landscape features a large mountain peak, trees with some autumn-colored leaves, and a clear blue sky. The text "Your journey starts here." is overlaid on the image in white, bold, sans-serif font.

Careers are our focus from day one.

You'll be prepared to serve wisely and with professionalism.

During your time in law school, the career advisors in Colorado Law's Career Development Office will get to know you and your career goals, encourage you to take an intentional and creative approach to planning your career, and give you the tools to succeed.

Our commitment to helping you excel in your professional endeavors begins with individual meetings during your first semester of law school to get to know you, learn about your career goals, and plan the next steps to your 1L summer job. Our focus is for each student to obtain at least four high-quality work experiences while in law school. In summer 2018, 97% of the Class of 2020 and 95% of the Class of 2019 worked in substantive legal or law-related jobs.

We will connect you with employers during the academic year and the summer, and we maintain close ties with a variety of employers and work with them individually to find students and graduates who will be a good fit. Events such as the JD Pathways career conference and career speaker series will help you build a network of contacts and explore practice areas.

Academic Areas of Excellence

American Indian Law

As one of the nation's leaders in tribal law and policy, Colorado Law's American Indian law program is the region's convening institution for tribal leaders, advocates, scholars, and community members to address the most pressing challenges in American Indian law and policy. Our program will prepare you for all aspects of Indian law practice, whether you are interested in working in tribal governments, federal agencies, or law firms.

Entrepreneurial and Business Law

Boulder is recognized internationally as an entrepreneurial powerhouse, and Colorado Law is at the heart of this community. Whether you want to practice mergers and acquisitions at a traditional large law firm, work at the SEC, counsel a startup through a venture capital transaction, or launch your own venture, Colorado Law provides you the skills and expertise to help you succeed.

Juvenile and Family Law

Colorado Law's juvenile and family law program covers a broad range of practice areas that connect students to specialized learning opportunities and real-world experiences in this field through in-depth courses, research projects, externships, and clinical services that provide free legal help to low-income Colorado residents.

Natural Resources, Energy, and Environmental Law

Ranked consistently among the best in the nation, Colorado Law's natural resources, energy, and the environment program is one of the strongest and most in-depth programs of its kind. Faculty members are national leaders deeply committed to creative teaching with a long-standing reputation for innovative work on water resources, climate change, and energy. Being at the base of the Rocky Mountains, you will directly interact with and explore the places, issues, and communities you will study.

Public Service Law

Public service law is central to our culture and academic offerings. Public service, both during and after law school, can involve any of a broad range of substantive areas, including civil rights law, veterans' affairs, criminal law, consumer law, education law, environmental law, juvenile and family law, health law and policy, and immigration law, among others.

Technology and Intellectual Property Law

Colorado Law is at the forefront of technology and intellectual property law. Whether you are interested in litigation, transactional work, or policy concerns, Colorado Law has one of the most comprehensive legal programs in the nation for those interested in exploring the frontiers of entrepreneurial law, technology policy, and intellectual property.

Areas of Study Spotlight

Natural Resources, Energy, and Environmental Law

Tackle today's most pressing issues in water, climate, and energy law.

For over half a century, Colorado Law has set the gold standard for natural resources, energy, and environmental law. Our commitment to teaching and research in these areas complements the school's physical location in the Rocky Mountain West—a region defined by its vast natural resources, public lands and parks, and many American Indian reservations.

Our innovative environmental and natural resources curriculum, with broad-based courses, specialized seminars, and hands-on practicum opportunities, provides you with the key range of competencies needed to become a multidisciplinary practitioner. We help prepare you for a successful career, from private practice to public service, and train you to be ready for a world of constant change.

“Our students learn about the people and visit the places that gave rise to water, energy, and environmental law. They might litigate about these issues in the Natural Resources and Environmental Law Clinic. They might hike through Canyonlands National Park to study conflicts over road construction on public lands in the Advanced Natural Resources seminar. They might raft the Colorado River through the Grand Canyon, meeting Havasupai and Navajo tribal leaders along the way, in the Law of the River course. These experiences and more are what Colorado Law offers our students.”

Technology and Intellectual Property Law

The foundation you need to practice law in the information age.

Colorado Law provides one of the leading legal programs for information technology law and policy in the nation. Through comprehensive class offerings; hands-on clinical programs; a prestigious technology law journal; extensive internship opportunities in Colorado, Washington, D.C., and across the nation; and access to our Silicon Flatirons Center for Law, Technology, and Entrepreneurship, students and alumni interested in technology and IP are supported during law school and throughout their careers.

Our location in the Denver-Boulder metro area is the heart of one of the nation's premier telecommunications and technology hubs. Colorado Law also benefits from a substantial network of alumni and supporters across the nation—from Silicon Valley to Washington, D.C., and everywhere in between.

Entrepreneurial and Business Law

Join an epicenter of innovation and entrepreneurship.

Beginning in your first year at Colorado Law, you will take advantage of a robust set of business offerings within and outside of the classroom. You will participate in transactional law and entrepreneurship competitions, learn to create value for clients in classes like Negotiations and Venture Capital, make investment decisions in early-stage startups through the student-run Deming Center Venture Fund, draft agreements for startup clients in the Entrepreneurial Law Clinic, and join a community of professionals leading the future of law, policy, and technology through our Silicon Flatirons Center for Law, Technology, and Entrepreneurship. We will help you to be ready on the first day of practice while also giving you the tools to solve problems creatively for clients over the length of your career.

“Colorado Law teaches students about what makes and breaks a business. Our classroom offerings teach students how to become a trusted counselor to companies and entrepreneurs. We have a host of other offerings that get our students directly involved in the world-class startup scene in the Boulder-Denver area. This provides Colorado Law students a powerful advantage as they head into practice and craft their careers.”

Getches-Wilkinson Center for Natural Resources, Energy, and the Environment

Founded in 1983, the Getches-Wilkinson Center for Natural Resources, Energy, and the Environment is the oldest and preeminent law school institute in the country dedicated to natural resources law. The center works on diverse and increasingly interwoven topics, including environmental justice, climate change, public lands management, energy development, the governance of the Colorado River, and tribal resource management.

colorado.edu/law/gwc

Silicon Flatirons Center for Law, Technology, and Entrepreneurship

Silicon Flatirons is an interdisciplinary research center that provides unique opportunities for students to interact with high-level attorneys, entrepreneurs, policymakers, and professionals at the intersection of law, policy, and technology.

In addition to hosting more than 100 conferences and events annually, Silicon Flatirons offers specialized internship programs in Colorado; Washington, D.C.; the Bay Area; and elsewhere for students interested in careers in technology or startups. Students accepted into these programs gain a competitive edge with real-world experience.

Unmatched opportunities to learn beyond the classroom.

Daniels Fund Ethics Initiative at Colorado Law

Through a range of programming, including networking events, speaker series, case competitions, and new courses and curricula, the Daniels Fund Ethics Initiative allows Colorado Law to make ethics and professionalism a central part of every law student's education. By building these skills in law school, you'll be able to seamlessly enter the working world and add value immediately.

D.C. Summer Program

Every year, Silicon Flatirons provides placement assistance for students interested in technology and communications issues to work in Washington, D.C., for the summer. Participating organizations include the Federal Communications Commission, Federal Trade Commission, National Emergency Number Association, Information Technology and Innovation Foundation, Public Knowledge, Common Cause, Verizon, AT&T, and Disney. The Hatfield Scholars Program, which runs parallel to the D.C. Summer Program, provides grants for summer internships in government or public interest positions.

Governmental Entrepreneurial Leadership Accelerator (GELA)

This first-of-its-kind program supports governments to encourage innovative problem solving to public policy challenges. The accelerator brings together employees from the city and county of Denver, city of Boulder, and state of Colorado with Colorado Law students. Following a boot camp that develops basic entrepreneurial approaches to problem solving, Colorado Law students work with government leaders to propose an innovative, yet tangible, solution to the identified challenge facing state and local governments. The accelerator concludes with Pitch Night, where fellows present their solutions to government officials in an engaging community event.

Institute for the Future of Law Practice (IFLP)

As the practice of law increasingly relies on interdisciplinary skills, IFLP provides real-world business and technology experiences that complement traditional law school curricula. The program kicks off in May with an intensive three-week boot camp conducted by industry leaders, followed by a paid internship with corporate legal departments, law firms, legal tech companies, and unpaid internships with public service organizations in Colorado, Silicon Valley, and elsewhere.

Korey Wise Innocence Project

The Korey Wise Innocence Project gives students the unique opportunity to assist people who believe they have been convicted despite being innocent of any offense. Colorado Law students evaluate these claims to see if there are factual and legal grounds to return to court and work with volunteer attorneys to further investigate cases.

Rep. Joe Neguse ('09)

Elected in November 2018 to represent Colorado's 2nd Congressional District in the U.S. Congress, Neguse is Colorado's first African-American congressman, one of only a few first-generation Americans to serve in Congress, and one of the youngest members of Congress in the nation.

Serving our community is at our core.

As a public institution, public service is central to our culture.

Loan Repayment Assistance Program (LRAP)

LRAP provides partial loan repayment awards to graduates who choose qualifying public interest work. In 2018, 54 graduates received awards of $5,500 each to help pay down their student loans.

Public Service Pledge

Incoming law students may volunteer to pledge to complete at least 50 hours of law-related public service during their time in law school. The Class of 2019 volunteered a total of 6,492 hours of public service.

Public Service Fellowships

Public service fellowship opportunities allow students and recent graduates to gain valuable work experience without the burden of additional financial hardship. Last year, fellowship recipients worked at the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the Department of Health and Human Services, the United Nations International Law Commission, the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) of Colorado, public defenders' offices, and elsewhere.

Service opportunities

Begin making an impact your 1L year.

Acequia Project

The Acequia Project is a joint effort by the Getches-Wilkinson Center, Colorado Open Lands, and the Sangre de Cristo Acequia Association to provide low- or no-cost legal representation and educational materials to acequias, traditional Hispanic irrigation communities, in southern Colorado.

Maya Land Rights and Development Project

Law students work with Belizean indigenous organizations to help secure Maya customary land tenure and promote sustainable economic development opportunities for Maya communities.

Immigration and Citizenship Law Program

The program connects students interested in immigration law and policy with lawyers in the community who are involved in outreach, litigation, and policy work for externship opportunities and pro bono projects serving immigrants.

Gain hands-on experience.

No matter your area of interest, there's a legal clinic to help you hone your skills.

Since 1948, Colorado Law's clinical education program has prepared students with unparalleled opportunities to practice law with actual clients. Each year about 110 students serve 400–500 clients on real cases or projects. Every Colorado Law student may take a clinic.

American Indian Law Clinic

At one of the first American Indian law clinics in the nation, students gain faculty-supervised experience providing legal assistance in a variety of matters, including tribal sovereignty, child welfare, preservation of tribal identity, employment discrimination, public benefits, preservation of Native lands, and more.

Civil Practice Clinic

Students represent low-income clients in family law, Social Security disability, and immigration asylum cases. The clinic also focuses on employment law, with students representing low-income wage workers and employees who have been the victims of discrimination, among others.

Criminal Defense Clinic

In the first criminal defense clinic in the nation, students learn basic criminal practice skills and represent clients in actual cases, from beginning to end, in municipal and county courts in Boulder County.

Criminal/Immigration Defense Clinic

Students represent noncitizen clients in both criminal and immigration court, including applicants for Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA).

Entrepreneurial Law Clinic

Students work with local entrepreneurs, providing transactional legal services for the formation and development of small businesses in Colorado.

Juvenile and Family Law Clinic

Students handle a full range of legal matters related to youth and families, including representing low-income clients in public actions, such as child welfare and juvenile justice cases, or private actions, such as divorce and child custody matters.

Getches-Green Natural Resources and Environmental Law Clinic

Students represent public interest clients in environmental litigation related to federal public land protection. Students learn about expert testimony and witness preparation, analysis of detailed scientific and environmental data, and submission of complex legal briefs.

Samuelson-Glushko Technology Law and Policy Clinic

Students advocate in the public interest concerning technology issues in front of regulatory entities, courts, legislatures, and standard-setting bodies.

Sustainable Community Development Clinic

Students engage in economic development projects, both on behalf of clients and on behalf of the public interest, with a goal of increasing social justice and social enterprise in a range of substantive areas, including land use, housing, local food, and healthy communities.

Learn by doing.

Experiential education includes lawyering activities outside the classroom—clinics, externships, appellate and trial competitions, and voluntary public service work—as well as experientially oriented classroom learning. Colorado Law’s Experiential Learning Program provides students with a well-rounded learning experience.

Competitions

Colorado Law students compete in more than 20 appellate, trial level, and transactional competitions each year across the country and internationally. Recent competitions include the American Bar Association’s National Appellate Advocacy Competition, the American College of Trial Lawyers National Trial Competition, The Closer National Transactional Law Competition, and the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition.

Externships

The externship program gives students critical experiential learning opportunities by performing substantive legal work for judges, government officials, public interest institutions, and nonprofits. With approximately 160 placements each year and over 25,000 hours of cumulative work locally and nationwide, students acquire academic credit in addition to invaluable experience for future careers.

Student-led Journals

The flagship academic journal at Colorado Law since 1929, the University of Colorado Law Review publishes four times per year on general topics of legal importance.

Colorado Natural Resources, Energy & Environmental Law Review

Published since 1989, the journal provides a forum for the most pressing issues related to natural resources, energy, and environmental law and policy on local, regional, and global scales.

Colorado Technology Law Journal (CTLJ)

Founded in 2001, the CTLJ has since established a position among the elite national technology and telecommunications law journals.

JD Admission Standards

Above all, Colorado Law values leadership, character, diversity, and commitment to service in its students. The small size of the student body—about 170 in each entering class—and the large number of applicants requires a very selective admissions process. Admissions decisions are based on many factors, including undergraduate grade-point average (GPA) and the Law School Admission Test (LSAT) score, as well as other indicators of ability, motivation, and achievement.

JD Application Process

The Admissions Committee considers applications beginning in October. Applicants are notified of decisions on a rolling basis from October until the class is filled, usually in May. Admission from the waitlist, which is not ranked, can occur as late as August, and the number of offers varies from year to year. Find complete application instructions at Isac.org and colorado.edu/law/admissions.

International Students

International applicants have additional requirements as explained on our website, including transcripts showing completion of the equivalent of an American bachelor's degree, foreign degree verification, and transcript translation, if applicable. The TOEFL is required of all students whose native language is not English, as a thorough and excellent command of written and spoken English is crucial to success in law school. After admission, international students must submit a financial affidavit stating that they have the financial resources to support themselves while attending school in the United States, because Colorado Law cannot offer loan assistance to international students. All admitted international students are considered for merit-based scholarships.

Transfer Students

Students who have completed at least one full year of JD study (approximately 30 semester credits) at a law school accredited by the American Bar Association may apply for fall transfer admission to Colorado Law. The number of transfer students admitted varies each year, and only those who have done very well in their law studies elsewhere have a substantial chance of admission.

Visiting Students

Colorado Law admits a very limited number of students who are receiving their law degree from another law school to study here for the fall or spring semester.

Admission as a visiting student is available to applicants who have completed one or two years of high-quality work at another law school and have demonstrated a compelling need to attend Colorado Law. Financial aid for visiting students is usually handled by a consortium agreement between Colorado Law and the degree-granting institution.

Master of Studies and LLM

The Admissions Committee will review applications on a rolling basis. Applicants will be notified via email of the committee's decisions. Please submit all materials directly to the Colorado Law Admissions Office. Find complete application instructions at colorado.edu/law/msl and colorado.edu/law/llm.

Financial Aid

All admission decisions are made without regard to students' financial need. Every attempt is made to provide full financial assistance through federal and private educational loans, grants, work study, and scholarships. Students applying for financial aid, private law scholarships, or grants based on financial need must complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA, fafsa.ed.gov) as soon as possible after January 1. Eligible students are awarded Federal Direct Unsubsidized Stafford Loan aid up to a maximum of $20,500 per year. Graduate PLUS loans are available to students when financial need exceeds Stafford loan limits, up to the cost of attendance. Graduate PLUS loans are federally guaranteed, but, unlike Stafford loans, they have good-credit requirements for borrowers. Private alternative law loan programs have interest rates and fees that vary according to the lender, the credit rating of the student, and whether there is a co-signer. Both loan fees and interest rates may be higher than those of the Stafford loans, and there is no cap on interest rates. Additionally, private loan aid is not eligible for any of the federal repayment or forgiveness programs.

Scholarships, Fellowships, and Awards

All admitted first-year JD students are automatically considered for scholarships, as recipients are selected by the Admissions and Financial Aid Committee after an offer of admission has been made. Scholarships may be awarded through August. Colorado Law also offers scholarship money to second-year and third-year students each spring. More than 100 scholarships, fellowships, and awards are given annually based on academic and financial considerations. These scholarships are awarded based on multiple criteria, such as service to the law school, economic need, and demonstration of assistance in advancing the diversity of the student body.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) affords certain rights with respect to a student's education records. Copies of the policy are available in the Wise Law Library and the Rules of the Law School on the website.
