COURSE IN LIBRARY SCIENCE.

This course is designed, not only for those who wish to make library work a profession, but also as an aid in regular school work.

The course presupposes a completion of the regular Normal course, with exceptions as indicated. The following branches may be omitted: Pedagogy, Philosophy of Education, Teaching, Music, Arithmetic and Sloyd. In place of the foregoing, the following branches must be studied, or evidence shown to the teacher of the particular department, that an equivalent has already been studied.

Latin, 1 yr. elementary and 1 yr. Caesar or its equivalent.

German, 1 yr. elementary and 1 year intermediate. (French may be taken as an equivalent of 1 yr. German.)

Elective English, 1 yr. in addition to regular Normal course.

Library handicraft, 24 weeks, 4 hours per week.

Library science, including actual practice, 36 weeks, 4 hours per week.

General Outline of Course.

PRINTING.

Evolution of printing, block, type, illustrating, paper, newspaper work, etc.

BOOKBINDING.

History of bookbinding, studies of different bindings, choice of materials, collating, sewing, casing, rebinding, portfolio, loose leaf cover, magazine cover, scrap book.

Suggestions for Starting a Small Library.

ACCESSIONING.

Get an ordinary square blank book, about ten inches across, for accessioning. Rule it in columns for accession number, author, title, place and publisher, cost, source, remarks. These columns extend over two opposite pages. A line for a book, each line numbered consecutively, and the number placed in the book accessioned on book plate or slip in front cover, also on some particular page such as the first right hand page after the title page. This accession book should give the life history of every book in the library.

LABELS.

Paste a small slip or label, printed with name of library, rules, etc., as thought best, in the front cover. On this label have space for class number of book and accession number. On the back of book, put a neat label, round preferred, the best are Dennison's A-88. These are already gummed, cost 25 cents a thousand.

STAMPING.

Stamp all books with a rubber stamp. (Violet ink is best, as it does not so easily fade as others.) Stamp on first right hand page after title page, and two particular pages in book, say the first 99 and the last 99 in the book. Also stamp edges of book by bending the leaves a little. This last stamp it is almost impossible to remove. Cost of stamp and pad about 50 cents.

CLASSIFICATION.

Classify all except fiction by using the first three figures of the decimal classification. Abridged form can be purchased of the Library Bureau for $1.50; follow this by author initial and number taken from the Cutter author tables. In fiction use Cutter author letter and number only. This table can be obtained from the Library Bureau for $1.25. One can be made by using the numbers 9 to 99 as decimals. Thus,—Abbott A-22; Adams A-31, etc., thinking of their relative dictionary order, this would bring Ayers about A-99. The same order with other letters. Put these numbers on back label, and also on label inside of front cover.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

BOOK CARDS.

Book cards should be bought or made, about 3 by 5 inches. These can be purchased of Library Bureau for $2.00 a thousand. On each book card write title of book on top line, author name on second line, (surname first), class number and accession number following.

CHARGING OUT.

File all book cards mentioned above with titles in strictly dictionary order, in a suitable box, with alphabetical guides. This will be the catalogue for a time, of all books in the library by title. In charging out, place name or number of borrower on book card and mark with date of borrowing. File these cards in another box of "Books taken out." This will be the record of books out of the library. When books are returned, place card again in original list of "Books in library."

The above method will get the books in circulation with very little expense. Let no books out until they are accessioned. Endeavor to start at once a complete catalog by author, title and subject. This can be done whilst books are in circulation. The smaller the library the more complete should be the catalog. In order to get the greatest possible good, it is often advisable to make a card for even a page, when this page treats of a subject upon which matter is hard to find.

This complete catalog should be made on the Library Bureau standard cards number 33. These are about 3 by 5 inches. Boxes in which to file these can easily be made, or picked up at a store, until a good cabinet can be purchased. An excellent little pamphlet on "Cataloging" by Esther Crawford can be obtained from the Library Bureau for 15 cents.

The work done to the books according to the above suggestions will not have to be changed no matter what the future growth of the library may be.

List of Books for Children.

The following list is not intended to be a list of best books, neither is it proportioned through the different subjects. It is a list of books which children enjoy reading, and often call for; at the same time they are all good books. It may be called a list of good books, most popular with children.

These can almost all be purchased from different publishers at different prices, and in different editions. One only is given here for convenience. The small italics preceding titles, indicate, in a general way, to what class of young readers they are best adapted—c being for youngest readers, b for children from eight to twelve, and a for youth from about ten to sixteen.

Accessions.

The library now has about 22,000 volumes, exclusive of text books, and 2500 pamphlets. The latter are cataloged and placed in cases under their class number with the books on the same subject. Pamphlets are bound as soon as a convenient number bearing upon related subjects are collected. There are also about 8000 photographs and pictures. These include a fine collection of photographs of paintings, colored pictures of animals, birds, etc., pictures of geographical interest, etc.
